Chancellor Starhemberg in Speech to Nation Says Dollfuss' Work to Live

VENGEANCE PROMISED

Royal Funeral Accorded to "Little Chancellor" as Nation Pays Tribute

(Copyright, 1934, by United Press)
VIENNA, July 28.—(UP)—While government forces were busy crushing the Austrian Nazi rebellion, Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, victim of political hatred and assassination, was accorded royal funeral today.

In a setting as magnificent as that of Austria's last emperor, the strong men of the little chancellor's dominant party gathered to eulogize the lost leader and to demonstrate their control over an inflammable civil crisis. Meanwhile fighting between troops and Nazis continued in the provinces.

The small city hall, wherein the chancellor's body lay in state was banked with flowers. Wreaths sent from every nation in Europe, and masses of bright colored flowers contributed by his friends filled every corner of the old structure.

At 2:30 p. m., when the first ceremony began, every business activity in Vienna ceased, and every wheel stopped turning. Railroad trains were halted for two minutes. Windows along the route of the funeral procession were tightly closed.

Resistance to the government was still reported in outlying provinces, notably Carinthia, but each succeeding report from commanders of regular troops and Heimwehr soldiers told of the decreasing effectiveness of the rebels, of their dissolution, arrest, and in many instances, death.

Troops Massed
Across the Italian border, an impressive warning to Austria's enemies, were massed the powerful legions of Mussolini, ready upon an order from Rome to march over the frontier to fight "for Austria's independence."

The Nazi revolt seemed to have lost cohesive leadership. Some of the organization's more fanatical members were still in armed rebellion, marching along Carinthian roads and firing sporadically upon the government forces, but they lacked any concerted plan of action.

Reports from border cities continued to reveal occasional raids by Austrian Nazis making their bases in Germany, but in most cases the frontier authorities were in complete command of the situation.

After the first brief, but impressive, service had been read at Dollfuss' bier, President Miklas spoke of the late chancellor's great patriotism and honor.

Radio carried his words to great crowds massed outside, and to the entire nation.

Dollfuss Lauded
"His patriotism," Miklas said, "was all Austrian—but at the same time it was European."

GOV. MURRAY PULLS MILITARY MANEUVER

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 28.—(UP)—Gov. William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray, veteran of martial maneuvers in Oklahoma, reached the ultimate in military strategy today.

He declared a military zone about the automobile of M. C. Graham, said zone to go with the car wherever the car went, as inseparably as Mary and her little lamb of story book fame.

The purpose was to prevent city police from arresting Graham for alleged violation of a milk ordinance. Murray had pardoned Graham last night from a fine of $21 imposed on four charges of selling milk in disregard of ordinances governing plant equipment.

City officials ignored the pardon.

Candidate For Sheriff Is Under Arrest

MODESTO, Cal., July 28.—(UP)—Arthur Maiss occupied the Stanislaus county jail today, but not in the official capacity to which he aspires.

Maiss, a candidate for sheriff, was arrested on a misdemeanor charge of stealing firewood. He denied stealing the wood and said the whole thing was a "mistake."

The former Modesto dog-catcher was unable to raise the $25 bail required for his release.

UTILITY FIRMS AND LOBBYISTS HIT BY QUINN

Inner Secrets of Fat Fees Paid by Utilities Are Revealed by Candidate

SAN FRANCISCO, July 28.—(UP)—Inner secrets of fat fees paid to lobbyists by the power trust in California were laid bare here tonight over a statewide radio hookup by John R. Quinn, progressive Republican candidate for governor.

In a withering attack reminiscent to many of Hiram W. Johnson's first historic campaign for governor Quinn charged:

1—That former State Sen. H. D. Nelson of Eureka was paid more than $28,000 last year by private utilities in California to act as their lobbyist.

2—That $18,288 was paid to Nelson by the Pacific Gas and Electric Company and charged on the company's book as operating expense.

3—That in their resistance against attempts for lower rates to consumers the eight utilities companies of the State, whose presidents are paid an aggregate of "more than $250,000 a year in salaries" use "your money and my money" to make their fight.

Compares Salaries

In his barrage against power trust domination, Quinn, compared the salaries paid to high executives of private utility companies with those paid to State officials. In this connection he said:

"The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court in California receives twelve thousand dollars a year. The annual salary of the President of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company is sixty-eight thousand, seven hundred and ninety-two dollars."

North Bay, Ont., July 28.—(UP)—The famous Dionne quintuplets soon will have a new home, will receive expert medical care for two years, and will not be exhibited at the world's fair. It was announced today as the babies became two months old.

W. H. Alderson, attorney general of Ontario, ruled against the world's fair. He broke a contract signed by the babies' father, Oliva Dionne, shortly after their birth. He said moving the infants to Chicago would result in death "at least one and possibly more," and that "lives of children are of greater importance in Canada than the profits of exploitation and promotional undertakings."

The Red Cross announced it will construct a new dwelling for the family between Callander and Corbell. It will be modern in every respect and designed for comfort of the infants.

Martial Law Declared In "Model City"

Two Killed and 21 Persons Hurt at Kohler, Wis., During Last Night

KOHLER, Wis., July 28.—(UP)—Martial law was ordered today in Kohler, "model" of peaceful industrial communities where two striking workmen were killed and 21 others shot last night by deputy sheriffs.

Two troops of unmounted cavalry from Milwaukee took charge immediately. More than 1000 booing pickets of strikers at the Kohler bathroom fixture plant were ordered out of the community.

Barricades on highways, with soldiers poking rifles over the parapets, kept them at bay. Military action followed a night of bloody riots climaxed by firing of about a dozen shots at the automobile of a newspaper photographer, John Steger of the Chicago Tribune. He was not injured but his car was struck several times.

First fatalities of the three-week-old strike were Lee Wakefield, 26, and Henry Engelmann, 27, of Sheboygan. Wakefield died a few minutes after the battle of a chest wound. Engelmann died this morning with a rifle bullet in his abdomen.

Twenty-one others, taken to two Sheboygan hospitals, were wounded seriously. Hundreds, including women and children, suffered from tear gas. After unrest through the day soon after 8 p. m. a striker threw a brick through a plant window. Others seized the idea. Stones bricked railroad spikes and sticks filled the air. Glass crashed on all sides of the factory.

At the height of the disturbance, with men, women and children screaming and shouting imprecations at a few workers inside the plant, deputies charged. Gas grenades burst around the mob. Night sticks cracked on bare heads. Almost 2000 men swayed in a roaring mass.

No one knew who fired the first rifle shot. It was followed by the boom of a shotgun. Then a fusillade rang out.

Women fled shrieking, dragging children with them, but their men

COUNTY PLANNERS PROPOSE 50 ACRE RECREATIONAL PARK ON WATERFRONT AT NEWPORT

PRELIMINARY plans for a county-owned recreational park on the waterfront at Newport Harbor have received the tentative approval of the Orange County Planning Commission, it was announced today following a meeting of the commission at which the proposal was discussed.

Engineer Nat H. Neff and members of the commission have been visualizing construction of a mammoth public playground on county-owned property at the harbor for several years, and preliminary plans have been drawn for extensive future development which will provide a new and exclusive type of recreational center.

The Planning Commission, wishing to take advantage of the government dredging in the harbor, voted to request the board of supervisors to set up sufficient funds for dredging of approximately 50 acres in the proposed county park.

Over 2500 Acres Denuded in Sierra Madre Mountains Near Pasadena

PASADENA, Cal., July 28.—(UP)—A brush fire that devastated 2500 acres of valuable watershed and mountain playground in the Sierra Madre mountains northeast of here was reported virtually under control today.

Although roaring along a 15-mile front, the fire was being held in check by an army of begrimed fire-fighters, cheered by the absence of wind.

"The weather is favorable," reported William V. Mendenhall, supervisor of the Angeles National forest. "The fire is still burning along a 15-mile front but if the wind remains quiet we'll hold the flames where they now are. Barring a change in weather, the fire should be definitely under control by tonight."

Six hundred fresh recruits reported for duty this morning, relieving a similar number of volunteers who have had little rest since the fire, ignited by a short circuit in a power line, broke out late Thursday. In all more than 1000 men formed a phalanx around the blazing brush land.

In the East Millard and Bear canyons, in the Arroyo Seco and along the Angeles crest, vortex of the flames, fire-fighters were making headway. The blaze was reported "fairly controlled" in these sectors.

Appraisers counted a half-million dollar damage in the blackened path of the fire. The estimate covered this city's water-

100,000 PERSONS EXPECTED IN ATTENDANCE AT ANNUAL NEWPORT LIGHTS TOURNAMENT

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND spectators are expected to line the banks of Newport Bay tonight as that colorful water spectacle of the Southland, the twenty-sixth annual Tournament of Lights, flashes into existence. At 7:30 p. m. a star shell will explode high over Balboa and the Corinthian fleet will swing proudly away from the pavilion, 150 entries gracefully gliding down the bay. At 8:15 another shell will explode over Newport and the great first division will commence.

It is a far cry from tonight's stakes prize, donated this year for the first time. First in line will be the entry of Santa Monica, followed by floats from Long Beach, Pasadena, Huntington Beach, Anaheim, Fullerton, Santa Ana, San Bernardino, and other cities from Los Angeles to San Diego.

Consolidate Ballot With Bonds Vote

Forgotten Election Law on City Books is Cause of Change in Date

BARRED BY a nearly-forgotten election law from consolidating another election with the primaries on August 28, the city council will take action Monday night in setting an election on Thursday, August 30, at which time the bond issue to pay for delinquent 1915 street assessment bonds and the proposal to repeal the 12 cent advertising and music tax will be placed on the ballot.

City Clerk Ed Vegely announced yesterday that state election laws prohibited the council from holding the advertising and music election with the primaries, as voted Monday night following the presentation of petitions demanding the election.

The council had previously decided to hold the 1915 bond act election on August 20, to allow sufficient time for a superior court decision on the legality of the election prior to September 4, when the tax rate must be set. Following conferences with City Attorney Clyde Downing, Vegely announced that both elections could be held on August 30, at a greater convenience and less cost than by any other arrangement.

To Rescind Action

The council will be required to rescind the action taken last week and then set the new date. Downing will recommend the action.

With the city election after the primaries, the procedure will be greatly simplified, according to Vegely. The great registers and other documents from the county clerk's office will be available, whereas if the election were held before the primaries, the county books would have to be copied by the city.

Vegely and his office staff were at work today in consolidating the primaries and designating polling places. Election board personnel will be announced in a few days.

The advertising and music tax ballot was authorized following mass meetings and signing of petitions by nearly 3600 citizens, asking that appropriations for advertising be placed in the Chamber of Commerce be discontinued.

The 1915 bond act election will involve the voting of about $350,000 in bonds to pay for delinquent street assessment bonds. These bonds were issued before the present council took office but under a recent state supreme court ruling, the city is liable for the delinquency. The usual procedure is to levy a tax rate to pay for the delinquencies, but such a rate in Santa Ana would total about $1.49 and make a total tax levy of about $3.19 per $100 assessed valuation.

Downing is proceeding with the new plan of voting bonds to invest in the delinquent bonds, thus spreading the cost over 15 years, reducing the interest, keeping the tax levy down, and incurring no additional cost to the taxpayers.

Price, Demand For Oranges Are Improved

LOS ANGELES, July 28.—(UP)—The California Fruit Growers exchange reported orange sales approximating 1,000 cars this week, with some improvement in demand and price, particularly in the middle west. Exchange lemon sales were over 650 cars for the week, a volume exceeded only once this year, when 700 cars were sold the week preceding July 4th.

The lemon market is higher, but no extreme prices have occurred, due to heavy supplies to mid-western markets where the protracted heat wave brought heavy demand. The exchange was able to quickly direct additional lemons to Chicago, where 94 cars were sold from Monday to Friday.

HONOLULU, July 28.—(UP)—Proud and happy over the appearance of prosperity and well being he noted among the people of the Hawaiian Islands, President Roosevelt was to turn to the sea again today to visit the Pacific northwest.

As the U. S. S. Houston carries him eastward toward Portland, Ore., the president will devote much of his time to a study of data relative to conditions in the far west.

He made similar studies as the cruiser carried him from the Canal Zone to Hawaii, where his five-day stay was devoted in large measure to an inspection of

NEW TENSION FELT IN COAST STRIKE

SAN FRANCISCO, July 28.—(UP)—Disputing over technical matters while thousands of tons of freight piled up in Pacific coast ports, longshoremen and ship owners brought new tension into the strike situation today by their inability to reach a "back to work" agreement.

The new crisis led authorities in several ports to plan direct action to smash the strike blockade. Governor Julius Meier of Oregon threatened he will send 1100 National guardsmen to open the port of Portland Monday unless the dispute is settled. Mayor Joseph Carson of Portland advised strikers only a handful of pickets will be permitted in the waterfront section.

A San Diego youth was killed and another was seriously injured shortly before 1 o'clock this afternoon when the motorcycle they were riding overturned on the curve at D street and First street in Tustin.

Nello Al Sabato, of San Diego, was killed from head and other injuries and his body has been removed to the Harrell and Brown funeral parlor. His companion, as yet unidentified, was taken to the Santa Ana Valley hospital. Sabato is about 25 years of age, according to Coroner Earl Abbey. The wreck occurred when he attempted to miss a truck on the curve and his motorcycle slipped and skidded about 90 feet.

Chief Pilot Kepner Keeps in Radio Communication With Headquarters

BULLETIN

CHICAGO, July 28.—(UP)—An unconfirmed report was received by the National Broadcasting company here today that the stratosphere balloon had landed. The report came from Grand Island, Neb.

BULLETIN

GOTHENBURG, Neb., July 28.—(UP)—Gothenburg residents poured from their homes late today to watch the slow descent of the U. S. Army stratosphere balloon.

Appearing about the size of a half dollar as it drifted slowly eastward, it was estimated the "Explorer" would land approximately ten miles east of here.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—(UP)

The U. S. Army stratosphere balloon ripped in several places today while at an altitude of nearly 11 miles.

Maj. William E. Kepner, chief pilot, reported the trouble in brief radio messages to headquarters here.

"We are trying to come down, but we are sort of hanging here," Kepner said.

"I'm in trouble. The bottom of the bag is ripped in several places. The balloon is rather difficult to manage."

Communication with the balloon was difficult. Kepner and his aides, Capt. Albert W. Stevens, and Capt. Orvil Anderson, obviously were working feverishly to prevent a disaster that might send them hurtling through ten miles of space.

The balloon ripped while it was at an altitude of 57,000 feet, or within about 4000 feet of the official world's altitude record.

Its location at the time was somewhat east of North Platte, Neb.

CHILD DIES AS MACHINE HITS ROAD BUTTON

HONOLULU, July 28.—(To the Editor of The Register.) Well we blew in here this morning, on the first leg of our long hop, and imagine who we run into. You wouldn't guess in a year. You remember the President we lost, just after Congress adjourned, the one that was so tickled that he disappeared well he is out here at some Japanese islands in the middle of the Pacific. Just looks fine, same great smile that he used to use on those Congressmen and make 'em bring sticks out of the water for him. These folks want their sugar quota raised. But he just smiles at 'em. He is the world's only man that can turn you down and you go out liking him. The whole of Honolulu is doing the hula, or riding a surf board for him today. If he don't raise their quota, I will go over his head and take it up with Gen. Hugh Johnson, and get it done for 'em, for we can't let the Garden of Eden be dissatisfied.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

TEN CRIMINAL DEFENDANTS IN COUNTY COURT

Seven of 10 criminal defendants who appeared before Superior Judge J. O. Moncur, of Plumas county, on the regular Friday criminal calendar were charged with drunk driving. A burglar and two check artists made up the balance.

L. Mendez, charged with drunk driving June 24 on West First street, Santa Ana, was placed on probation for three years on condition that he serve three months in the county jail. He was ordered not to drive a car for three years.

Ventura Torres, another drunk driver arrested on North Tustin street July 12, was placed on probation for two years and ordered to pay a fine of $75 at the rate of $5 per month. His driving license was suspended for one year.

Four others pleaded guilty to drunk driving and applied for probation. Belle G. Dunlop was arrested July 12 on Ocean avenue, Garden Grove; Richard A. Leigh was arrested July 21 near the bridge across Newport bay; E. B. Goss was arrested July 21 on Grand avenue, Buena Park. All will receive probation hearings August 3.

Charles Bauman, who was arrested July 22, will receive his probation hearing August 10. Pedro Martinez pleaded guilty to a charge of drunk driving and will go on trial August 13. He was arrested on the charge at El Modena.

Wayne H. Langton, who passed a fictitious $25 check to the Vandermast clothing store in Santa Ana July 11, pleaded guilty and asked probation. Hearing was set for August 3.

Al Niles pleaded guilty to passing a fictitious check for $22.50 to Otto Dargatzis, Anaheim butcher. Hearing of his plea for probation was set for August 2.

E. B. Goss was placed on probation for three years and sentenced to six months in the county jail for his part in a burglary of a Huntington Beach garage. Grand theft and burglary were charged against him.

Donald Jones, one of his accomplices, was placed on probation for five years by Judge H. G. Ames on condition that he serve six months in the county jail. A week ago, Judge Ames sentenced the third defendant, Charles Jones, to San Quentin.

Simon Mohr, alleged fake eye doctor, was sentenced to San Quentin yesterday by Superior Judge G. K. Seovel, on a charge of petty theft with prior conviction. Mohr had obtained jewelry from an Anaheim woman, whom he had treated for eye trouble with a preparation he called redium eye water drops. He had once served a term in Sing Sing, New York prison, for a similar offense.

Those injured were Theodore Wallen, New York Herald Tribune; head lacerations; Francis Stephenson, Associated Press, arm laceration; and Edward Rodden, Universal Service, head laceration. A navy enlisted man driver and Frederick A. Storm of the United Press also were riding in the machine.

The correspondents were treated at emergency hospital and were released.

Although only two were reported officially, Oscar Antilean, owner of a cabin in Millard canyon, reported that some 20 dwellings were razed in Millard canyon and an undetermined number in Fern canyon. Authorities said there was no loss of life because of prompt evacuation.

Danger which threatened scenic Mt. Lowe and its resort properties was averted late last night when the fire was turned within a mile of the famous Alpine tavern. As a precautionary measure, however, the Pacific and Electric railway assigned several hundred employees along the right of way of the famous incline railroad that runs to the top of the mountain.

The county fire dispatcher sent an appeal to San Francisco for additional equipment. The dispatcher said he was asked to send men and equipment to San Margarita peak in San Diego where a similar fire is raging.

the defensive, economic and social conditions of the mid-Pacific possessions.

Mr. Roosevelt was highly pleased with what he saw and heard. He will express his reactions in a speech to the Hawaiian people before he departs today. In the same address he will thank them for the eventful reception they tendered the first president to visit their sunken land.

Before he sails the president will participate in a tree-planting ceremony at the capital grounds. When he planted a tree at Hilo during his visit there, he said that there was nothing he liked to do better.

Last night from the capitol balcony he watched the gigantic lantern parade, a colorful event which matched the surf-riding, the native dancing, the Samoan sword dancing, the military and naval reviews and the other events held for his entertainment here.

As the Houston and its convoy, the U. S. S. New Orleans turn their bows toward Diamond Head for the sea, the royal Hawaiian band, which greeted his Honolulu arrival Thursday, will play "Aloha" again, this time to speed a beloved visitor on his way.

Only one accident marred the president's visit. Three newspapermen who accompanied him here from Washington were the victims.

A horse frightened by a police siren crashed into a procession of automobiles, in one of which Mr. Roosevelt was riding. The horse fell into a machine carrying the newspapermen.

Those injured were Theodore Wallen, New York Herald Tribune; head lacerations; Francis Stephenson, Associated Press, arm laceration; and Edward Rodden, Universal Service, head laceration. A navy enlisted man driver and Frederick A. Storm of the United Press also were riding in the machine.

The correspondents were treated at emergency hospital and were released.

hunting knives has been posted for this division. There also will be 15 plaques for first prizes, 12 silver cups, 18 bronze cups, and 12 medals listed as recognition awards for all entries.

Tournament officials, headed by Irving George Gordon, have done everything in their power to make the affair a success from every viewpoint. Months of effort have been expended in insuring the smooth running off of the parade. Special police committees have worked out every possible safeguard and courtesy for the thousands of visiting motorists this evening, including special details of police to handle traffic, and an emergency corps for protection in the bay, headed by Frank W. Crocker, fire-chief, and head of life-guards.

Actual start of the parade will be made from midway between the Balboa Pavilion and Balboa island at 7:30. The first flotilla will proceed down the peninsula to a point opposite the East end of Balboa island, where it will swing across the bay, proceeding up the shore of the island. It should reach Lido Isle at 9:00 p. m., tying in with the rear of the civic division.

Civic Entries
The division composed of civic entries will assemble on the North side of Lido Isle, leaving from the east end at 8:00 p. m. and proceeding up the South side of the Lido to Newport, where it will swing across the bay, to commence its trek down the bay. After joining at Lido Isle the entire parade will cover the ten mile route again, disbanding at approximately 11:00 p. m. at the East end of Lido Isle, thus enabling spectators to obtain a view of the whole parade from any point along the shores of the bay. The event will be judged by a group of mayors and prominent newspaper men from the Southern California vicinity. Civic heads acting as judges are: Arthur Eldridge, president of the Los Angeles Harbor commission, representing the mayor of Los Angeles; Mayors Frank Champion of Laguna Beach, F. G. Warner of Santa Ana, H. Mann of Anaheim, C. E. Halber of Placentia, William Huntley of Tustin, Glenn F. Evans of San Gabriel, Dan Hutchings of Corona, William H. Carter, of Santa Monica, H. H. County Planners Propose 50 Acre Recreational Park ON WATERFRONT AT NEWPORT to build up the county frontage, giving a beach more than 200 feet wide and nearly a mile long, with additional areas for park development, auto parking areas, picnic pavilions, etc.

A boat house and bathing pavilion on the bay front is visualized for the future.

"I have been dreaming of such a public park development as this for several years," said County Engineer Neff today in discussing the proposed project. "We own the land and it is logical that we begin to plan for the future when such a high class recreational project as this will be needed."

"It can be modeled after the Playground project in Westchester county, New York, which grosses a revenue of a million dollars per year to Westchester county, and thus made self liquidating."

"I have rather hoped, when this plan is carried out, that the bay area adjoining the park can be kept free of all motorized boats and reserved exclusively for swimmers and smaller hand propelled boats."

In addition to the county-owned lands which will eventually be utilized for the water-front park, Neff revealed that James Irvine, owner of large holdings along the upper bay, has tentatively approved the donation of several adjoining acres to the park site, so that when completed the county park project will include the development of approximately 50 acres of land, in addition to the 50 acres of water.

ARMY BALLOON RIPS OPEN AT 57,000 FEET

the balloon doesn't want to come down.

"In the condition it is in it is apt to do a lot of things." If the emergency became too pressing, the gondola could be cut loose from the giant bag and let down by a parachute designed to drop it safely to earth.

Kepler and his aides, Capt. Albert W. Stevens and Capt. Orvil Anderson, worked feverishly in the tiny sealed gondola to prevent a disaster.

Radio messages were brief, the men obviously realizing their peril, clung doggedly to the hope of keeping the bag intact until they had descended several miles. At a lower altitude escape by parachute would be much easier.

At 5:58 p. m. EST Kepler was asked if he was coming down okay. "I don't know," he said. "We're pretty hard to say. We're trying."

Shortly after this radio operator asked Kepler if they could bother him to go on the broadcast network for a few minutes. "What for?" he demanded. "I'm in trouble here."

Lieut. McAllester, army air corps contact man for the flight at Omaha, proceeded immediately to Kearney, Neb.

It was indicated the balloon probably would come down somewhere between North Platte and Kearney.

Capt. Stevens came to the balloon radio transmitter at 4:20 p. m. EST.

"Everything all right?" he was asked. "We don't know," Stevens said. "We are coming down the best we can slowly."

The balloon then had dropped to 52,000 feet. Stevens said the balloon had reached a height of approximately 60,000 feet when the rip occurred. This was 8,000 feet higher than other reports had placed the maximum.

If Stevens was worried over his predicament his voice did not betray it. Radio engineers conversed with him several minutes, explaining how he should communicate after landing.

same time he was all German in his loyalty, his sense of duty and honor, and above all he was all German in his courage."

He declared the little leader "understood all classes and was understood by all, particularly the Austrian soldiers."

A silent crowd packed the streets for four blocks near the city hall. The crowd had waited for hours for the ceremonies to begin.

At the conclusion of Miklas' eulogy, two army trucks, draped in black moved out of the square, bearing 450 floral wreaths. They opened the way for four more automobiles laden with flowers, behind which walked a small group of monks.

Behind the clergy marched, in slow step, with arms reversed, a company of soldiers.

Dollfuss' fellow cabinet ministers, at a midnight meeting, swore solemnly to a pledge to carry out his policies unchanged.

As Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg, his temporary successor, put it in a speech to the nation after the meeting:

"Work Will Live"
"Dollfuss is dead, but his work will live, and it is embodied in one word: Austria."

Nazis were taking to the forests, and fleeing to the frontiers of Germany and Yugoslavia.

The government was organizing for merciless vengeance on those who were captured. A special military court was set up to try them. Starhemberg put himself today at the head of a ministerial committee on special security measures to crush Nazis, Socialists and Communists.

Starhemberg in his speech to the nation pronounced the first requiem for Dollfuss. He pledged war to the death of Nazism.

"In behalf of myself and in the name of the government," he said, "I here declare that there never shall be the slightest compromise with or the smallest concession to National Socialism (Nazism) involving our freedom, our honor or our rank among the nations."

(This was a reference to the Anschluss policy of the Nazis, which in the fascist's viewpoint would make Austria a satellite of Nazi Germany.)

"Naturally we shall contribute everything possible to the good relations of all countries. Also we are prepared to forget things that have occurred in the past—provided that in the future we are not molested."

We reject in advance all meddling with our affairs."

When the German foreign office inquired whether Baron Franz von Papen would be persona grata, as special minister, it replied that there would be no decision until the cabinet met next week.

Fighting centered principally in Carinthia, southernmost province across whose border 40,000 Italian troops were bivouacked. There was firing all night in the Lavant valley, with government forces driving Nazis before them.

Two Women Given Divorce Decrees

Two divorce decrees were granted in superior court late yesterday, one to Mrs. Evelyn Swartz against John E. Swartz, Anaheim soft drink dispenser, and the other to Mrs. Victoria Burnett against George H. Burnett, of Costa Mesa.

Mrs. Swartz charged cruelty and told Judge H. G. Ames that her husband was sulky, quarrelsome and frequently got drunk on the beer he had for sale at his stand. They married August 1, 1923, at Anaheim, and separated March 30, this year.

Mrs. Burnett charged non-support in her complaint, which was heard by Judge J. O. Moncur. The Burnetts married at Costa Mesa March 1, 1933, and separated July 15, 1933. Mrs. Burnett was granted custody of their child.

Police News
Edwin Fleming, 44, Los Angeles, was booked at the county jail Thursday by Deputy Sheriff James Musick for non-support of a minor child.

Chief Gus Barnes of Placentia arrested Filberto Montana, 39, and booked him at the county jail Thursday for disturbing the peace.

Mrs. Teddy Tetzlaff, 840 1/2 North Ross street, reported to police yesterday that a $25 polo coat and a $18 blanket were stolen from her parked car at Fourth and Sycamore streets Thursday.

"Rate payers of California pay to the presidents of the eight power utility companies in California more than a quarter of a million dollars a year in salaries."

"The State Treasurer of California gets $5000 a year. The Treasurer of the P. G. and E. gets four times that amount."

"The Lieutenant Governor of California gets $4000 a year. The first Vice-President of the P. G. and E. gets almost 10 times that amount."

"The Power Trust has resisted with all its might and main any and every attempt to bring about reductions in rates to consumers, using your money and my money with which to make that fight to keep those princely salaries intact."

"Have you people ever heard of former Sen. H. D. Nelson of Eureka? Last year Senator Nelson, as a professional lobbyist, received $18,288 from the P. G. and E. to work against you and me and this amount the P. G. and E. charged on its books as operating expense. Nelson also received an additional $10,000 from four utility companies in Southern California. A pretty picture, my friends, Senator Nelson with jingling pockets, off to Sacramento!"

"How long are you going to tolerate these abuses? How long are you going to stand such practices? I could give you instance after instance, example after example, illustrating these disgraceful activities of the public utilities. This must be stopped."

"I pledge you it shall be stopped when I am elected governor of California. The power trust must be taken out of politics. Its grip on legislation must be broken once and for all."

Quinn paid high tribute to Senator Hiram W. Johnson.

fought in the very muzzles of the guns. Noise of the battle was heard more than a mile distant. All through the crowd men fell. Many were trampled severely before they dragged themselves to safety.

For more than an hour strikers held their lines before tear gas drove them to the city limits. They reformed there, throwing bricks at police and deputy sheriffs and booing continuously.

Kohler charged the rioters were led by "outside agitators." He produced a petition signed by 1500 former employees who declared they were satisfied with plant wages and willing to return to work if protected.

Henry Ohl Jr., president of the Wisconsin Federation of Labor, said "outside men" had been hired to defeat the purposes of an American Federation of Labor union.

Martial law, he asserted, existed in effect, if not in fact, and said "because of the attitude of deputies anything can happen."

Strikers have demanded recognition of their union and an increase of wages, with a guarantee of minimum hours.

In three decades Kohler never before had known industrial disputes.

13 U. S. PRISONERS BOOKED AT JAIL

Thirteen federal prisoners were booked at the county jail yesterday, including nine charged with violation of the immigration laws.

Those booked for immigration violations included Antonio Mens, 23, Baldomero Soto, 31, Juan Ruiz, 28, Roberto Feras-Santos, 24, Tomas Garcia, 27, Porfirio Gonzales, 34, Vidal Sanchez, 28, and Carmen C. Arviga, 54. United States Deputy Marshal Rynning also booked Julius J. DeKeyser, 25, and Harry S. Reynolds, 57, on federal charges.

Deputy Marshal Frank Besser booked Dwight Merwin, 23, charged with violation of the national banking laws and Samuel Batoche, 33, held for violation of the postal laws.

fearless young man began an attack on corrupt public utilities in California. With the aid of the liberal papers of California he campaigned for governor. OFFICERS FIND CHIP AND TANGO PLACES CLOSED

Seal Beach gambling interests suffered another setback here yesterday when Superior Judge J. O. Moncur, of Plumas county, presiding in Judge James L. Allen's court, denied a temporary injunction sought by the local gamblers to prevent Sheriff Logan Jackson from raiding their establishments.

No court of equity "should go so far as to interfere with public officers in the proper exercise of their duties," said Judge Moncur in refusing the plea of counsel for the asserted gambling element, Henry Lackman and Otto A. Jacobs, to protect them against the raids of officers until the gambling charges against them could be tried at Seal Beach—before friendly juries that have been invariably acquitting them.

"Must Take Chances" Gamblers must take their chances, commented Judge Moncur, in refusing the injunction. When the attorneys for the Seal Beach interests pointed out that "there already has been a judicial determination" of whether the raided games are gambling games, a Seal Beach jury having acquitted one of the defendants involved in the injunction proceedings, Judge Moncur merely remarked that:

"That doesn't determine anything for this court." Judge Moncur ruled that the question whether the games were gambling games was one of fact, with which he was not concerned in the injunction proceedings. The question before him, he said, was whether the court should use its discretion to prevent the officers from using their discretion in the exercise of their duty. No court, he decided, should go so far.

Deputy District Attorney Preston Turner, opposing the injunction, argued that there was no showing before the court that the asserted gamblers were not violating the law, except their own complaint, which was denied by the answer of the sheriff and district attorney, this answer being supported by affidavit while the petitioner's complaint was unsupported.

Can't License Violation The argument of Attorney Lackman and Jacobs that their clients, Julius A. Hammer Jr., and the Seal Beach Amusement company, are conducting business under city license, was met by Turner with the comment that no city has a right to license a violation of the law.

Attorney Jacobs had argued that the repeated arrest of a person, interfering with the business he is operating under a city license, is an invasion of property rights. "Property rights," remarked Judge Moncur, "do not extend so far as to include the privilege of violating the law."

Attorney Lackman opened his argument to the court by pointing out that his injunction petition describes the tango and chip games as they are now being operated by his clients, and said that the restraining order was wanted to protect the games as they are now described, not as they may have been operated at some time before. They now are being operated for amusement only, and not for any "object of value," he said. Turner scoffed at that statement.

It was recalled by officers that following their last raid at Seal Beach, they had observed one tango parlor that had that night changed its tactics and was operating in the fashion described by Lackman. They expressed the view, however, that this was done merely in preparation for the injunction hearing.

Employees Put on Bail The seven defendants arrested in a raid Thursday night and held on a felony charge of conspiracy to violate the gambling laws, were all released on bail yesterday afternoon, when Justice Kenneth E. Morrison reduced bail from $5,000 to $500. The defendants included Ballard Baron, 49, owner of the chip game that was raided, and Lee C. Bennet, 41, adjacent drug store owner, who allegedly acted as cashier for the chip game.

Officers were in Seal Beach again last night but there was no opportunity to make arrests. Not a single chip game or tango parlor was in operation and only one or two restaurants were open. Few of the town's street lights were burning and only an occasional car was parked at the curb, in distinct contrast to the crowded streets, bustling throngs and brightly-lighted sidewalks before the raids.

Complaints issued today charging conspiracy to violate the gambling laws, included a new defendant, Julius A. Hammer, who was one of the petitioners for an injunction. Hammer operated a chip game.

Arraignment of the eight defendants were set for 2 p. m. Monday before Justice Morrison.

Miss Elsie Armitage, 34, of Sunset Beach, passed away yesterday in Long Angeles. Funeral services will be held from the home of her father, Jess Armitage, in Sunset Beach, Monday at 2 p. m. under the direction of Harrell and Brown.

Besides her father, who is well known in Orange county, Miss Armitage is survived by one sister, Mrs. Adele Hankey, of San Juan Capistrano, and one brother, Carleton Armitage, of Long Beach.

ADJOURN GUN CLUB TRIAL TO MONDAY

Developing an intensity lacking in the preceding gun club trials, the case of the Casa Dora Gun club, on trial in Huntington Beach justice court on a charge of violating the county ordinance against waste of water, was recessed over Sunday last night after nearly two days of maneuvering in the selection of a jury.

Where the several gun club trials of recent weeks have required but half a day for picking a jury, a full day and a half was used for that purpose in the Casa Dora case, and a start was barely made with the evidence before adjournment last night.

The procedure thus far has been marked by sharp debate between counsel for the gun club and the prosecutors, District Attorney S. B. Kaufman and his deputy, Leo J. Friles. Both sides have closely contested every point as the examination of jurors went forward before Justice C. P. Pann.

The Orange County Farm bureau today announced that they are expecting to attend the trial when it is resumed Monday, owing to the intensity of the contest and the expectation that all of the issues involved in the water cases probably will be brought out.

APPOINT ENDERLE CATTELL CHAIRMAN

Re-election of H. G. Cattell as Southern California member of the State Board of Equalization was urged strongly today by Maurice F. Enderle of this city, chief deputy assessor of Orange county and a past commander of the local American Legion post, who has been named chairman of the local Cattell campaign committee.

Similar committees have been formed in Tustin and Garden Grove. Heading the Tustin committee is Charles O. Artz, prominent merchant, and in Garden Grove, Ralph A. Chiles, secretary of the Garden Grove Farm center, has assumed committee leadership.

An active campaign to retain Cattell on the equalization board, where he has served for the last 15 years, will be conducted in this territory, according to Enderle. Similar campaigns will be conducted by volunteer workers in all of the eight southern counties.

Tripp, which occurred last night in Idaho, where Mrs. Tripp was spending the summer. She had been in her usual health but death came quietly sometime during the night. Funeral services will be conducted in Hemet, where burial will be made in the family plot by the side of the husband who preceded her in death by a few years.

Revival meetings are being held every Tuesday and Thursday nights in the S. A. Clark chapel, 519 North Artesia street, by A. B. McKlean, the "carpenter preacher." All are invited to attend.

LIQUOR CASES DISMISSED IN POLICE COURT

The lengthy prosecution of defendants for alleged violations of the liquor laws in the Santa Ana police court was at an end today, following the dismissal of a "hung jury" last night in the trial of A. M. Caspari, proprietor of the Hof Brau cafe.

The jury deliberated from 2 p. m. to 8 p. m. and stood 2 to 4 for conviction from the second ballot to the end, it was unofficially learned. Caspari was charged with conducting and maintaining a saloon, barroom and public drinking place.

When Judge J. G. Mitchell dismissed the jury, City Attorney Clyde Downing made a motion to dismiss charges against Caspari and Verne Speich and Charles Clark, proprietors of Charlie's Barn cafe, who were scheduled to be retried on the same charge next Tuesday.

Each of the 22 defendants has been through the court to date, with the exception of Harry Evans, colored, charged with selling whiskey without a license and not in the original container. Evans was freed in May on a $300 bond and was shortly thereafter engaged as a cook for a construction gang in the desert. Since he was an employee of D. J. Wallace, colored, who pleaded guilty to the same charge and is now serving a 90-day jail sentence, it is not expected that he will be prosecuted.

When he return to Santa Ana, it is probable that his bond will be exonerated and he will be dismissed.

The liquor trials started after police arrested the defendants on May 10, the same day that Chief Floyd Howard announced his candidacy for sheriff. One person was charged with violation of the midnight closing law for liquor establishments, three were held on the whiskey charge and the remainder on the barroom charges.

Seven trials were held, which included three disagreements by the juries, one conviction by jury, one acquittal by jury and one not guilty verdict by the judge. One pleaded guilty before the judge.

Caspari then was arrested for violating the midnight closing ordinance and succeeded in having the ordinance nullified in superior court.

On June 20, Downing dismissed all the remaining barroom cases except the Hof Brau and the Barn. On July 1, the conviction of E. G. Minneman on the barroom charge was upheld by the superior court after an appeal had been made.

Caspari was tried before Judge John Landell last week and the case dismissed. Mrs. Julia Sulzer, colored, was found guilty by a jury last week on the whiskey charge and is now serving a 150-day sentence.

McKAY, GRAHAM TO FACE NEW TRIALS

NEW YORK, July 28.—(UP)—William J. Graham and James C. McKay, Nevada gamblers accused of mulcting a million dollars from 42 persons in an international swindle, had escaped conviction on fraud charges today because a jury deliberating their case failed to agree on a verdict.

The vote for conviction had been eight to four ever since the jurors received the case, it was said, changing last night to nine to three.

The jury decided that John J. Egleston, gambler of Worcester, Mass., was guilty on one of three counts charging mail fraud. They were unable to agree on other counts.

CLAIM $2842 DUE OIL WELL WORKMEN

Morris Harris was named defendant today in a superior court suit brought by Joseph J. Creem, department of labor representative, on behalf of Orzo Lee and 18 other workmen employed by Harris on an oil well at Fullerton between July 15, 1932, and September 28, that year. The suit alleges that $2842.42 is due the 19 employes as wages.

THERMOMETER DROPS; BEACH GETS RAINFALL

It was "unusual weather" time in Orange county again today, following the brief "unusual" hot spell.

Newport Beach, where preparations were going forward for the big Tournament of Lights tonight, was treated to 15 minutes of brisk rainfall this morning, which blew in on the tailend of an east wind which started last evening.

By noon, the rain was over, the wind had died down, the clouds had disappeared, and reports from the harbor were that the weather was clear and fine, just right for tonight's big event.

So far as could be learned, no floats were damaged by the brief downpour, but all outdoor work ceased for the time being.

It was an unusually warm night and early morning in the interior regions of the county, with a temperature of 85 in Santa Ana at 8:30 o'clock this morning. With the break in the weather and the cloudiness, this had dropped to 78 at noon, according to the Knox and Stout thermometer.

The instrument is located on the Fourth street front of the Knox and Stout building, sheltered from direct rays of the sun, and reads approximately 100 degrees.

The highest point recorded yesterday was 100 degrees, one point higher than the previous day's mark of 99 between 2 and 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

A government thermometer in the railway depot at Fullerton reached a high of 101 yesterday afternoon.

STROUP, ROBB STAGE DEBATE NEXT THURSDAY

Upton Sinclair's EPIC plan and its relationship to the Roosevelt recovery program will be the subject of two interesting debates to be held in Orange county in the near future.

The first debate will be held next Thursday, August 2, in the Greek theater in the Anaheim city park, and the second on Saturday, August 4 in Birch park, Santa Ana.

The Rev. Russell C. Stroup, pastor of the Community church at Newport Beach and candidate on three tickets for Congress, will hold the affirmative of the question: "Resolved, that Upton Sinclair with his Epic plan is in complete harmony with President Roosevelt and his program for national recovery."

The negative of the question will be upheld by W. E. Robb, former pastor of the Inyandale Federated Church of Des Moines, Ia., and recently pastor of the Christian church at Arlington, Cal. He is manager of the King for Congress club of Riverside county.

The debating ability of both these men is well known and it is believed the debates will prove of unusual interest. Robb has been an ardent supporter of the Roosevelt program and served as manager of the NRA in Riverside county. Stroup also has supported the Roosevelt program and is regarded as a leader in progressive thought of this district.

Stroup has been interested in the Epic plan in a vital way since its inception and introduced Upton Sinclair when he spoke at Irvine park.

The series of debates was suggested by Robb in a letter to Stroup. Robb's letter follows:

"First I want to commend you for offering your services to the people of this district in advocating ideas that you think should be adopted by the people of California in the coming election.

"Since you are a firm admirer of Mr. Sinclair and a strong believer in the EPIC plan and the logical candidate to represent the voters who believe in the plan, and since Mr. King whom I represent is a sincere believer in the Roosevelt policies and the New Deal, an open discussion of these matters between us would be of public interest and I believe would clarify these issues in the public mind.

"Three of the candidates running for Congress are attorneys and represent the old and dead past viewpoint. Yourself having spent many years in a humanitarian movement and in close touch with the ordinary man, and Mr. King as an editor who has written the stories of the births, marriages and deaths, of countless numbers of average people, and has the closest possible contact with the everyday man and his problems, you too, create a natural contest in which one of you, without a doubt, will be chosen to represent the people in the new Congress to convene in January.

"My dear Mr. Stroup, if you feel that this will not be inimical to your own interests and the interests that you represent will be glad if you will specify a time and place in one of the parks in Orange county where we may, in the near future, discuss with good will the issues which I trust will be enlightening to the voters."

"I am in receipt of your very friendly letter suggesting a debate between ourselves in Orange county on the subject of Sinclair's EPIC plan and its relationship to the recovery program of President Roosevelt. I think, with you, that a frank discussion on this issue would be helpful to the voters who are now supporting Sinclair, those who are opposing him, and particularly to those who are undecided.

"My confidence in you and the candidate you represent assures me that the discussion would be conducted in the spirit of good sportsmanship. We are both interested not in destructive personalities but in constructive proposals.

"As to the mechanics of the meetings, I suggest as chairman some well known Republican, who is interested in progressive ideas and well known throughout the county. I would also suggest that the affirmative speaker be limited to 20 minutes with a 10 minute rebuttal and the negative speaker to 20 minutes. There should be a question period following in which the people would have the opportunity to ask questions of either of us through the chairman."

DRYS OF SOUTHLAND ORGANIZE GROUPS

LOS ANGELES, July 28.—(UP)—Southern California prohibition leaders were pledged today to an undertaking of organizing strong precinct groups who will seek adoption of a state amendment next November, permitting local option in the sale of liquor.

Ten representatives from each assembly district in Southern California met at a mass meeting to discuss the campaign and pledge their support.

WASHINGTON

DOUBLE ACTION

A really huge operation in the battle against the forces of nature is being carried on by the government without being generally manifest to the public. This is the cattle-buying program of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in connection with the drought. It is a double-edged performance and has the purpose of killing two birds with one stone. It is, at the same time, an emergency relief effort and an attack on the hideous anomaly of want in the midst of plenty.

The problem was not so much how to get surplus into needy areas as how to get without dislocating the existing system and doing injury to normal business and upsetting markets. Distress was so great in some quarters, however, that it had to be attempted and the job fell to the aid of AAA when Congress, toward the close of the session, appropriated around $5,000,000, for drought relief.

Next, AAA drought experts realized that the plight of cattle raisers, with millions of head of dying cattle on their hands, demanded immediate action. AAA men put their heads together with FERA and worked out a plan. AAA would buy the cattle, FERA would slaughter them and distribute the meat to the needy.

AAA decided to use the machinery of the Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Animal Industry to handle the plan. The Bureau of Animal Industry has cattle inspectors all over the country. When an area has been designated by the drought experts as an emergency region, the cattle inspectors move in and start to buy cattle from farmers who want to sell.

Already, these inspectors have visited 101,755 farms in seven states. They have purchased 11 per cent of the cattle on those farms. Most of the purchases were made in the Dakotas, Minnesota and Texas. Of the 1,365,322 head of cattle bought that way, about 10 per cent had to be condemned as unfit for food purposes. The cost of these cattle is estimated at between seven and ten million dollars.

AAA's part of the job ends with the purchase of the cattle. As soon as the animals are bought, they become the property of FERA's Surplus Relief Corporation.

FERA, through its state and local relief organizations, ships the cattle from the farms to the nearest meat packing center. The principal markets to which cattle have been shipped are Chicago, Kansas City, East St. Louis, South St. Paul, Wichita, Omaha and Sioux City.

At these centers, the cattle are slaughtered and the meat canned, to be distributed among the needy next winter. The meat never comes into competition with meat that moves through the business channels, since it will be distributed free to people who otherwise would not buy any meat.

The packing firms, which slaughter and can the meat for the government, are paid a fee for their part of the work, but the meat remains government property.

HITCH

There is one point where the trick does not work so smoothly and the government finds itself competing with private business. That is in connection with the hides as part payment for their services.

But, unlike the meat, the hides are not kept off the market. They find their way to market almost immediately by the sudden oversupply. That serves only to show that the trick of carrying on such a large operation without competing with private business is not as easy as it looks.

TOUR

Cattle in drought areas which are not sent immediately to slaughter are saved by being transported to areas where there has been adequate rainfall and the pastures are still green. In this process, the animals take long railroad journeys and are unloaded in places a thousand or more miles from home. Trainloads of them from the plains of the Dakotas, Nebraska and Kansas are arriving daily in Virginia, Georgia, Maryland and other states where there is still feed for them.

The next problem which is being considered—shifting families from the localities where they have been rendered destitute and where there is no possibility, for some time to come, of their making a living—will not be so easy. There, government planners will come up against human inertia and the human will and are likely to encounter resistance. The dumb beasts have no say in the matter, but the people, if they behave according to precedent, are sure to assert their right to live where they please without interference, even if it involves them in certain misery. More suggestion of such a plan has already resulted in the receipt by the department of indignant protests.

KINGFISH

Reports from Louisiana say that, because of his high-handed methods in pushing punitive measures through the legislature, all of Senator Huey Long's enemies there have combined to crush him. If they are no more successful than they were in the Senate, Huey will not have to worry.

They all combined to get David D. Moore confirmed as collector of internal revenue for the District of Louisiana, and the nomination was even reported favorably, but, when Congress adjourned, the Moore nomination was listed among those which had failed of confirmation. Huey had accomplished this almost single-handed against the efforts not only of "combined" enemies but of former friends.

NEW YORK

By James McMullin

CONTROL

The shadow of a Federal Monetary Authority lurks behind Senator Thomas' proposal to nationalize the Federal Reserve Banks. Even though the Goldborough bill got through last session the project for a "supreme court of finance"—fathered by Frank Vanderlip—is a lively ghost.

The informed predict that Uncle Sam will be exercising much tighter control over money and credit before another year rolls past. The only chance they see to head this off is the election of a thoroughly conservative Congress which could be trusted to view with disfavor any such sweeping change in the financial system.

The big New York banks take to the idea of a Monetary Authority (or nationalizing the Federal Reserve) as a cat takes to swimming. But they know Senator Thomas is no puny adversary—especially as he is once more working closely with the Committee for the Nation—so they are pulling hard for a political flood that will wash away their worries.

CURRENCY

Keen New York observers interpret one phase of the silver policy as an indication that the government is laying the foundation for a monetary structure under full federal control.

They point out that week by week the number of silver certificates in circulation is increasing. So far this has meant no net increase in the total volume of currency outstanding, but the silver certificates are tending to replace Federal Reserve notes and National Bank notes of the smaller denomination and thereby reduce the latter from circulation.

This shift hasn't yet reached important proportions but it easily might in the next few months. Silver certificates are issued by the government; Federal Reserve and National Bank notes by the banks. The more federal currency is substituted for bank currency the easier it would be to bring about a government monopoly of the money issue privilege. That's one of the main objectives of Senator Thomas and his New York associates.

OUTLOOK

Business improvement in the last few weeks gives impetus to New York hopes for enduring gains this fall. Some experts believe that the soundest base in five years has been laid for an autumn rise—though they admit that price factors can still throw monkey-wrenches.

A number of New York authorities agree with NRA Economist Leon Henderson that payment of personal debts is an important factor. There's plenty of evidence that a large volume of income hitherto diverted to meet depression obligations will soon be freed for the purchase of consumer goods, which will help greatly to build up demand. Completion of auto installment contracts this fall will also be good news to the stores.

The only jarring note is the drought situation. New York is beginning to take it very seriously. The decline in farm demand for autos, farm machinery, mail order goods, etc., may largely cancel the pickup in industrial centers.

RAILS

Informed sources rate rails the weakest link in the recovery chain at present. Traffic is bound to drop because of the drought and this loss of income coincides with increased wages and pension bills. Rates are secondary. One observer comments that what the roads can charge for hauling freight is trivial compared to what freight they will have to haul.

A number of roads which have stalled off reorganization so far may yet have to go through the wringer before they can get back to solid ground. Joseph B. Eastman's dream of direct public ownership of railroads doesn't look as remote as New York would like to have it.

PAY

Wall Street learns that some of its ex-employees are doing well for themselves in government jobs. The cases of men who used to make $50 or $75 a week working for bank affiliates or holding public bonds and are now drawing $5000 a year on the payroll of Public Works and other administrations make a lot of buzz.

SMARTER

The transcontinental airlines are quietly planning to fix it so you can travel from coast to coast between dinner and breakfast this fall. All three expect to make a new high speed planes out of their levers.

One-TWA—ballyhooed an overnight service to the coast some months ago. You don't hear much about it now because the line figures it would be smarter to let Postmaster General Farley

REALTORS ASK RETENTION OF JOSEPH SMITH

In a resolution passed by unanimous vote yesterday at their luncheon meeting at James cafe, the Santa Ana Realty board urged Governor Marrian to retain Joseph P. Smith of Santa Ana as state real estate commissioner "because of his very exceptional record in office."

Earl Hawks, member of the board, said that the resolution was presented because the Santa Ana real estate group felt that his many successful years as a real estate agent, and his record of integrity in the office entitled him to continuance in office.

W. B. Martin, vice president, presided at the meeting in the absence of Stanley Goode and presented Douglas D. Patterson, escrow officer of the Reliance Title company, as the speaker. Patterson discussed the co-operation necessary between the agent and brokers for the good of all parties concerned in a transaction.

Y. M. C. A. PROGRAM TO GET UNDER WAY NEXT MONDAY

The Y. M. C. A. program for August is being started next week with the hope of getting done in the next five weeks much of the service which was projected for the entire summer. It was announced today by Secretary R. C. Smedley, who released the schedule of events as planned for the coming weeks.

Beginning Monday morning at 9 o'clock, there will be a swimming class for boys and girls who class as "beginners." Both boys and girls will be admitted to this class provided they have under 13 years of age and cannot swim. The class will meet Monday, Wednesday and Thursday mornings. At 9:30 o'clock on the same three mornings, there will be a class for boys and girls who class as "advanced" swimmers. Boys and girls 13 years of age or under will be eligible for this class provided they can swim across a pool in acceptable fashion. They will be taught swimming and diving for style and speed.

Each afternoon except Friday the pool will be open to boys for a swim between 2 and 4:30 o'clock. On Friday afternoon boys will have from 1:30 to 3 o'clock and girls will have from 3 to 4:30 o'clock for swimming. During these afternoons there will be no instruction given, but life guards will be on duty and careful supervision will be provided.

Women's classes will be scheduled as at present, with gymnasium and swimming on Tuesday and Friday mornings at 9:30 o'clock and swimming on Tuesday and Thursday evenings at 7:15 o'clock.

New members may enter any of the classes for women of children at any time. Thomas Coffin, swimming instructor, will be available during August, but not longer, and those who put off starting their swimming instruction until later are likely to be disappointed, Smedley said.

Men's special classes are continued through the month, with general swimming instruction and games on Monday evenings, and water life-saving instruction on Wednesday evenings.

do the rest of the promoting—and also drag down any resultant credit for The Party.

DIFFERENT

Don't expect the President's order for an investigation of foreign airmail to bring on anything like February's domestic contract ruckus. They're quite different pigeons.

For one thing the State Department appreciates Pan American Airways' value as a good-will agent in South America. For another you can't use Army planes to carry the mail through 23 foreign countries.

SIDELIGHTS

The Baker Board's frown on a unified air force is okay with the aircraft people. . . . What's it matter who runs the show so long as somebody buys planes? . . . The Stock Exchange is still equipped to handle 4,000,000 share sales and makes no move to cut down on personnel. . . . Wall Street comments that it's no crime to hope.

G. O. P. CANDIDATE IS VISITOR HERE

JOE STEELE OPENS NEW SHOP MONDAY

Joe Steele, popular Santa Ana barber, will open for business Monday in his new location, 417 North Main street.

Steele has been operating a barber shop in Santa Ana for the last 13 years. He originally was located in the Rossmore hotel on West Fourth street and seven ago moved to his present location next to the old post office building on North Sycamore street.

Due to the fact that a new store will occupy his present quarters Steele was forced to move. His new shop on North Main street will be one of the most modern in Orange county. All the latest equipment will be installed and a four-chair shop will be operated.

John Bush, who has been with Steele for the last several months, will make the change with his employer, William Johnson, well known in Santa Ana and Orange county, will take over one of the chairs in the new shop. A fourth man will be added within the next few days, according to Steele.

GARDEN GROVE BOY, 14, HELD FOR THEFT

Two Garden Grove lads had a gay time in Santa Ana last night but their bubble burst today when one of the boys was arrested by sheriff's officers and taken to the county jail for burglary.

The 14-year-old youth admitted that he broke into the home of H. C. Custer of Garden Grove yesterday and stole nearly $5 in small change from a water glass. Unknowingly, he left tell-tale fingerprints on the glass.

With the money in his pocket, the boy invited a friend and came to Santa Ana. They borrowed a car, went to a show, had a fine dinner and enjoyed themselves generally.

By HARRY GRAYSON

Henry Louis Gehrig, now rolling toward his 1450th consecutive game, makes all other baseball men appear to have been made of putty.

The best previous record was Everett Scott's 1367. Gehrig's may never be broken.

Nothing stops the Yankee first baseman. He has played with broken and chipped bones, had sinus and colds, and bounced right back after being knocked out by pitched balls.

The other day in Detroit Gehrig had such a cold between his shoulder blades that he scarcely could swing a bat, but prevailed upon Joe McCarthy to permit him to take one turn—his first as a roadster man—and singled to launch a four-run rally.

Gehrig spent the following afternoon "bunting" balls against the left field fence.

TRIPLES FOLLOW KAYO

"Hungry Lou" performed for several weeks this season with as much of his big toe chipped, knocked unconscious for 10 minutes by a pitched ball in an exhibition game at Norfolk, he banged out three triples the next day at the Yankee Stadium.

Five minutes were required to bring Gehrig to when Earl Whitehead beamed him in 1932, but he finished the contest.

Gehrig was commencing to believe that he was to go on and on without another mishap of any kind when that happened, for he slipped through the 1931 and '32 campaigns without a scratch.

HANDICAPPED TO 379

Gehrig suffered most in preserving his phenomenal record for durability in 1930, when he chipped a bone in his left elbow in the first game of the grind, and layed throughout the entire season with a sore arm. To make matters worse, he broke the little finger of his right hand in the last two weeks.

The throbbing whip and proud dinky handicapped the husky German to such an extent that he hit only 379. It was just as well for enemy pitchers that he wasn't all in one piece.

Gehrig submitted to two operations that fall. The "mice" were removed from his precious throwing arm, and an attempt was made to straighten the little finger. The latter remains crooked.

Hungry Lou stuck in there throughout 1929 with bad tonsils, which he lost no time in losing with the sound of the closing gong.

YANKER FOR MERKLE

Gehrig hurt his right shoulder badly in bumping into the shade of the Boston dugout in chasing a foul in 1926, and had to be treated by a physician daily to remain in the thick of things in July, 1927.

He breezed through 1928, the Yankees' third straight pennant-

winning year without as much as a dab of iodine, however.

Gehrig has participated in every game played by the New York club since the late Miller Huggins assigned him to first base in June, 1925.

"The start of my record came close to being held up late that season," beams Hungry Lou. "Hug was not yet convinced that I could hit left-handers, so started Fred Merkle against Whitehill in Detroit. But I got in when a right-hander finished for the Tigers."

"I blessed right-handers in my early days. Now I blast both right and left-handers."

TOO SOFT FOR IRISH?

Joe Mulligan, a young right-hander plucked from the campus of Holy Cross by the Boston Red Sox, may win another season or two give the Celts something to cheer about in baseball.

Anything a pitcher with a tag like Mulligan does these days ought to be news in a game in which the McGinnity's and Donovans have given 'way to the Gomezes and Ostermuellers.

Irish names are becoming as scarce among the stars of baseball as they are in boxing.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

Joe Dimaggio, San Francisco outfielder, is said to be ready for the big jump to the majors. . . . He may wear a Cub uniform. . . .

Gene Mako, intercollegiate tennis champion, also is a whiz at table tennis. . . . Jimmy Phelan, University of Washington coach, is opposed to the new and slimmer football. . . . He says it is much more difficult to punt and pass. . . . Dutch Fehring, former Purdue griddler, has been bundled off to the Texas League by the Chicago White Sox. . . . That old guy who was supposed to be washed up this year—Waite Hoyt—is turning in some mighty nice pitching for the Pittsburgh Pirates. . . . As fast as Babe Herman buys bats, and he purchases them by the dozen, his teammate, Billy Herman, breaks them. . . .

Dalton tried to score but was cut off at the plate on Sears' perfect throw-in. Edmundson bounced an infield single to Preble, putting Callahan on third and Clemens was intentionally passed, filling the pathways. Sackett, a dangerous batsman, forced Edmundson at third on an easy chance to Young.

Singles by Peavy and Lake put Long Beach in position to score again in the fourth without effect. When DeBusk walked Callahan, first to face him in the fifth, Manager Bill Cole waived DeBusk out and Coates to the rubber. Long Beach went hitless the rest of the way, only one batsman getting on base.

Huntington Beach at Santa Ana; Westminster at Long Beach; Olive at Torrance; Anaheim at Fullerton.

Cramming four timely hits into the sixth inning, Santa Ana hurled the lowly but much-feared Long Beach Admirals, 3-0, in a National Night Ball league game at Long Beach last night.

The Stars picked up all their runs in that frame, and they clattered across the plate with two away. After Denney had grounded out, Francis Conrad singled infield and Ed Daley doubled sharply over first base, sending Conrad to third. George Preble fouled out but Rod Bañard beat out a high hopper to second, scoring Conrad, and Tommy Young rifled a triple to left-center that drove both Daley and Bañard home.

Bobby Dalton, starting pitcher for Long Beach, was lifted at this point in favor of Deene Downer who retired Sears on strikes for the final out.

Ira DeBusk started for Santa Ana, retiring with the count 0-0 in the fifth. Jim Coates got credit for the victory.

DeBusk got along well enough until the third when Long Beach loaded the bases. Dalton was safe on Daley's error and Callahan dropped a double into right.

SOOTHSAYER TELLS NET DOPE

But Gets His Information Out of Tennis Almanac

SAYS DOUBLES CRUCIAL PLAY

BY HENRY M'LEMORE (United Press Staff Correspondent)

WIMBLEDON, England, July 28.—(UP)—Being desirous of contributing the most reliable information on the probable outcome of athletic events, I approached the swami Bakabaka on the matter of the Davis Cup matches between England and America.

"How about the Davis Cup?" I asked.

"Certainly," the swami said. "I'll get my hat."

I explained it was not that kind of a cup I was referring to. In some detail I described the event, who was playing, and so forth. I said I would like to know how the matches were coming out, so I could inform people ahead of time.

"Of course," he said. "It will cost a pound." I paid him the pound, and he told me to come back later. When I came back, he told me Perry would beat Wood, Shields would beat Perry, Austin would beat Wood. He added that Austin and Shields were even. There seemed to be some doubt as to whether I had got my money's worth on the last selection, so I asked him about the doubles.

"That was not in the book," he said.

After thinking that over, I asked the swami if he would tell me how he reached his conclusions. He said he would—five shillings. Nothing is too good for the clients, so I paid. He handed me a book marked: "Ayes Lawn Tennis Almanac—price, five shillings."

I thanked him and left. Later, when I had an opportunity to study the book, I developed the following facts:

Perry has beaten Wood in two out of three meetings.

Shields has beaten Perry twice. Austin has beaten Wood once. Shields and Austin have each beaten the other twice.

That, of course, gives England two matches, America one, with one even. And as for the doubles—they were not in the book.

Mickey Cochrane lacks capable substitutes. If one of the Tiger regulars was injured, the outfit might be in a bad way. That would be especially true if the player happened to be Charley Gehring, Cochrane himself, or "Goose" Goslin.

Goslin is the only outstanding outfielder with the Tigers.

Cochrane has worked wonders all around. His infield ranks with the best in the league. He has organized his pitching on a winning basis. There is no reason why the young giant, Schoolboy Rowe, should not take his place among hurling luminaries.

Above all other factors is the hustle of the Detroit athletes. They seem to have killed off their old defeatism.

I recognize the seriousness of the Detroit opposition, as Cochrane has a band of young men to whom being in the chase is a novelty. They have yet to taste the financial sweets of a world series, and they are hot for it.

But in the hard run down the home stretch give me the veteran, the man with poise.

Cleveland continues to roar along. I deplore greatly the attacks on Walter Johnson as a manager. The Big Train has turned in a fine job with the material on hand. He has no better a ball club than the standings indicate.

Another first-rate outfielder would help.

The Red Sox and Senators have fared remarkably well in the face of much misfortune, and Rogers Hornsby is to be congratulated for his showing with the Browns.

I have an idea that the Senators will yet work themselves back into a contending position. Despite all handicaps, Joe Cronin has his outfit batting for all it is worth.

Cleveland, Boston, Washington or St. Louis may not stand one-two at the wire, but each is likely to have much to say about the race.

Berkeley Bell In Surprise Victory

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 28.—(UP)—Berkeley Bell, Texas, raised himself from four years of comparative obscurity to first-net rating today after his defeat of Bryan Grant, Atlanta, in the finals of the Seabright bowl tennis play. Bell won 6-7, 6-1, 6-3, 2-6, 6-4.

NURSING RACE LEAD

NEW YORK, July 28.—(UP)—The Yankees came home in first place today, after one of the most "death-defying" road trips of their career.

Battered and wounded, their outfield stripped of three regulars—Ruth, Combs and Chapman—they went through the gamut of despair; until, with half the club laid out with injuries, they unexpectedly started winning.

In the closing series they got back to the top and hold it now by two percentage points.

Detroit and Cleveland more than held their own against the Eastern invaders, the Tigers winning 10 and losing 6, the Indians winning 11 out of 16. The West outplayed the East on the invasion capturing 37 and losing 27 for an average of .578.

Yesterday the New York Giants stretched their lead in the National league to three games, whipping the Phillies in the series opener, 6-3.

Williams, N. Y., July 28.—(UP)—Craig Wood, long hitting pro from Deal, N. J., shot sensational sub-par golf today to gain a 6 up advantage over Densmore Shute of Philadelphia as they reached the halfway mark in their 36-hole semi-final match in the National P. G. A. golf tournament.

Wood shot a 31, five under par, on the second nine for an 18-hole aggregate of 65, seven under par. Schute had a 70, two under par. Wood had eight birdies.

Manager New York Yankees (As told by Harry Grayson)

NEW YORK, July 28.—I am not saying that the Yankees will knock every other club over in the remaining weeks, but I do believe that the club which beats Col. Jacob Ruppert's New York team will win the American league pennant.

It may be that the Detroit Tigers have the necessary equipment, but at this time I doubt it.

Years ago, before the season started, every one of the eight managers said that he was going to cop that one flag. That old-fashioned conversational stuff no longer interests the fans, or has any effect on the opposition.

Nowadays the men who run the teams are more rational about those things, and those who support the game, it seems to me, are more reasonable. They know there is only one pennant in each circuit, and that there must be seven also rans.

Perhaps the New York club's principal advantage over Detroit, our principal rival at this stage of the campaign, lies in our reserves. That's a big pull over the long haul.

Mickey Cochrane lacks capable substitutes. If one of the Tiger regulars was injured, the outfit might be in a bad way. That would be especially true if the player happened to be Charley Gehring, Cochrane himself, or "Goose" Goslin.

Dressen Of Nashville To Pilot Reds?

CINCINNATI, July 28.—(UP)—Although reports from Nashville indicate Charlie Dressen, manager of the Nashville club, will succeed Bob O'Farrell as boss of the Cincinnati Reds, officials of the Cincinnati club refused to confirm the likelihood of immediate change.

Larry McPhail, general manager of the Reds, returned last night by airplane from Nashville where he conferred with Fay Murray, president of the Nashville club.

Meanwhile O'Farrell intended to confer with McPhail in an effort to hold his job, as he does not believe he has been given a fair trial.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 28.—(UP)—The Nashville Tennessean said today that Charlie Dressen, manager of the Nashville club, immediately will become manager of the Cincinnati Reds, in exchange for three or four players.

Dressen said last night the deal had not been consummated.

Burning up the course on the homeward nine, Margaret Bushard of the California Country club won low gross honors in the annual women's mid-summer golf tournament at the Willowick club here Friday.

Mrs. Bushard took a 43 going out but peppered par on the way back, requiring only a 38 for an 18-hole aggregate of 81. The Los Angeles woman was in her best form.

Mrs. Kenneth Carter, sensational San Gabriel golfer who figured prominently in many of the big winter tournaments in Southern California, scored a gross 83, tying Mrs. C. A. Rife of Palos Verdes for second place. Mrs. Carter and Mrs. Rife shot 83's last year in tying for first.

Two Santa Ana Country club stars, Mrs. J. L. McFadden and Mrs. Homer Robinson, placed three-four. Mrs. McFadden took an 88, Mrs. Robinson an 89.

Forty-eight competed in the all-day event, and 11 different Southern clubs were represented.

Other winners in Class A were Mrs. C. A. Rife, low net, 83-8-75; Mrs. George Shidler, Palos Verdes, second low net, 90-13-77; and a three-way tie for third low net between Mrs. J. L. McFadden, 86-8-78; Mrs. Dot Dodson, Lakewood, 90-12-78, and Mrs. Helen Whitmore, Victoria, 91-13-78.

Class B—Low gross, Mrs. Edith Maxwell, Hacienda, 93; first low net, Mrs. Chas. Chapman, Willowick, 86-20-75; second low net, Mrs. Mary Adams, Willowick, 96-19-73; third low net, Mrs. Jack Potts, Hacienda, 100-22-78.

Then led by 2 games to 1. Perry held his own service in the fourth game to boost his lead to 3 to 1. The crowd accorded him the loudest applause.

Perry broke again in the fifth game and led 4 to 1. This was a sensational game in which the crowd was rebuked for having cheered when Wood double-faulted.

Perry swept the sixth game at love, Wood's touch apparently was hopelessly gone. Sidney rallied, however, to take the seventh game with two great backhand shots and broke service with two forehand placements to pull up at 3 to 5 behind. Perry turned on the heat in the ninth game to capture the match.

NEW YORK, July 28.—(UP)—Heinie Manush of the Washington Senators continued to head the major league batting race, topping the American loop with a mark of .397, according to figures of games including Thursday released by Al Munro Elias.

Paul Waner of the Pittsburgh Pirates led the National league, topping Bill Terry of the New York Giants by four points with a mark of .363. Jimmy Fox of the Philadelphia Athletics led home run hitters in both leagues with 32, while Mel Ott of the Giants continued to lead the National with 24.

Jerome Dean, of the St. Louis Cardinals, led National league pitchers with 13 victories and 3 defeats for a mark of .356, while Vernon Gomez of the Yankees stayed at the top of the American with 16 won and 3 lost for .342.

The house of worship, built in Italian-Romanesque style, is located on Park avenue, adjoining property now occupied by the St. Mary's Episcopal church.

Appropriate ceremonies, set forth in the ritual of the church, will feature the opening services beginning at 8:30 a. m. with matins, intercessions and meditation, according to an announcement released by the Most Reverend P. Wise Clarkson, bishop of California of the denomination. From 10 to 10:45 a. m. there will be instruction in symbolism by the Rev. Mother Superior Elizabeth, of San Diego. At 11 a. m. there will be high mass, procession and sermon by Bishop Clarkson, officiating in his robes. A special service, between the hours of 4 and 4 in the afternoon will be devoted to the Stations of the Cross and the Seven Rays. The day's program of opening services will be brought to a close at 7 p. m. by vespers, solemn benediction, rosary and address.

Artistry of an high order is reflected in the design of the edifice as well as in the interior decorating, the whole of which may fittingly be called a veritable gem of ecclesiastical architecture.

Because of the romantic atmosphere of the interior of the church, enhanced by art treasures, predictions were voiced today that the temple undoubtedly will prove a mecca to hundreds of couples seeking a sanctuary for the marriage ceremony. In this connection, inquiries revealed that tenants of the church will not prohibit the remarriage of divorced persons.

According to an announcement posted at the gate leading to the church entrance, the new church, though called Catholic Episcopal, is non-papal, international, non-political, and an altar without any test barriers. It represents the historic succession from St. Peter of Antioch, where the followers of Christ were first called Christians. It is a House of Worship for all seeking Truth.

Its mission and functions are to work for the abolition of war, to teach the ancient wisdom, occult philosophy, modern science, the Kabala, and the great master truths, to promote inter-racial love and friendship, and to work for the abolition of all forms of oppression and prejudice, and to uphold freedom of thought.

Bishop Clarkson was a rector of the Episcopal church before joining the new faith. Besides preparing himself for the ministry, he has studied medicine and architecture. Because of the former accomplishment he was sent out as a medical missionary while a member of the Episcopal church. He served as a chaplain with the British forces at Gallipoli during the World war, carrying commissioned rank of captain. The command with which he was serving participated in some of the heaviest engagements during the war.

SPEAKER DEcriES WASTE OF WATER

COSTA MESA, July 28.—Water the most precious and necessary element for the subsistence of life, and a product that in California we do not know will continue to be easily produced proper quantities to supply the ever-increasing populace, is the most carelessly used of any of the things upon which we depend. It was pointed out by Dr. J. W. Wherry, manager of the Fairview Farms Water company, in a talk that he gave at the local Lions club luncheon program on Tuesday.

Thousands of gallons of water go down bathtub drains unnecessarily and other thousands are wasted in careless irrigation methods, he stated. A solution to go far toward the conservation of water here, and a project that would be timely, he stated, would be an educational program in the careful use of water. A round-table discussion followed the talk.

Visitors at the meeting were Edward F. Sedalla, Miss Edw. E. Rowland of Santa Ana; Will Jerome Jr. of Santa Ana; and H. M. McBride of Long Beach.

There was no hesitation now on his part. He said heartily, "Sure. Glad you decided to. When and where?"

"Tonight," the girl told him. "It's important."

There was the barest pause and then Dan said, "Of course, I've got a date—'til I break it. Shall I call for you around 7?"

It was arranged then. How simple it had been! Monnie hung up the receiver with fingers that shook a little. Sandra did not know how right she had been when she had advised Monnie to play a waiting game with Dan Cardigan. The very fact that she had held him at arm's length for a month had awakened his interest anew. Now she determined with all her heart to fight for him.

Sandra had once said with her air of knowing all about it, "A woman can have any man she wants if she really sets her mind on it." Of course when Sandra had said that she had been thinking only of herself. She had not meant the words to apply to anyone else.

Monnie felt more than unusually self-conscious when she explained to her mother that she had an engagement with Dan Cardigan that night.

"But I thought—" Mrs. O'Dare had the evening paper in her hand, folded back to Miss Anstice's social column. The words leaped at Monnie.

"Among this evening's guests will be Mr. Charles Eustace, Mr. Daniel Cardigan Jr."

"He was invited to that party," Monnie said lightly. "He's just not going."

"Not?" Mrs. O'Dare's pretty, anxious face looked up, looked away. "Oh, I see!"

A moment later she said gently, "I'm glad you're having a little fun, lovely. You've been so quiet lately. It isn't quite fair—you not having a good time when the rest of those girls do." Her gesture embraced Sandra and all Sandra's crowd.

"Don't you worry about me," Monnie's voice was gay. Indeed she felt singularly light-hearted. "I'm all right."

"But you're young," fretted the mother. "You need your chance Monnie. Don't think I don't know what working in that store all day means—helping to run this house—everything. It's not exactly a girl's job. It's too much for you." She bent over the paper to hide the sudden rush of moisture that had sprang to her eyes.

Monnie laid her smooth young hand over the worn one. "You're not to worry, I said. Everything's fine. Everything's splendid!"

She sang as she dressed, little snatches of dance tunes. It was enough tonight to be young, to be alive, to have a bright glimpse of that elusive thing—happiness. When at 7 a motor horn sounded and she heard Dan's deep voice an instant later, conferring with Mark on the veranda, she could have wept for sheer joy.

"Sandra's going to eat me alive for this," Dan told her, helping her into the car.

"She's for what?" Monnie pretended utter innocence. Her candid eyes implored him to share the secret.

"On, that big racket she's throwing tonight," Dan said carelessly. "They'll be one man short, that's all."

"Oh, really?" Monnie frowned thoughtfully.

"Doesn't matter a bit," Dan grinned down at her. "To me, that is. I had fear at Dad's office, call her up and say I was yanked out of town—on important business. Good joke." With his free hand he shook a cigaret from the paper packet and somehow managed to light it.

"Sigh! be awfully mad at me," Monnie informed him, "if she finds out. Her eyes were lmpid, guileless."

"Nuts!" said Dan inelegantly. "She can't run me. Let her be mad. Tell you what, Monnie, she's too bossy for me. No matter what Mother says—"

"That's what I wanted to talk to you about, Dan," said Monnie in the gentlest voice imaginable. "I think it's about time we came to some decision about our—our affairs. There's a good deal of talk

ART GROUP AT LAGUNA BEACH INCORPORATED

LAGUNA BEACH, July 28.—Proceedings looking toward making the Laguna Beach Festival of Arts association a permanent organization, featured a well attended meeting of business and professional men held yesterday afternoon at the chamber of commerce offices when in addition to adopting articles of incorporation there was an election of a board of directors and an executive committee. The newly elected executive committee will meet at 5 o'clock this afternoon for the purpose of electing officers of the association.

Two well known boosters for the undertaking, Andrew S. Hall and John Jehle declined to accept nominations to the executive committee because of press of other matters taking their entire time. It also was intimated that Dr. Luther F. Mallow would not be in position to serve, his time being taken up with duties as councilman and his business interests.

Following are the directors of the organization: Henry S. Mackay, Ajax Wolf, John R. Jahraus, Arthur J. Stead, Lloyd Sells, John Jehle, Roy Peacock, Gene Douglas, Richard M. Mariner, Roy Ropp, Dr. Vincent P. Carroll, N. E. West, P. D. Conover, H. C. Fletcher, G. C. Wright, C. M. Hathaway, Wayne Johnson, Dr. David R. Hoffmann, W. C. McCullough, Harold Reed, William J. Hodges, Gene Douglas, Dr. George K. Brandriff, William Riddell, Mary Rohm, Dr. Luther F. Mallow, Dr. Earl J. Repine, Betty Repine and Mrs. Mary Lou Forest.

The following were named to the executive committee, which body was granted to take over the active management of the association's affairs: Captain George A. Portus, Dr. George K. Brandriff, John Gibson, Roy Ropp, Perry McCullough, Gene Douglas and Charles Kaichen.

Roy Ropp, representing the Laguna Art association, reported that there was a willingness on the part of that body of artists to cooperate with the Festival of Arts association in making the undertaking a success. The artists, however, insisted upon the exclusive right to name a jury to pass upon paintings accepted for display in the art salon, scheduled to

CHAPTER XVII

Her voice over the telephone sounded small and clear. "It's Monnie, Dan." She could almost hear the intake of breath at the other end of the line.

"Monnie! That's great! But you said you wouldn't."

"I know I did." She bit her lip to keep it from trembling. How absurd it was to behave like this! "I changed my mind. I want to see you, Dan."

There was no hesitation now on his part. He said heartily, "Sure. Glad you decided to. When and where?"

"Tonight," the girl told him. "It's important."

There was the barest pause and then Dan said, "Of course, I've got a date—'til I break it. Shall I call for you around 7?"

It was arranged then. How simple it had been! Monnie hung up the receiver with fingers that shook a little. BOOK REVIEWS

By MARY BURKE KING

Finley Wren by Philip Wylie, published by Farrar & Rinehart. "Finley Wren" is the history of the character Finley Wren. The full title and subtitle is: "Finley Wren. His notions and opinions together with a haphazard history of his career and amours in these moody years, as well as sundry rhymes, fables, distiches, and literary misadventures. A novel in a new manner."

The novel is a character novel. It presents a character who, in spite of disclaiming that he is out of the ordinary, is certainly not typical. The figure portrayed as this individual Finley Wren is widely different from other individuals. He is a genius, gifted with imagination, sympathy, virility, innate powers which crop out again and again surprising his friends. And that was part of Finley Wren's charm.

Philip Wylie purports to have met Finley Wren in a speakeasy. The two men spent the three succeeding days together. Starting it in the speakeasy Wren tells Wylie his story. Finley Wren takes Wylie with him to the Dwyers on a week-end party. Although there are many beautiful women at the Dwyers and diverting entertainment Wylie found that the study of Wren was the most interesting thing at hand for him to do.

There is much originality in the book. There is some excellent writing. But it is naturalistic and at times so disgusting that it diverges from the main point of the book.

The book is divided into ten sections, distinguished by the time which each section covers. All except the last one took place on the week end. The significance of the last should be particularly noted, for it is of a contact with Wren which took place some months after the other events.

Wylie had thought that he had found Finley Wren at the peak of his powers, of his individuality. That after the events recorded he would submerge into the average. But not so. One evening he called Wylie and from the one telephone call the reader gathers that Wren would always remain the same, the same enthusiasm, the same untrammelled genius, would always have the same charm of surprise.

How Odd of God by Lewis Browne, published by The Macmillan Company.

The book, "How Odd of God," fully lives up to its claim to be an introduction to the Jews. Mr. Browne tells in his book of a village pastor from northern Wisconsin who visited the Jewish exhibit in the Hall of Religions at Chicago's "Century of Progress."

When he learned that his guide was a full-blooded Jew he confessed: "I have been preaching the Gospel for 30 years and I have often mentioned the Pharisees; but until now I never knew what a Pharisee looked like. When my congregation asked me whether there were any Pharisees left, I told them I had heard there were some in New York."

Probably there are not many people who could be classed with the Wisconsin pastor, though at that he may have known more about the Jews than some people do. Lewis Browne's theses are always ably presented. This book has come out at a time when Jew and Gentile, all over the world, have been aroused to a new interest in the Jews by what has happened in Germany.

In the book the author tells how they have survived, he expounds on Jewish and Gentile seclusion and the curious result of the waning of seclusion, in which there is a lesson for persecutors everywhere. He has a chapter on what Jews are supposed to be and what they are and, in conclusion, he suggests means of bridging the age-old schism between the Jew and the Gentile.

Mr. Browne's description of the effect of events in Germany on the Jewish people is a disturbing piece of writing. It is powerful and tragic.

"We are afraid," he says of the Jews, "and with good reason. If such a thing could happen in Germany, why can it not happen elsewhere. After all, the Germans are not very different from other Gentiles...today we are drawing together again. Jews who had drifted so far from the field that they seemed altogether lost, are now of a sudden returning...all of us, the returned prodigals no less than those who never wandered, are now proclaiming, even obtruding, our Jewishness...therein lies the deepest guilt of our persecutors. They harry us into living lives that are cramped and apprehensive. They will not let us choose our interests as other men may choose them. They will not let us do our daily tasks with whole hearts and single minds. Whether we be measurers of stars or gatherers of rags, our first thought must always be that we are Jews. And this is a great evil. The consciousness of one's birth should be at most a subtle rhythm in one's innermost being; but with us it is made instead a confusing roar. Wherever we turn, it blares in our ears, so that we are moved to shut in the hope of drowning it out. That is what we are doing today."

Modern Poets

By MISS BEULAH MAY

Here are two poems of my own on very different themes.

WHEN MOTHERS SING THEIR BABES TO SLEEP

O Mary was a mother with many things to do,

With bread to make and coats to mend and all her house to keep,

But she never was too weary before the day was through

To sit and rock a little boy and sing him off to sleep.

O Mary was a mother and she watched her lad grow tall.

She dreamed for him and prayed for him until her tears would start.

Though others came to worship him she loved him most of all.

And when he had to go away she pondered in her heart.

O Mary is a mother and she has her lad again,

And Heaven is a happy place there and not so far away.

She loves to watch the little homes, the friendly homes of men.

Where mothers sing their babes to sleep about the close of day.

THE CAPTAIN OF SAINT KITTS

Once a rover of the sea, captain of a barkentine schooner

Bearing chests of camphor wood and parrots from Azores,

How he stamped his wooden leg swearing like a pirate.

Strange, he scans an old gazette and smokes his pipe and snores.

'HERE COMES THE NAVY' TO SHOW FRIDAY

"Here Comes the Navy," Warner Bros.' smashing drama of Uncle Sam's jack-tars afloat, ashore and in the air, opens a week's engagement at the West Coast theater starting next Friday. It was announced today by Manager Lester J. Fountain, with James Cagney and Pat O'Brien in the starring roles.

Based on Ben Markson's exciting story which combines romance, rollicking comedy, rapid-fire action and breath-taking thrills, the picture is said to be one of the most tremendous productions ever put out by Warner Bros.

Cagney and O'Brien, two sea-men, are the bitterest of enemies. Jimmy having joined the navy just for a chance to get even with O'Brien who has knocked him out in a fistie encounter and cold his girl, a part played by Dorothy Tree. To add fuel to their hatred, Jimmy falls in love with a beautiful girl, Gloria Stuart, who turns out to be his enemy's sister.

Stirring scenes in the picture were filmed with the U. S. S. dirigible Macon, the Arizona, at the San Diego Naval Training station and at the navy yards at Bremerton, Wash. Besides a large cast, 3000 gobs take part in the picture. Others in the cast include Frank McHugh, Maude Eburne, Robert Barrat, William Robertson, Guinn Williams, Howard Hickman and George Irving.

The janitor's endeavors to patch up the romance force him into a series of escapades chock-full of laughs and adventure. The janitor is finally successful in bringing the romance to a happy conclusion.

'HANDY ANDY' WITH ROGERS, AT WEST COAST

Will Rogers is unroariously funny in his latest and greatest picture, "Handy Andy," which opened at the West Coast theater yesterday. It was announced today by Manager Lester J. Fountain.

Because of the popularity of Rogers' films, and because "Handy Andy" has been headlined as even greater than "David Harum," Manager Fountain has arranged for daily matinees which start at 2 p. m. each of the seven days the picture is scheduled to show. Continuous shows, starting at 1 p. m., will be screened Sunday, tomorrow.

In the picture, his wife, Peggy Wood, wants him to play — and he does, with resulting hilarious situations which go to make his funniest picture. When Will sells out his drug store, life gets complicated. First he raises pigeons, until they escape into the house. Then he tries golf, with screamingly funny results.

The climax comes when he goes with his wife to attend the New Orleans Mardi Gras. He refuses to attend the ball but later encounters a fellow druggist and his lovely girl friend, Conchita Montenegro. Mellowed by a few cocktails, he decides to attend the ball after all and choose a leopard skin costume.

A few more cocktails lends him courage to try an adagio dance with the lithe Conchita. Then the fun begins. His rough and tumble dance starts a fight that ends in a riot and results in a surprise ending.

Selected short subjects on the program include a new cartoon, "The Toy Shoppe," a sport reel, "The Fox Hunt," a screen song, "Love Thy Neighbor," a musical novelty with Abe Lyman and his band in "Tin Hat Harmony," and World News events.

RUGGLES COMEDY ENDS RUN TONIGHT

Judging by the spontaneous chuckles which frequently burst into howls of laughter, "Friends of Mr. Sweeney," Charles Ruggles' latest starring comedy, has been a complete success during its showing here, according to Manager Lester J. Fountain. The picture plays for the last times tonight at the Broadway theater.

The picture is said to be one of the most riotously funny pictures which has shown here for some time. The situation in which a meek mouse of a man turns into a ferocious lion, a devil with the women and the terror of the town, is unique enough to lead to a large number of laughable sequences.

Short subjects include a new Shirley Temple comedy, "Pardon My Pups," a Chic Sale oddity, "Little Feller," a Vince Barnett comic thriller, "Air Maniacs," with Frank "Spooks" Clark and Ron "Baldy" Wilson, stunt pilots, and Register World News events.

Tom Tyler Stars In Western Film

A story of the Western frontier which carries a delightful love story brings Tom Tyler to Walker's State theater screen next Friday and Saturday. It is "War of the Range," a story of conflict between frontier forces headed by Tyler's father on one side and Bull Harris on the other, with complications provided by Tyler's father's foreman, who is the silent partner of the leader of the opposing forces.

Short subjects on the bill for the week-end include a chapter of "The Perils of Pauline," a Mickey Mouse cartoon, "Puppy Love," a news reel and a comedy, "What to Do?"

"HANDY ANDY" ROGERS

AT BROADWAY SUNDAY

When a lass who loves a sailor is Alice Faye and the lad is Lew Ayres, it's good news to entertainment seekers who go to see the new picture, "She Learned About Sailors," which opens at the Broadway theater tomorrow for a four-day engagement.

New Joe Brown Film Is Booked

Joe E. Brown, popular screen comedian, plays the title role in "The Circus Clown," which will open soon at the West Coast theater, according to Manager Lester J. Fountain.

NEW LUDICROUS FARCE TO SHOW HERE SUNDAY

Built for laughs, the new picture, "She Learned About Sailors," will open at the Broadway theater tomorrow for a four day engagement. It was announced today by Manager Lester J. Fountain.

Fast moving, catchy and zippy without being sexy, the picture is a lively story of rollicking battleship jack-tars and of a girl who didn't want to fall in love but did and almost lost her man. The picture is tuned to the zestful pitch of carefree youth, contrasting romance with hilarious comedy, according to critics.

Atmosphere of the navy prevails with the "girl in every port" theme bringing about a distinct series of opportunities for riotous comedy. What matrimony means to a sailor is graphically shown in the film play.

Alice Faye, beautiful blonde, plays the part of a smart girl who sings in a night club in an Asiatic Oriental seaport. Lew Ayres, champion heart-breaker of the navy, falls for the fair Faye. Frank Mitchell and Jack Durant, America's greatest knockout vaudeville and musical comedy funsters, portray Lew's buddies.

The latter pair takes upon itself the task of regulating and straightening out Lew's romance with Miss Faye, thereby causing no end of ludicrous complications. The film is said to be tinged with spicy and zestful song numbers that promise to be real hits.

Plan 5 Operatic Performances For Week In November

LOS ANGELES, July 28.—Five operatic performances of the first rank will be given during the week of November 2 under the local management of L. E. Behmer, veteran impresario, and Gaetano Merola, director general. In conjunction with the San Francisco Grand Opera company, arrangements are being made by which the same artists, properties, scenery, ballet, chorus and orchestra will be used as in the northern city, thereby lessening the expense of importation of artists and equipment and insuring better performances owing to augmented rehearsals.

Chorus rehearsals are now under way for the presentation of "The Bartered Bride," to be sung in German, featuring Elizabeth Rethberg, Mario Chamlee, Marek Windheim, Louis D'Angelo and Alfredo Grandolfi; "La Tosca," sung in Italian, with Lotte Lehmann, Dino Borgioli, Grandolfi and D'Angelo; "Carmen," in French, with Ninon Vallin, Chamlee, Raymond Mariow and Windheim. "Mignon" will also be sung in French by Lehmann, Richard Cooke, Enzo Pinza, Windheim, Grandolfi and D'Angelo. "Coq d'Or" and "Secret of Suzanne" will be sung in English as a double bill, with Nelson Eddy, baritone, and Doris Kenyon, soprano featured in the latter work.

Gaetano Merola, Alfred Hertz, Wilfred Pelletier, Pietro Cimini and William Tyröler will be conductors, with the stage management under the hands of Armando Agnini and Andre Ferrier.

MURDER FILM AT BROADWAY

"Murder in the Private Car," the screen version of the amusing and thrilling play, "The Rear Car," will show at the Broadway theater starting Thursday. It was announced today by Manager Lester J. Fountain.

Abbeduto by Charles Ruggles and a romping cast, they throw the usual relation of cause and effect, to the winds and playing in a jumble of laughs and gasps, succeed in creating a brand of entertainment for those who can take their chillers.

Ruggles is a sort of caricature of all the sleuthing marvels of screenom's gloose-fleshers combined. He stalks sundry, interlocking menaces which threaten a young telephone operator, Mary Carlisle, who suddenly becomes an alleged heiress, and infallibly flouts the malevolent forces.

MUSICAL ROMANCE AND MYSTERY ON WALKER PROGRAM

A musical romance and a mystery play are combined on the mid-week bill at Walker's State theater, opening next Wednesday.

They are "Beloved," starring John Boles and Gloria Stuart, and "The Ninth Guest," with Donald Cook and Genevieve Tobin in the leading roles.

"Beloved" is the story of the lifetime of a struggling composer, covering the span of a century, from the cradle until the old man is seen at the last 96 years later. Incidental to the story are stirring pictures of important historical events in the growth of the United States.

Eight persons, friends, enemies and lovers included, trapped in a penthouse in New York at a strange dinner party, battle a hidden and ruthless foe in the mystery play. Fast action follows, with only two escaping alive. One of the guests at the dinner is the author of the fiendish scheme.

WESTERN THRILLER ENDS RUN TONIGHT

George O'Brien plays the last times in "Frontier Marshal," at Walker's State theater tonight. The fast-moving Western epic brings to the screen some of the exploits of Wyatt Earp, fearless and courageous peace officer of the old frontier days. The romance in the story centers about Irene Bentley, whose father is murdered, with the solution being worked out by her sweetheart.

Shorts on the program are "The Perils of Pauline," and Andy Clyde comedy, "Frozen Assets," and a Walt Disney Silly Symphony in color, "Old King Cole."

SHE LEARNED ABOUT SAILORS

Santa Ana to Welcome Pretty Bride from Riverside

When Emmett Seacord, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Seacord of Lemon Heights, last night claimed the hand of Miss Shirley Binford of Riverside, it was at a beautiful wedding in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Binford, 4094 Walnut street, Riverside.

The bride had chosen a pink and blue color scheme for the home rites at 8 o'clock, and the home was fragrant with flowers in those colors. In the living room was arranged an altar with palms and ferns, flanked by candles and crowned with a silver wedding bell. Miss Virginia Rogers, a cousin of the bride, gown in blue and wearing pink sweet peas, lighted the tapers and it was to the subdued radiance of candlelight that the young couple spoke their vows.

Miss Josephine McClaskey sang "I Love You Truly" (Bond) and "Because" (D'Hardelot) to piano accompaniment played by Miss Ruth Bates. Miss Bates continued the musical program with Wedding March from Lohengrin to which the bridal party entered the room. Miss Binford, given in marriage by her father, wore formal white satin fashioned with a train and with lace yoke and leg o' mutton sleeves. Her tulle veil was caught with orange blossoms and she carried bride roses, gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Miss Beatrice Binford, her sister's maid of honor wore larkspur blue taffeta with pink accessories including her arm cluster of rosebuds and sweep pens. Miss Pava Brand and Mrs. Leo Speck completed the bride's attendants and were gown in pink lace with blue accessories and carried bouquets of pink sweet peas. All wore the hand-carved coral bracelets which were Miss Binford's gifts to her bridesmaids.

Wilson Seacord of Lemon Heights assisted his brother as best man and Willard G. Staples ushered. Vows were taken before Dr. Egly, pastor of Calvary Presbyterian church, Riverside.

Mr. and Mrs. Binford and Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Seacord joined the bridal party for the reception hour. Mrs. Binford was gown in rose beige chiffon and Mrs. Seacord in delicate blue silk. Each wore a corsage of gardenias.

Three aunts of the bride, Mrs. W. J. Rogers, Mrs. George Wallace and Mrs. Edward Wallace, presided over serving cake, ices and punch after the bride completed the pretty rite of cutting her three-tiered wedding cake with its appropriate decorations.

When the young couple left on their honeymoon trip, Mrs. Seacord wore a smart suit in navy blue sheer wool with taffeta trimmings and blue accessories. They expect to make their home in Laguna Beach for the remaining summer months.

Mr. Seacord is a graduate of Santa Ana Junior college and his bride completed Riverside High school course in 1933.

There were many Riverside relatives and close friends attending the wedding. A number from this community were included among guests from out of town, who were Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Seacord, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Seacord, Miss Demaris Seacord, Miss Loyce Walden, Miss Betty Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Whitney, Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Putney, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nugent, Mr. and Mrs. Valmer Cochran, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. George Payton, Mr. and Mrs. Myron Sanders, Messrs Herbert Meyer, Richard Bradley, Henry Thier, Glenn Binford, Wilson Seacord, Willard Gould Staples and Dr. D. S. Binford.

Royal Neighbors

The gardens of the ranch home of Mrs. Ethel Manderscheid, south of Santa Ana, proved a cool retreat for members of Magnolia Circle, R. N. A. Shure, when they held an all day meeting.

In serving a covered-dish luncheon at noon and in other details of hospitality Mrs. Manderscheid had assistance of Mrs. Daisy Scott and Mrs. Tillie Manderscheid.

Plans were made for the next meeting, to be held all day Thursday, August 23, in Mrs. Daisy Scott's home in Modjeska canyon. Covered-dish luncheon will be served.

Thirty-one members of Magnolia camp R. N. A. headed by their oracle, Mrs. Pearl Laub, were in Long Beach Wednesday night attending a party given by Royal Neighbors of that city.

Approaching Wedding
Inspires Party on Birthday Date

Among interesting post-nuptial parties of the week, was that planned by Mrs. Hollis Jacobsen and Mrs. Ralph Rule as a compliment to the latter's sister, Miss Sarah Broderick, fiancée of Charles Mohnike of Huntington Park.

The party was an evening affair given in Mrs. Jacobsen's home, 728 1-2 East Chestnut street, and in reality served a double purpose. For it not only was a gift shower in honor of Miss Broderick's betrothal, but it also celebrated her birthday anniversary in delightful fashion.

While there was a session of games planned for entertainment, guests found equal pleasure in hemming tea towels and embroidering hot dish holders to be given to the bride-elect in addition to the array of lovely miscellaneous gifts.

Rainbows were suggested by the many flowers used, and the rainbow motif received further emphasis in other details of the evening, including the table appointments at the refreshment hour, and the refreshments themselves. Ice cream roll with heart center, and cakes baked by Mrs. George Sherry of Costa Mesa, a sister of Mrs. Jacobsen, and iced in rainbow tints, were served with coffee.

Miss Broderick is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Broderick, 1815 West Fourth street, and Mr. Mohnike is the son of Mrs. Carl Mohnike of Huntington Park.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Broderick were present for the birthday party and bridal shower, as were Mesdames Lois Pemberton, Jewel Pemberton, Nell Corning of Tustin, C. F. Mohnike of Orange; Lauraine Bowe of Los Angeles, John Holly, Leona Bowe, M. Crawford, Miss Irene Johnson, Miss Helen Cummings, and the hostesses and honor guest, Mrs. Jacobsen, Mrs. Rule and small son, Leland, and Miss Broderick.

Newlyweds Depart for Their Future Home
In Santa Maria

Santa Maria will be the home of Mr. and Mrs. Melton Ted Daniels, whose wedding was a pretty event of Sunday, July 22 in the David P. Botoff home, 539 South Cambridge street, Orange.

Mrs. Daniels was Miss Naomi Katz, daughter of Mrs. Mary Katz, Hesperian street, Santa Ana, and since recent announcement of her wedding plans, has been complimented at various pleasant parties.

The Botoff home was made a delightful scene for the wedding conducted by the Rev. George E. Waddie, pastor of Santa Ana Church of the Nazarene. Dahlias and asters in tones of orchid and yellow, were used effectively in decorations, and a musical program increased the charm of the occasion. Mrs. John Holly was at the piano and played Lohengrin's Wedding March, and also served as accompanist for Mrs. Davis, Anaheim soloist who sang "I Love You Truly."

Miss Katz wore a flat crepe ensemble in blue and peach, with which she carried bride roses and maidenhair fern.

During the reception which followed the exchange of vows, the bride cut her wedding cake which was served with ices. She and Mr. Daniels are deferring a honeymoon until later in the summer, and left at once for Santa Maria. Mr. Daniels operates a truck between Los Angeles and Bakersfield. His bride has been employed in the Tustin Hills packing house.

Guests at the wedding and reception were Mrs. Mary Katz and the Misses Lydia and Lois Katz of San Diego; Mr. and Mrs. Kate of San Diego; Mr. and Mrs. David P. Botoff and family, of Orange; the Rev. and Mrs. George E. Waddie, Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Cole, Miss Etta Cole, Santa Ana; Mr. and Mrs. Hunt, Arlington; Miss Anna May Hendricks, Hermosa Beach; Mr. and Mrs. Davis, Anaheim; Mr. and Mrs. John Holly, Tustin; Mr. and Mrs. Salazar, Los Angeles, and Mr. and Mrs. Davidson and son, Shafter.

Hostess Plans Shower
As Surprise to Honoree

Receiving a group of friends in her home, 1619 West Fourth street Wednesday evening, Miss Shirley Groover honored Miss Julia Hartley at a surprise shower. Miss Hartley is to be married in August to Donald Walker.

The game of "Hard Romance" introduced a clever series of contests. "Observation" was the second game played, with the prize for scoring high going to Miss Ethlyn Berkland. Miss Violet Johnson and Miss Catherine Hull scored first and second high at hearts.

For an especially pleasant interval, guests were grouped around the library table. Here a miniature bride and bridegroom stood beneath a potted umbrella from which dangled streamers with numbered hearts. These, together with verses read by each guest in turn gave Miss Shirley clues as to where shower gifts had been hidden. Packages proved to contain amber glassware for the set the bride-elect is assembling.

Furthering the soft tones suggested by the shower gifts were yellow and white appointments brought into use during the refreshment hour. Yellow blooms, white and orchid asters provided a floral background. Assisted by her mother, Mrs. W. E. Groover, and by Mrs. Orval Heaton, Miss Groover served apricot whip, angelfood, coffee and mints.

Invited to share the affair with Miss Groover and Miss Hartley were Mesdames Frank Musselman, Verald Selvide, Edward Story, Everett Johnson, George Berry, Allen Howell, John Taylor, Vork K. Robison, Orilla Snyder and the Misses Ethlyn Berkland, Esta Walker, Eliza Walker, Catherine Hull, Violet Johnson, Edith Leonard, La Dora Catherman, Wilma Patterson, Rosie Kaplan, Georgie Gale Pennock, Gladys Vest and Eunice Bright.

Micaiah Speaks The Truth

Text: I Kings 22:1-14
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for July 29.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

Kings and commoners, when they want to do some particular thing and have more or less made up their minds to do it, frequently seek advice. The counselor who advises them against it, no matter how wise or just his advice may be, is likely to get himself disliked for his pains, no matter how much the king or the commoner may have urged him to be frank.

Much of the time, when we seek advice, we want to have our own judgment confirmed rather than upset, and we tend to value our counselors somewhat according to whether they give us pleasant and favorable, or discouraging words.

Here, in our lesson, King Ahab of Israel had set himself upon a certain course. He wanted to regain Ramoth in Gilead, then in possession of the king of Syria.

He turned to Jehoshaphat, king of Judah, for help. Jehoshaphat was willing to give him assistance and to ally his people, his horses, and forces with those of Ahab, but he suggested that first of all it might be wise to inquire of the Lord.

I suppose that pagan peoples would have said, "consult an oracle." That was practically what it amounted to, for Ahab called in some hundreds of prophets who were ministers of pleasant words, rather than clear-sighted and honest advisers.

They sensed what Ahab wanted them to say, and they said it, telling him to go on up and fight for Ramoth, because the Lord would deliver it into his hands. Jehoshaphat apparently sensed

Brea

BREA, July 27.—Public hearing on the 1934-1935 budget for the Brea elementary schools will be held at the Laurel school building at 7:30 p. m. on August 6. Anyone interested in the budget will be privileged to attend.

Mrs. L. A. Hogue, Mrs. C. C. Jarvis, Mrs. C. R. McClure and Miss Lucy Craig are acting as jurors in the La Habra justice court this week.

Miss Dorothy Voorhies, principal at Laurel school, and Miss Dorothy Boyce, a teacher in the school entertained Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Fanning and Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Woodruff on Tuesday evening. The party had dinner at a Los Angeles cafe and later attended the musical at the Hollywood Bowl.

something rather unsound about it. He did not seem to have very great confidence in this group of prophets, and he wanted to know whether there was not still another whose judgment they might seek.

Ahab told him that there was such a man, Micaiah by name, but that he hated him and did not want to get his word, because Micaiah did not prophesy good things concerning him, but evil.

Jehoshaphat, king of Judah, was urgent about the matter, however, and Ahab sent to have Micaiah brought. Micaiah seems first of all to have mocked the false prophets and to have spoken to Ahab in much the same words.

Ahab apparently sensed the fact that Micaiah was mocking him, and then Micaiah dared immediately to speak out the truth, telling him that his armies would be scattered and that his own life would be lost.

Instead of listening to him, Ahab only turned to Jehoshaphat and said, "Did I not tell thee that he would prophesy no good concerning me, but evil?"

The two kings went up to battle, and it turned out as Micaiah had predicted. They suffered a most inglorious defeat. Jehoshaphat was killed in the battle, and Ahab, who had discarded his kingly robes, was killed by an arrow shot at a venture as he tried to escape.

Did Micaiah have divine insight into what was to happen? Possibly, but not necessarily. It does not always require more than the judgment of an honest and clear-sighted man to predict disaster when he sees the sort of men who are in control.

This story of truth-telling and tragedy has, manifestly, its lessons for our own time.

Come to Church

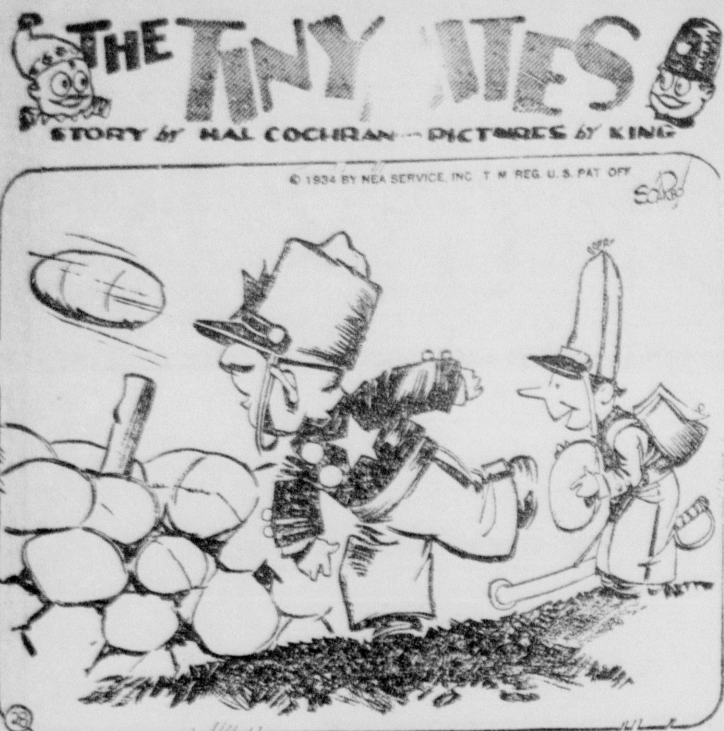

St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York

HERE are two kinds of success. One is material success in which temporary satisfaction faded to discontent with a desire for greater gains. But spiritual success—born of Faith and nurtured on Devotion—is everlasting, making your soul richer and your mind and heart more content. This is the success given to those who consider Church attendance one of Life's worthwhile interests. Do you?

St. Patrick's Cathedral, in New York, was constructed from 1858 to 1879, and is 6 centuries younger than most world famous cathedrals.

THE TINY MES
STORY BY MAL COCHRAN - PICTURES BY KING

"Oh, my," said Doty. "Those gumdrops will smack a Meanie if he stops one after we have thrown it, and it's sailing through the air."

"Just think what real fun it would be, if we could be on hand to see all of the mean old Meanies get a very sudden scare."

They dumped the gumdrops from the cart. "Hey, don't spread them too far apart," a Cheerful Chap said. "When we start, we'll want to throw them fast."

"I'll shortly show you how it's done, and then we'll start to have more, 'cause not so long will some fun. I wish that we had these few last."

Just then wee Goldy smiled and said, "I guess I'll eat these things instead of throwing them. I tasted one and, gee, but they are fine."

"You all can leave them into air, but I prefer to save my share. However, when you've thrown yours, don't come back and beg for mine."

A Cheerful Chap then seemed real sore. "However can we win this war, if we do foolish things like you suggest?" he loudly cried.

"If you are game to help us fight, just step right up. 'Twill be all right. But, if you're going to interfere, please stand way over there."

"Oh, I am sorry," Goldy said. "I'll throw mine, too, so go ahead."

LAGUNA BEACH COMMUNITY PLAYERS IS SEEKING SLOGAN

ANAHEIM, July 28.—The chamber of commerce is seeking a slogan to use on all letterheads and other stationary advertising the city and particularly the park. The public is being asked to assist in securing this slogan and suggestions will be received at the chamber office and turned over to the publicity committee.

The only rules governing submission of slogans is that they must be short and snappy and carry as the principal theme the city park. It was decided to use the park as the slogan theme and the Chamber of Commerce created the need for a slogan that would tell the world of the beauties of the municipal park.

The play, "A Character in the Crowd," a comedy written by Costello, well known stage playwright, will be staged here on the evenings of August 24 and 25 under direction of Joseph F. Rice, director of the department of dramatics, Fordham University, New York City, who also directs the Fordham University theater.

Rice has been directing the past three years at the Barbizon-Plaza and other art centers among major productions directed by him was a revival of Bulwer Lytton's "Richelieu" and Frederick Rath's "First Night."

Mr. Rice came down yesterday from Hollywood and Pasadena where he has been studying the progress made in the "Rice" movement, and will remain here until his return to New York next month.

LAWS SHOULD BE ADMINISTERED IN BEHALF OF ALL THE PEOPLE

There has been a great deal of discussion concerning the speed used in obtaining a divorce for Mrs. William G. McAdoo.

It appears that a record time was made—42 minutes—from filing to the decree. It was unseemly haste, it was averted, and according to the usual procedure, the judges do not permit anything like that to occur, but an outside judge was serving, and he did not know the rules that the judges applied. It also appears that other lawyers have tried to do this thing, but have been headed off by the judges, but in this case, the lawyer succeeded.

The case, as against the lawyer, is being turned over to the bar association by the court. There are two points of observation on this.

It would appear from the general news, as we have said above, that other lawyers have tried to do this and nothing has been done to bring them to time. But they didn't succeed.

Their lack of success, however, was not due to their desire, intention and effort, but to the judges themselves. This lawyer did succeed. Having worked just as the other lawyers did, he didn't fail because the judge permitted it.

We just can't quite get the philosophy of punishing one lawyer for succeeding in a certain labor, when not punishing other lawyers for trying to succeed. But we will let the bar association thresh that out.

More than this, we cannot help thinking that it does seem a little incongruous to turn this over to a bar association. All of society is interested in this.

If the marriage relation has become so cheap and inconsequential, that it can go through a court with an express rate of speed, it is the business of society as a whole.

This action of turning it over to the bar association considers it only an act of this lawyer. We are not greatly in favor of farming out governmental functions to organizations, whether they be bar associations or what not.

Laws should be administered on behalf of all the people, and not by one group for a group. If we proceeded in this manner, we would have the lawyers looking after lawyers, the doctors looking after doctors, the dentists, the dentists, the labor organizations, the laboring man, and if we kept on we might just as well have the criminals look after the criminals.

It is not sound political philosophy. This simply emphasizes it.

The Nazis in Germany are a good example of this, where they make their own laws for their own members.

A MORMON ANNIVERSARY

On July 24, the Mormons of Utah and the surrounding states observed impressively and exultantly the anniversary of the arrival of Brigham Young and his followers to the shores of that great salt lake where they founded their empire. There are still nine survivors of that day in 1847 when the followers of the prophet laid the foundations of Salt Lake City.

In commemoration of that event, young Mormons let their beards grow, and a jubilation not unlike that which occurs in all other parts of the country on July 4th takes place. The story of the trials of this group of religious enthusiasts, as they were persecuted from place to place until they arrived in this desert country, is retold. Young and old are called upon to pay homage to a brave and consecrated ancestry.

The people of this country, once outraged by the polygamous tenet of the Mormon faith, have long since left behind them their animosities toward these religious pioneers. The fanaticism and the superstitions of the founders of the Mormon faith have been softened, if they have not actually disappeared altogether from the lives of present-day Mormons.

That these founders had many virtues is borne out by the sober habits of the Mormon people of today. One who visits Salt Lake City, Provo, or Ogden finds a different type of life from that which exists here on the coast.

Many of the Puritan traits of the founders still survive among their descendants. They still stand for those qualities of character which we always associate with good citizenship.

In a society as closely knit together as our American society is, it is difficult for any group to continue practices which are inconsistent with prevailing practices around them. Polygamy was put down by the strong arm of the federal government. But already, among the younger Mormons, there was a movement on at the time to do away with it.

There are no more loyal citizens in the country anywhere than those who live according to the Mormon faith. They have reason to be proud of the deeds of their ancestors. Their courage, their devotion to principle, and their sober lives are worthy of emulation.

WHEN THE COUNTRY WAS WITHOUT A PRESIDENT

In the memories of the late "Ike" Hoover, for many years chief usher of the White House, which are being printed in the Saturday Evening Post, there is an amazing account of the days when President Wilson lay a helpless invalid in the White House, incapable of discharging his constitutional duties as President of the United States.

Mrs. Wilson, Secretary Tumulty, and a few chosen intimates exercised the executive authority, despite the plain provisions of the constitution that when the president is incapable of discharging his duties, it shall devolve upon the vice-president to function in his place.

Mr. Hoover asserts that after the president's collapse on October 2, 1920, he was never himself again. That undoubtedly accounts for those painful wrenchings of friendships which took place during the last 20 months of the Wilson administration.

During that interval, the president removed Lansing from the headship of the state department. He also broke with Colonel House during that period, than whom the president had no more trusted intimate up to that time. It explains his antipathy to Eugene Debbs whom he refused to pardon, his strange obsessions and his erratic judgment.

Those who were closest to the president during those months, and those intimates who suffered most from these obsessions have remained silent concerning the incidents of that period. Now it comes out in the memories of a man who was a daily witness of what was going on in the White House during that time.

Surely, Woodrow Wilson was as much a casualty of the World war as was the Unknown Soldier. His physical and mental powers broke under the strain of the war and under the burdens which he tried to carry in the peace conference at Paris.

THE R. F. C. AS A WHOLE

In a cartoon today will be found the suggestion that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has made some $21,000,000.

Unquestionably the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has been very ably conducted. While originally there were certain special groups and men who received large amounts from the R. F. C., apparently with undue influence, yet the straight loans by the organization have been well looked after and taken care of.

This profit has accrued from interest. Of course it should be borne in mind that there probably has been no writing off, as yet, of losses that are bound to be sustained.

The R. F. C. has been used for emergency purposes. Loans have been made to public corporations for such emergencies. Work has been carried on with this money, some of it profitable work—a great deal of it simply for the purpose of getting money into the hands of those who needed it.

Some of this money will probably never be repaid, and the loss, when finally met, will run into millions. This not having yet been written off, does not appear as a loss. Hence the profit appears on the books.

The business end of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation committee has been run as a business should be run and from that angle of it the profit is made. This should be borne in mind by the voters in considering the R. F. C. in its entirety.

THE QUINTUPLETS BREAK THE RECORD

The Dionne quintuplets have broken the record. They are still living after 50 days, the record set by quintuplets born in Portugal in 1866. No such group has lived more than four days before. However, Dr. Dafoe, the family physician, insists that they are not yet out of the woods.

No doubt, the five children of this French habitant were fortunate in their number. Had they been triplets, there would not have been the nation-wide interest and concern for them.

They have been the recipients of medical care such as ordinarily given to those who are blessed with large wealth. The whole world is anxious that they continue to live, and from all quarters help has come to see that they have everything that is needed to continue life.

Few are born famous. "The heavens themselves," says Shakespeare, "blaze forth the birth of princes." But no prince was ever born into the world with greater publicity than these humble quintuplets in a Canadian cottage.

Many of this generation will continue to follow the career of these five girls for many years to come. It is to be hoped that they will grow up together. Incidentally, it may be hoped that there will not be another set, either in the Dionne family or any other.

Adding Seventeen Years To Life Expectancy

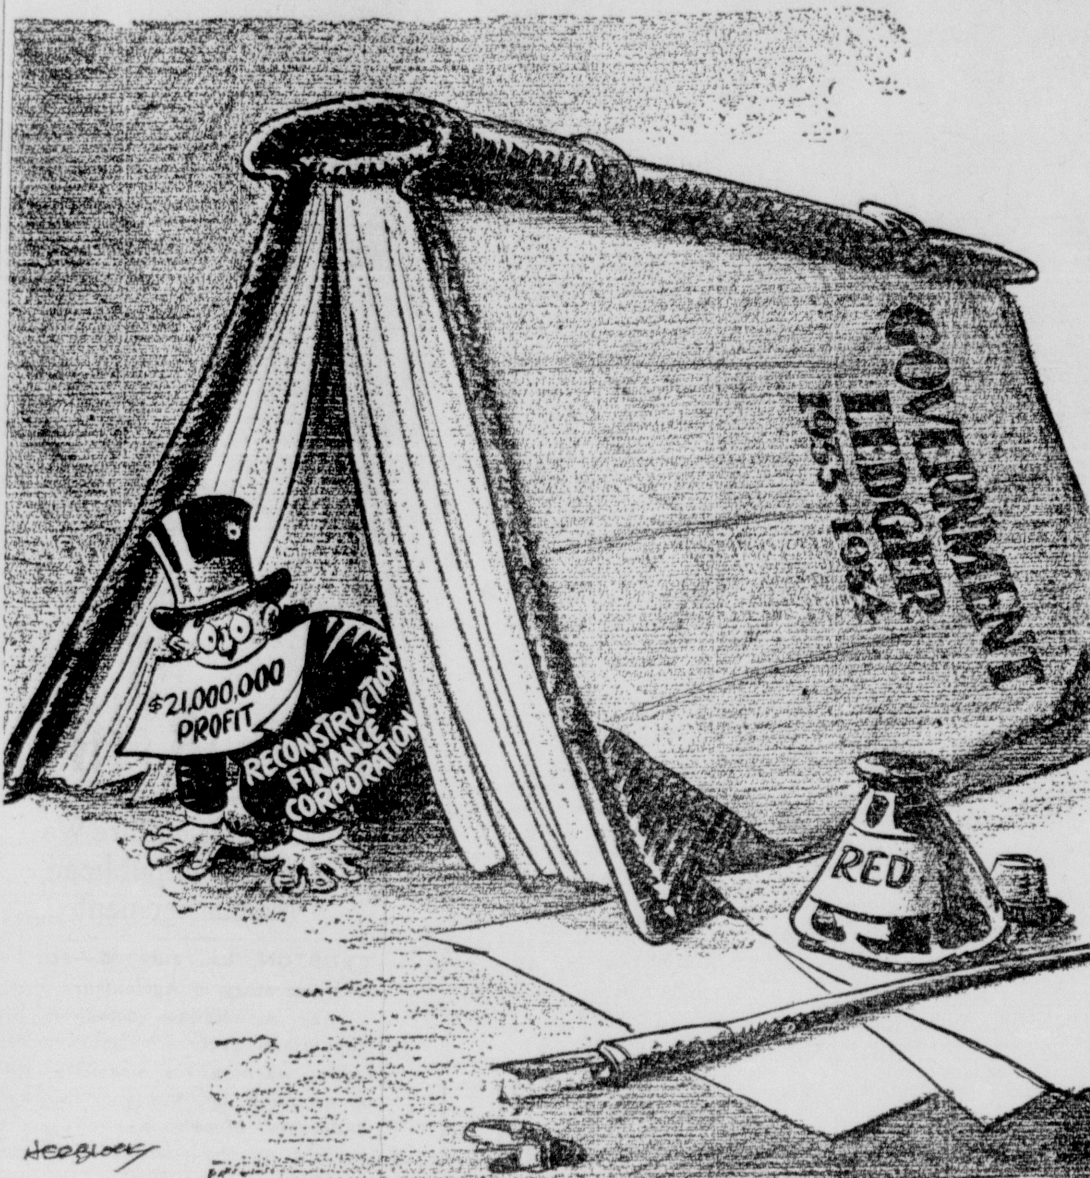

The Bostonian of today has a life expectancy of 17 years longer than he would have had 100 years ago. Some one has been comparing Boston's vital statistics of the 1930's with those of 1830. He found that in the former year, death rates of people in their twenties and thirties were twice the 1930 figure. The death rates for people between 20 and 50 have been reduced since 1830 far more than the death rate for infants. The only age group which fared better in the old days in Boston was that from 60 on, but there were fewer persons who reached that age and they had to be pretty hard to do so.

The facts indicate improvement in general health and prevention of illness during the past century. There is another way in which the present age, while not taking any honors, is not so bad as has been thought.

The death rate from accidents in 1830 in Boston was very nearly as high as in 1930, in spite of contemporary speed, automobiles and machinery. The old rate was 71.7 per 100,000; the 1930 rate was 74.4.

Apparently the tempo of modern life, which is supposed to be so hard on human health, has been successfully counteracted by sensible habits of diet, exercise and so on, and also by the more general practice of safety measures. It is another example of the good old days having progressed to better new days.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

IT'S A HARD WORLD

The angleworm (see Darwin's works)
Performs a useful toil,
All day beneath the sod he lurks
To aerate the soil.
He does no living being harm,
He does not squeal or yelp,
And yet the farmer could not farm
Without the creature's help.
But women, who behold this worm,
Avoid him as they would a germ.

The garter-snake is innocent
Of sinister designs,
His placid summer days are spent
In eating bugs off vines.
Unpraised, unhonored and unsung,
He wanders in and out;
Without his eager darting tongue
No garden patch would sprout.
And yet, through all his useful days,
He never gets a word of praise.

Devoid of malice, spite or greed,
The clam lives out his life;
He asks no aid, he feels no need
Of controversial strife.
He seems completely satisfied
To hear the breakers roar,
Or tumble in the limpid tide
That creeps along the shore.
But life is hard, and stern and bitter;
Poor clam—he'll finish in a fritter!

Thoughts On Modern Life

BY GLENN FRANK

AFTERMATH OF EMERGENCY MEASURES

What will be the permanent effect upon the American government and the American people of the medley of measures with which we have sought to deal with the current emergency?

The centralization of extraordinary powers in the executive during an emergency is a special problem calling for a special treatment, quite apart from any broad judgment on dictatorship and democracy as permanent procedures.

But, even to the minds of men who concur in the necessity of emergency grants of extraordinary powers, the exercise of these emergency powers raises fundamental questions that involve long-range values.

It is not a simple matter to confine the effect of emergency programs to emergency periods. In utter absence of any deliberate intent, emergency programs may, in a few swift months, remake for a generation to come the attitude of a people towards government. The after effect of emergency programs may not be so sweeping and subversive as the ancient historian Polybius traced in the twilight of ancient Rome. "And hence," wrote Polybius, "when by their foolish thirst for reputation they (the political leaders) have created among the masses an appetite for gifts and the habit of receiving them, democracy, in its turn, is abolished and changes into a rule of force and violence. For the people, having grown accustomed to feed at the expense of others are to depend for their livelihood on the property of others, as soon as they find a leader who is enterprising, but is excluded from the honors of office by his penury, institute the rule of violence."

The after effect of emergency programs may not, as I have said, be so sweeping, but a people can easily come out of an emergency, in which government has acted bravely and generously, with a frankly unhealthy reliance on government. Unhealthy, that is, unless the whole philosophy of private enterprise and political liberty is obsolete. But I do not think it is. On the contrary, its validity grows, I think, with the growing complexity of modern life.

FRIENDLINESS

DEAR CHILDREN: Many of the things that look so difficult to you are really very simple. You have them in your power if you could but realize it. For one thing, making friends.

I have seen children very unhappy because they had no friends. "I'm not popular," was their cry, and they uttered it like a protest. Somebody was to blame for this sad state of affairs. Or they begrudged those that had friends and said, "Of course, if I wanted to be like some people I know I could have friends, too, but I wouldn't stoop to such conduct."

That is the wrong way to go about the matter. You can't have friends by being fond of yourself like that. The only way to have friends is to be friendly, to like people and show them that you like them. You can't win friends by demanding attention. You have to bestow attention on other people. You have to be interested in their affairs and help them forward. In short, if you want friends you must be friendly.

That doesn't mean that you say Yes to all who come along. It does mean that you go along with your group in the way they go and do your best to make the others happy, considering yourself happy in serving them. If you want to be first always, if you hold out for your rights down to the last carfare, or soda, or seat, or turn at the bus you are going to be left friendless and alone.

People turn their backs upon selfishness. I am not defending them, I am only telling you that selfishness wins friends. It wins selfishness in return. People are willing to serve those who do not demand service. They stubbornly refuse to have anything to do with those who want service for themselves but delight to help when they know they are not expected to do so.

This all sounds very selfish very self centered, but selfishness of the right sort, the sort that wants to find happiness in making others happy, becomes the highest kind of altruism. A friend is kind because he feels happy in being kind. That's true selfishness and high altruism. And it makes the whole world friendly.

You won't win any friends by being superior. You drive people from you by being critical and sarcastic and smart. A sharp tongue costs you friends every time you waggle it. A loudly expressed idea of your own worth leaves you alone in the field. A desire to be comfortable let who will suffer makes you hordes of enemies. Falling to keep engagements, or being late for them, makes the victim angry and costs you friends. Telling a story against your neighbor in favor of yourself is unpardonable. In short, anything you do that shows you as one who loves himself first is bound to make you last in the hearts of your countrymen.

The way to make a friend is to be one. That means you are loyal in spirit and word and deed. You say nothing that might hurt your friend, you do nothing that might injure him spiritually or materially. You love him and serve him. In short, you can have friends if you are willing to pay the price, loving unselfish service.

Yours, A. P.

Dolfuss Laid To Rest As Nazi Revolt Dies Down

REBELS FLEE TO FRONTIER AND FORESTS

Chancellor Starhemberg in Speech to Nation Says Dolfuss' Work to Live VENGEANCE PROMISED

Royal Funeral Accorded to "Little Chancellor" as Nation Pays Tribute

(Copyright, 1934, by United Press) VIENNA, July 28.—(UP)—While government forces were busy crushing the Austrian Nazi rebellion, Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, victim of political hatred and assassination, was accorded royal funeral today.

In a setting as magnificent as that of Austria's last emperor, the strong men of the little chancellor's dominant party gathered to eulogize the lost leader and to demonstrate their control over an inflammable civil crisis. Meanwhile fighting between troops and Nazis continued in the provinces.

The small city hall, wherein the chancellor's body lay in state was banked with flowers. Wreaths sent from every nation in Europe, and masses of bright colored flowers contributed by his friends filled every corner of the old structure.

At 2:30 p. m., when the first ceremony began, every business activity in Vienna ceased, and every wheel stopped turning. Railroad trains were halted for two minutes. Windows along the route of the funeral procession were tightly closed.

Resistance to the government was still reported in outlying provinces, notably Carinthia, but each succeeding report from commanders of regular troops and Heimwehr soldier told of the decreasing effectiveness of the rebels, of their dissolution, arrest, and in many instances, death.

Troops Massed Across the Italian border, an impressive warning to Austria's enemies, were massed the powerful legions of Mussolini, ready upon an order from Rome to march over the frontier to fight "for Austria's independence."

The Nazi revolt seemed to have lost cohesive leadership. Some of the organization's more fanatical members were still in armed rebellion, marching along Carinthian roads and firing sporadically upon the government forces, but they lacked any concerted plan of action.

Reports from border cities continued to reveal occasional raids by Austrian Nazis making their bases in Germany, but in most cases the frontier authorities were in complete command of the situation.

After the first brief, but impressive, service had been read at Dollfuss' bier, President Miklas spoke of the late chancellor's great patriotism and honor.

Radio carried his words to great crowds massed outside, and to the entire nation.

Dolfuss Lauded "His patriotism," Miklas said, "was all Austrian—but at the same time it was European."

Candidate For Sheriff Is Under Arrest

MODESTO, Cal., July 28.—(UP)—Arthur Maiss occupied the Stanislaus county jail today, but not in the official capacity to which he aspires. Maiss, a candidate for sheriff, was arrested on a misdemeanor charge of stealing firewood. He denied stealing the wood and said the whole thing was a "mistake."

The former Modesto dog-catcher was unable to raise the $25 bail required for his release.

Inner Secrets of Fat Fees Paid by Utilities Are Revealed by Candidate

SAN FRANCISCO, July 28.—(UP)—Inner secrets of fat fees paid to lobbyists by the power trust in California were laid bare here tonight over a statewide radio hookup by John R. Quinn, progressive Republican candidate for governor.

In a withering attack reminiscent to many of Hiram W. Johnson's first historic campaign for governor Quinn charged:

1.—That former State Sen. H. D. Nelson of Eureka was paid more than $28,000 last year by private utilities in California to act as their lobbyist.

2.—That $18,288 was paid to Nelson by the Pacific Gas and Electric Company and charged on the company's book as operating expense.

3.—That in their resistance against attempts for lower rates to consumers the eight utilities companies of the State, whose presidents are paid an aggregate of "more than $250,000 a year in salaries" use "your money and my money" to make their fight.

Compares Salaries In his barrage against power trust domination, Quinn, compared the salaries paid to high executives of private utility companies with those paid to State officials. In this connection he said:

"The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court in California receives twelve thousand dollars a year. The annual salary of the President of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company is sixty-eight thousand, seven hundred and ninety-two dollars."

Quintuplets Not To Go To Chicago

NORTH BAY, Ont., July 28.—(UP)—The famous Dionne quintuplets soon will have a new home, will receive expert medical care for two years, and will not be exhibited at the world's fair, it was announced today as the babies became two months old.

W. H. Alderson, attorney general of Ontario, ruled against the world's fair. He broke a contract signed by the babies' father, Oliva Dionne, shortly after their birth. He said moving the infants to Chicago would result in death "at least one and possibly more," and that "lives of children are of greater importance in Canada than the profits of exploitation and promotional undertakings."

Martial Law Declared In "Model City"

Two Killed and 21 Persons Hurt at Kohler, Wis., During Last Night

KOHLER, Wis., July 28.—(UP)—Martial law was ordered today in Kohler, "model" of peaceful industrial communities where two striking workmen were killed and 21 others shot last night by deputy sheriffs.

Two troops of unmounted cavalry from Milwaukee took charge immediately. More than 1000 booing pickets of strikers at the Kohler bathroom fixture plant were ordered out of the community.

Barricades on highways, with soldiers poking rifles over the parapets, kept them at bay. Military action followed a night of bloody riots climaxed by firing of about a dozen shots at the automobile of a newspaper photographer, John Steger of the Chicago Tribune. He was not injured but his car was struck several times.

First fatalities of the three-week-old strike were Lee Wakefield, 25, and Henry Engelmann, 27, of Sheboygan. Wakefield died a few minutes after the battle of a chest wound. Engelmann died this morning with a rifle bullet in his abdomen.

Twenty-one others, taken to two Sheboygan hospitals, were wounded less seriously.

Hundreds, including women and children, suffered from tear gas. After unrest through the day soon after 8 p. m. a striker threw a brick through a plant window. Others seized the idea. Stones, bricks, railroad spikes and sticks filled the air. Glass crashed on all sides of the factory.

At the height of the disturbance, with men, women and children screaming and shouting imprecations at a few workers inside the plant, deputies charged. Gas grenades burst around the mob. Night sticks cracked on bare heads. Almost 2000 men swayed in a roaring mass.

No one knew who fired the first rifle shot. It was followed by the boom of a shotgun. Then a fusillade rang out.

Women fled shrieking, dragging children with them, but their men followed.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 28.—(UP)—Federal investigation of communist activities in California was requested today in a resolution adopted by the Sacramento Valley Council of the State Chamber of Commerce.

LATE NEWS FLASHES

COUNTY PLANNERS PROPOSE 50 ACRE RECREATIONAL PARK ON WATERFRONT AT NEWPORT

PRELIMINARY plans for a county-owned recreational park on the waterfront at Newport Harbor have received the tentative approval of the Orange County Planning Commission, it was announced today following a meeting of the commission at which the proposal was discussed.

Engineer Nat H. Neff and members of the commission have been visualizing construction of a mammoth public playground on county-owned property at the harbor for several years, and preliminary plans have been drawn for extensive future development which will provide a new and exclusive type of recreational center.

The Planning Commission, wishing to take advantage of the government dredging in the harbor, voted to request the board of supervisors to set up sufficient funds for dredging of approximately 50 acres in the proposed county park.

Dredged material will be used for the park.

BRUSH FIRE IS UNDER CONTROL THIS MORNING

Over 2500 Acres Denuded in Sierra Madre Mountains Near Pasadena

PASADENA, Cal., July 28.—(UP)—A brush fire that devastated 2500 acres of valuable watershed and mountain playground in the Sierra Madre mountains northeast of here was reported virtually under control today.

Although roaring along a 15-mile front, the fire was being held in check by an army of fire-fighters, cheered by the absence of wind.

"The weather is favorable," reported William V. Mendenhall, supervisor of the Angeles National forest. "The fire is still burning along a 15-mile front but if the wind remains quiet we'll hold the flames where they now are. Barreling a change in weather, the fire should be definitely under control by tonight."

Six hundred fresh recruits reported for duty this morning, relieving a similar number of volunteers who have had little rest since the fire, ignited by a short circuit in a power line, broke out late Thursday. In all more than 1000 men formed a phalanx around the blazing brush land.

In the East Millard and Bear canyons, in the Arroyo Seco and along the Angeles crest, vortex of the flames, fire-fighters were making headway. The blaze was reported "fairly controlled" in these sectors.

Appraisers counted a half-million dollars damage in the blackened path of the fire. The estimate covered this city's watershed.

Forgotten Election Law on City Books is Cause of Change in Date

BARRED BY a nearly-forgotten election law from consolidating another election with the primaries on August 28, the city council will take action Monday night in setting an election on Thursday, August 30, at which time the bond issue to pay for delinquent 1915 street assessment bonds and the proposal to repeal the 12 cent advertising and music tax will be placed on the ballot.

City Clerk Ed Vegely announced yesterday that state election laws prohibited the council from holding the advertising and music election with the primaries, as voted Monday night following the presentation of petitions demanding the election.

The council had previously decided to hold the 1915 act election on August 20, to allow sufficient time for a superior court decision on the legality of the election prior to September 4, when the tax rate must be set. Following conferences with City Attorney Clyde Downing, Vegely announced that both elections could be held on August 30, at a greater convenience and less cost than by any other arrangement.

To Rescind Action The council will be required to rescind the action taken last week and then set the new date. Downing will recommend the action.

With the city election after the primaries, the procedure will be greatly simplified, according to Vegely. The great registers and other documents from the county clerk's office will be available, whereas if the election were held before the primaries, the county books would have to be copied by the city.

Vegely and his office staff were at work today in consolidating precincts and designating polling places. Election board personnel will be announced in a few days.

3600 Signatures The advertising and music tax ballot was authorized following mass meetings and signing of petitions by nearly 3600 citizens, asking that appropriations for advertising to the Chamber of Commerce be discontinued.

The 1915 bond act election will involve the voting of about $250,000 in bonds to pay for delinquent street assessment bonds. These bonds were issued before the present council took office but under a recent state supreme court ruling, the city is liable for the delinquency. The usual procedure is to levy a tax rate to pay for the delinquencies, but such a rate in Santa Ana would total about $1.40 and make a total tax levy of about $3.10 per $100 assessed valuation.

Downing is proceeding with the new plan of voting bonds to invest in the delinquent bonds, thus spreading the cost over 15 years, reducing the interest, keeping the tax levy down, and incurring no additional cost to the taxpayers.

Price, Demand For Oranges Are Improved

LOS ANGELES, July 28.—(UP)—The California Fruit Growers exchange reported orange sales approximating 1,000 cars this week, with some improvement in demand and price, particularly in the middle west. Exchange lemon sales were over 950 cars for the week, a volume exceeded only once this year, when 700 cars were sold the week preceding July 4th.

The lemon market is higher, but no extreme prices have occurred, due to heavy supplies to mid-western markets where the protracted heat wave brought heavy demand. The exchange was able to quickly direct additional lemons to Chicago, where 94 cars were sold from Monday to Friday.

Roosevelt Proud and Happy Over Prosperity in Hawaiian Islands

HONOLULU, July 28.—(UP)—Proud and happy over the appearances of prosperity and well being he noted among the people of the Hawaiian Islands, President Roosevelt was to turn to the sea again today to visit the Pacific northwest.

As the U. S. S. Houston carries him eastward toward Portland, Ore., the president will devote much of his time to a study of data relative to conditions in the far west.

He made similar studies as the cruiser carried him from the Canal Zone to Hawaii, where his five-day stay was devoted in large measure to an inspection of the islands.

NEW TENSION FELT IN COAST STRIKE

SAN FRANCISCO, July 28.—(UP)—Disputing over technical matters while thousands of tons of freight piled up in Pacific coast ports, longshoremen and ship owners brought new tension into the strike situation today by their inability to reach a "back to work" agreement.

The new crisis led authorities in several ports to plan direct action to smash the strike blockade. Governor Julius Meier of Oregon intimated he will send 1100 National guardsmen to open the port of Portland Monday unless the dispute is settled. Mayor Joseph Carson of Portland advised strikers only a handful of pickets will be permitted in the waterfront section.

Man Killed When Cycle Overturns; Companion Hurt

A San Diego youth was killed and another was seriously injured shortly before 1 o'clock this afternoon when the motorcycle they were riding overturned on the curve at D street and First street in Tustin.

Nello Al Sabato, of San Diego, was killed from head and other injuries and his body was removed to the Harrell and Brown funeral parlor. His companion, a yet unidentified, was taken to the Santa Ana Valley hospital.

Sabato is about 25 years of age, according to Coroner Earl Abbey. The wreck occurred when he attempted to miss a truck on the curve and his motorcycle slipped and skidded about 90 feet.

Chief Pilot Kepner Keeps in Radio Communication With Headquarters

BULLETIN CHICAGO, July 28.—(UP)—An unconfirmed report was received by the National Broadcasting company here today that the stratosphere balloon had landed. The report came from Grand Island, Neb.

BULLETIN GOTHENBURG, Neb., July 28.—(UP)—Gothenburg residents poured from their homes late today to watch the slow descent of the U. S. Army stratosphere balloon.

Appearing about the size of a half dollar as it drifted slowly eastward, it was estimated the "Explorer" would land approximately ten miles east of here.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—(UP)—The U. S. Army stratosphere balloon ripped in several places today while at an altitude of nearly 11 miles.

Maj. William E. Kenner, chief pilot, reported the trouble in brief radio messages to headquarters here.

"We are trying to come down, but we are sort of hanging here," Kenner said.

"I'm in trouble. The bottom of the bag is ripped in several places. The balloon is rather difficult to manage."

Communication with the balloon was difficult. Kenner and his aides, Capt. Albert W. Stevens, and Capt. Orvil Anderson, obviously were working feverishly in the cramped little gondola to prevent a disaster that might send them hurtling through ten miles of space.

The balloon ripped while it was at an altitude of 57,000 feet, or within about 4900 feet of the official world's altitude record. Its location at the time was somewhat east of North Platte, Neb.

"We've got to come down, but it's difficult," Kenner said.

FIRE EIGHT SHOTS INTO WIFE'S BODY

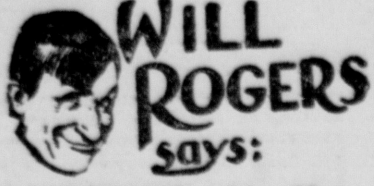

JUNEAU, Alaska, July 28.—(UP)—Merrymakers returning from a dance were thrown into confusion early today at a street corner in downtown Juneau when Charles Holmer, Douglas miner, fatally shot his wife and Allen A. NAVY FLIERS REST IN ALASKA TODAY

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, July 28.—(UP)—The navy squadrons of 12 patrol planes, on a round-trip flight from San Diego, Cal., to Dutch Harbor, Alaska, rested here today prior to leaving Wednesday for Juneau. Rear Admiral A. W. Johnson, commander of the navy's base aircraft force, flew with the squadrons from Seattle. He will leave Monday on his flagship, U. S. S. Wright, for Juneau.

Wedding Day Marred By Death Of Girl In Accident

CHILD DIES AS MACHINE HITS ROAD BUTTON

HONOLULU, July 28.—(To the Editor of The Register.) Well we blew in here this morning, on the first leg of our long hop, and imagine who we run into. You wouldn't guess in a year. You remember the President we lost, just after Congress adjourned, the one that was so tickled that he disappeared well he is out here at some Japanese islands in the middle of the Pacific. Just looks fine, same great smile that he used to use on those Congressmen and make 'em bring sticks out of the water for him. These folks want their sugar quota raised. But he just smiles at 'em. He is the world's only man that can turn you down and you go out liking him. The whole of Honolulu is doing the hula, or riding a surf board for him today. If he don't raise their quota, I will go over his head and take it up with Gen. Hugh Johnson, and get it done for 'em, for we can't let the Garden of Eden be dissatisfied.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

TEN CRIMINAL DEFENDANTS IN COUNTY COURT

Seven of 10 criminal defendants who appeared before Superior Judge J. O. Moncur, of Plumas county, on the regular Friday criminal calendar were charged with drunk driving. A burglar and two check artists made up the balance.

L. Mendez, charged with drunk driving June 24 on West First street, Santa Ana, was placed on probation for three years on condition that he serve three months in the county jail. He was ordered not to drive a car for three years.

Ventura Torres, another drunk driver arrested on North Tustin street July 15, was placed on probation for two years and ordered to pay a fine of $75 at the rate of $5 per month. His driving license was suspended for one year.

Four others pleaded guilty to drunk driving and applied for probation. Belle G. Dunlop was arrested July 12 on Ocean avenue, Garden Grove; Richard A. Leigh was arrested July 21 near the bridge across Newport bay; E. B. Goss was arrested July 21 on Grand avenue, Buena Park. All will receive probation hearings August 3.

Charles Bauman, who was arrested July 22, will receive his probation hearing August 10.

Pedro Martinez pleaded guilty to a charge of drunk driving and will go on trial August 15. He was arrested on the charge at El Modena.

Wayne H. Langston, who passed a fictitious $25 check to the Vandermast clothing store in Santa Ana July 11, pleaded guilty and asked probation. Hearing was set for August 3.

Al Niles pleaded guilty to passing a fictitious check for $22.50 to Otto Dargatz, Anaheim butcher. Hearing of his plea for probation was set for August 3.

E. B. Gaer was placed on probation for three years and sentenced to six months in the county jail for his part in a burglary of a Huntington Beach garage. Grand theft and burglary were charged against him.

Donald Jones, one of his accomplices, was placed on probation for five years by Judge H. G. Ames on condition that he serve six months in the county jail. A week ago, Judge Ames sentenced the third defendant, Charles Jones, to San Quentin.

Simon Mohr, alleged fake eye doctor, was sentenced to San Quentin yesterday by Superior Judge G. K. Soovel, on a charge of petty theft with prior conviction. Mohr had obtained jewelry from an Anaheim woman, whom he had treated for eye trouble with a preparation he called radium eye water drops. He had once served a term in Sing Sing, New York prison, for a similar offense.

shed and did not include summer cabins that were razed. Although only two were reported official, Oscar Antleas, owner of a cabin in Millard canyon, reported that some 30 dwellings were razed in Millard canyon and an undetermined number in Fern canyon. Authorities said there was no loss of life because of prompt evacuation.

Danger which threatened scenic Mt. Lowe and its resort properties was averted late last night when the fire was turned within a mile of the famous Alpine Tavern. As a precautionary measure, however, the Pacific Electric railway assigned several hundred employees along the right of way of the famous incline railroad that runs to the top of the mountain.

The county fire dispatcher sent an appeal to San Francisco for additional equipment. The dispatcher said he was asked to send men and equipment to San Margarita peak in San Diego where a similar fire is raging.

the defensive, economic and social conditions of the mid-Pacific positions.

Mr. Roosevelt was highly pleased with what he saw and heard. He will express his reactions in a speech to the Hawaiian people before he departs today. In the same address he will thank them for the eventful reception they tendered the first president to visit their sun-kissed land.

Before he sails the president will participate in a tree-planting ceremony at the capitol grounds. When he planted a tree at Hilo during his visit there, he said that there was nothing he liked to do better.

Last night from the capitol balcony he watched the gigantic lantern parade, a colorful event which matched the surf-riding, the native dancing, the Samoan sword dancing, the military and naval reviews and the other events held for his entertainment here.

As the Houston and its convoy, the U. S. S. New Orleans turn their bows toward Diamond Head for the sea, the royal Hawaiian band, which greeted his Honolulu arrival Thursday, will play "Aloha" again, this time to speed a beloved visitor on his way.

Only one accident marred the president's visit. Three newspapermen who accompanied him here from Washington were the victims. A horse frightened by a police siren crashed into a procession of automobiles, in one of which Mr. Roosevelt was riding. The horse fell into a machine carrying the newspapermen.

Those injured were Theodore Wallen, New York Herald Tribune; head lacerations; Francis Stephenson, Associated Press, arm laceration; and Edward Roddan, Universal Service, head laceration. A navy enlisted man driver and Frederick A. Storm of the United Press also were riding in the machine.

The correspondents were treated at emergency hospital and were released.

Court Notes

P. J. Dillon, charged with drunkenness, was committed to the county jail for 10 days by Judge J. G. Mitchell yesterday.

Barney Colgen was fined $15 for drunkenness by Judge J. G. Mitchell yesterday and will pay at a later date.

Miguel Royal paid $5 of a $15 drunkenness fine in police court yesterday.

hunting knives has been posted for this division. There also will be 15 plaques for first prizes, 12 silver cups, 18 bronze cups, and 12 medals listed as recognition awards for all entries.

Tournament officials, headed by Irving George Gordon, have done everything in their power to make the affair a success from every viewpoint. Months of effort have been expended in insuring the smooth running off of the parade. Special police committees have worked out every possible safeguard and courtesy for the thousands of visiting motorists this evening, including special details of police to handle traffic, and an emergency corps for protection in the bay, headed by Frank W. Crocker, fire-chief, and head of life-guards.

Actual start of the parade will be made from midway between the Balboa Pavilion and Balboa island at 7:30. The first flotilla will proceed down the peninsula to a point opposite the East end of Balboa island, where it will swing across the bay, proceeding up the shore of the island. It should reach Lido Isle at 9:00 p. m., tying in with the rear of the civic division.

Civic Entries
The division composed of civic enteries will assemble on the North side of Lido Isle, leaving from the east end at 8:00 p. m. and proceeding up the South side of the Isle to Newport, where it will swing across the bay, to commence its trek down the bay. After joining at Lido Isle the entire parade will cover the ten mile route again, disbanding at approximately 11:00 p. m. at the East end of Lido Isle, thus enabling spectators to obtain a view of the whole parade from any point along the shores of the bay.

The event will be judged by a group of mayors and prominent newspaper men from the Southern California vicinity. Civic heads acting as judges are: Arthur Eldridge, president of the Los Angeles Harbor commission, representing the mayor of Los Angeles; Mayors Frank F. G. Warner, of Santa Ana, C. H. Mann of Anaheim, E. Haiber of Placentia, William Huntley of Tustin, Glenn F. Evans of San Gabriel, Dan Hutchings of Corona, William H. Carter, of Santa Monica, H. H. Hogue of Brea, V. J. Hasei of Orange, Edward O. May of Pasadena, E. P. Criddle of Riverside, Elmer J. Hughes of Seal Beach, A. T. Smith of San Clemente, and Merritt E. Padcock of Long Beach.

County Planners Propose 50 Acre Recreational Park On Waterfront At Newport

to build up the county frontage, giving a beach more than 200 feet wide and nearly a mile long, with additional areas for park development, auto parking areas, picnic pavilions, etc.

A boat house and bathing pavilion on the bay front is visualized for the future.

"I have been dreaming of such a public park development as this for several years," said County Engineer Neff today in discussing the proposed project. "We own the land and it is logical that we begin to plan for the future when such a high class recreational project as this will be needed."

"It can be modeled after the Playground project in Westchester county, New York, which developed a revenue of a million dollars a year to Westchester county, and thus made self liquidating."

"I have rather hoped, when this plan is carried out, that the bay area adjoining the park can be kept free of all motorized boats and reserved exclusively for swimmers and smaller hand propelled boats."

In addition to the county-owned lands which will eventually be utilized for the waterfront park, Neff revealed that James Irvine, owner of large holdings about the upper bay, has tentatively approved the donation of several adjoining acres to the park site, so that when completed the county park project will include the development of approximately 50 acres of land, in addition to the 50 acres of water.

come down as easily as we can," Kepner said.

"It is hard to do much with it. It sometimes hits a streak of cold air and bounces back upward."

"It's very discouraging business. The fabric acts as a parachute for a time and then lets go and sometimes tears a chunk out."

"One hole is about 50 feet long and a yard wide."

In response to questions by Gen. Westover, Kepner said the rate of descent was averaging about 500 feet a minute.

Westover asked him what caused the rip.

"I don't know," Kepner said. "The balloon was going up very slowly. We heard a rope fall on top of the gondola and looked up and saw the rip."

"We are going to go ahead and do the best we can in getting it down."

Westover wished Kepner and his associates the best of luck in landing and Kepner despite the feverish activity in the gondola had time to say "All right General, we will; thank you."

STATOCAMP, MOONLIGHT VALLEY, S. D. July 28.—(UP)—Three daughters army balloonists soared aloft today, in quest of an altitude record of 15 miles or more—higher into the sky than man has ever reached.

Major William E. Kepner, pilot and Capt. Orvil Anderson, his aide, and Capt. Albert Stevens, scientific observer, comprised the crew for the epoch-making flight.

They shot upward at 5:45 a. m. M. E. T. in the U. S. Army-National Geographic Society stratosphere balloon, "The Explorer," largest free balloon ever made.

With their enormous gas bag, having a capacity of 3,000,000 cubic feet, inflated with only 200,000 cubic feet of hydrogen gas, the men were lifted over the rim of this peaceful, sheltered Black Hills valley at a speed of more than 500 feet a minute.

From the stratosphere, Kepner, Anderson and Stevens expect to bring back, not alone a new altitude record, but a great store of information for science to consider.

Behind, as the balloon soared upward, were months of painstaking, expensive preparations, and weeks of tedious waiting for favorable weather conditions.

The takeoff provided an intensely colorful and dramatic scene. In the rigging above the gondola, the metal ball in which the balloonists were to spend 12 hours, stood Major Kepner. From the open man-holes peered Captain Anderson and Captain Stevens.

"Up ship!" Almost straight up in the calm air the balloon arose to the rim of the bowl. At the 500 foot level, just as the gondola cleared the rock-bound rim, Major Kepner cast off several bags of ballast which he had placed around him. With this weight gone, the bag seemed almost to leap upward. Rising steadily, it began a slow drift eastward, in the direction expected to be taken throughout the flight.

From the floor of the bowl only about 250 persons, most of them soldiers who made up the ground same time he was all German in his loyalty, his sense of duty and honor, and above all he was all German in his courage."

"He declared the little leader 'understood all classes and was understood by all, particularly the Austrian soldiers.'"

A silent crowd packed the streets for four blocks near the city hall. The crowd had waited for hours for the ceremony to begin.

At the conclusion of Miklas' eulogy, two army trucks, draped in black moved out of the square, bearing 450 floral wreaths. They opened the way for four more automobiles laden with flowers, behind which walked a small group of monks.

Behind the clergy marched, in slow step, with arms reversed, a company of soldiers.

Dolfuss' fellow cabinet ministers, at a midnight meeting, swore solemnly to a pledge to carry out his policies unchanged.

As Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg, his temporary successor, put it in a speech to the nation after the meeting:

"Work Will Live"

"Dolfuss is dead, but his work will live, and it is embodied in one word: Austria."

Nazis were taking to the forests, and fleeing to the frontiers of Germany and Yugoslavia.

The government was organizing for merciless vengeance on those who were captured. A special military court was set up to try them. Starhemberg put himself today at the head of a ministerial committee on special security measures to crush Nazis, Socialists and Communists.

Starhemberg in his speech to the nation pronounced the first requiem for Dolfuss. He pledged war to the death of Nazism.

"In behalf of myself and in the name of the government" he said, "I here declare that there never shall be the slightest compromise with or the smallest concession to National Socialism (Nazism) involving our freedom, our honor or our rank among the nations."

(This was a reference to the Anschluss policy of the Nazis, which in the Fascist viewpoint would make Austria a satellite of Nazi Germany.)

"Naturally we shall contribute everything possible to the good relations of all countries. Also we are prepared to forget things that have occurred in the past—provided that in the future we are not molested. At the same time we reject in advance all meddling with our affairs."

When the German foreign office inquired whether Baron Franz von Papen would be persona grata, as special minister, it replied that there would be no decision until the cabinet met next week.

Fighting centers principally in Carinthia, southernmost province across whose border 40,000 Italian troops were bivouacked. There was firing all night in the Lavant valley, with government forces driving Nazis before them.

Two Women Given Divorce Decrees

Two divorce decrees were granted in superior court late yesterday, one to Mrs. Evelyn Swartz against John E. Swartz, Anaheim brick distributor. (Nashville) and Mrs. Victoria Burnett against George H. Burnett, of Costa Mesa.

Mrs. Swartz charged cruelty and told Judge H. G. Ames that her husband was sulky, quarrelsome and frequently got drunk on the beer he had for sale at his stand. They married August 1, 1923, at Anaheim, and separated March 30, this year.

Mrs. Burnett charged non-support in her complaint, which was heard by Judge J. O. Moncur. The Burnetts married at Costa Mesa March 1, 1932, and separated July 15, 1933. Mrs. Burnett was granted custody of their child.

Police News

Edwin Fleming, 44, Los Angeles, was booked at the county jail Thursday by Deputy Sheriff James Musick for non-support of a minor child.

Chief Gus Barnes of Placentia arrested Gilberto Montana, 29, and booked him at the county jail Thursday for disturbing the peace.

Mrs. Teddy Tetzlaff, 84½, North Road street, reported to police yesterday that a $25 polo coat and a $15 blanket were stolen from her parked car at Fourth and Sycamore streets Thursday.

Andres Clemente, 26, Placentia, was booked at the county jail last night for disturbing the peace by Chief Gus Barnes of Placentia.

Once safely clear of the bowl, Major Kepner was to enter the gondola through one of the man-holes, which is placed near the top of the metal ball.

Then, at 15,000 to 16,000 feet the crew planned to seal the gondola, making it air-tight for the remainder of the flight, and to depend upon their supplies of liquid air and liquid oxygen to maintain a breathable atmosphere within it.

Churches To Open Meetings At Irvine Sunday Afternoon

Establishment of a mission point at Irvine by the Churches of Christ in Orange county, was announced today. The Southside congregation, together with the Broadway and Walnut church, of this city, and the Fullerton church, are providing the speakers and singers for a program which begins tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Community hall at Irvine.

There will be special and congregational singing, and gospel preaching. The general public is invited.

For more than an hour strikers held their lines before tear gas drove them to the city limits. They reformed there, throwing bricks at police and deputy sheriffs and booing continuously.

Kohler charged the rioters were led by "outside agitators." He produced a petition signed by 1500 former employees who declared they were satisfied with plant wages and willing to return to work if protected.

Henry Ohl Jr., president of the Wisconsin Federation of Labor, said "outside men" had been hired to defeat the purposes of an American Federation of Labor union.

Marital law, he asserted, existed in effect, if not in fact, and said "because of the attitude of deputies anything can happen."

Nelson also received an additional $10,000 from four utility companies in Southern California. A pretty picture, my friends, Senator Nelson with jingling pockets, off to Sacramento!"

"How long are you going to tolerate these abuses? How long are you going to stand such practices? I could give you instance after instance, example after example, illustrating these disgraceful activities of the public utilities. This must be stopped."

"I pledge you it shall be stopped when I am elected governor of California. The power trust must be taken out of politics. Its grip on legislation must be broken once and for all."

OFFICERS FIND CHIP AND TANGO PLACES CLOSED

Seal Beach gambling interests suffered another setback here yesterday when Superior Judge J. O. Menour, of Plumas county, presiding in Judge James L. Allen's court, denied a temporary injunction sought by the alleged gamblers to prevent Sheriff Joan Jackson from raiding their establishments.

No court of equity "should go so far as to interfere with public officers in the proper exercise of their duties," said Judge Menour in refusing the plea of counsel for the alleged gamblers. The asserted gambling element, Henry Lackman and Otto A. Jacobs, to protect them against the valid orders until the gambling charges against them could be tried at Seal Beach—before friendly juries that have been invariably acquitting them.

"Must Take Chances" "Gamblers must take their chances," commented Judge Menour, in refusing the injunction. When the attorneys for the Seal Beach interests pointed out that "there already has been a judicial determination" of whether the raided games are gambling games, a Seal Beach jury having acquitted one of the defendants involved in the injunction proceedings, Judge Menour merely remarked that:

"That doesn't determine anything for this court." Judge Menour ruled that the question whether the games were gambling games was one of fact, with which he was not concerned in injunction proceedings. The question before him, he said, was whether the court should use its discretion to prevent the officers from using their discretion in the exercise of their duty. No court, he decided, should go so far.

Deputy District Attorney Preston Turner, opposing the injunction, argued that there was no showing before the court that the asserted gamblers are not violating the law, except their own complaint, which was denied by the answer of the sheriff and district attorney, this answer being supported by affidavit while the petitioner's complaint was unsupported.

Can't License Violation The argument of Attorneys Lackman and Jacobs that their clients, Julius A. Hammer Jr. and the Seal Beach Amusement company, are conducting business under city license, was met by Turner with the comment that no city has a right to license a violation of the law.

Attorney Jacobs had argued that the repeated arrest of a person, interfering with the business he is operating under a city license, is an invasion of property rights. "Property rights," remarked Judge Menour, "do not extend so far as to include the privilege of violating the law."

Attorney Lackman opened his argument to the court by pointing out that his injunction petition describes the tango and chip games as they are now being operated by his clients, and said that the restraining order was wanted to protect the gamblers as they are now described, not as they may have been operated at some time before. They now are being operated for amusement only, and not for any "object of value," he said. Turner scoffed at that statement.

It was recalled by officers that following their last raid at Seal Beach, they had observed one tango parlor that had that night changed its tactics and was operating in the fashion described by Lackman. They expressed the view, however, that this was done merely in preparation for the injunction hearing.

Employees Put on Bail The seven defendants arrested in a raid Thursday night and held on a felony charge of conspiracy to violate the gambling laws, were all released on bail yesterday afternoon, when Justice Kenneth E. Morrison reduced bail from $5,000 to $500. The defendants included Ballard Baron, 40, owner of the chip game that was raided, and Lee C. Benno, 41, adjacent drug store owner, who allegedly acted as cashier for the chip game.

Officers were in Seal Beach again last night but there was no opportunity to make arrests. Not a single chip game or tango parlor was in operation and only one or two restaurants were open. Few of the town's street lights were burning and only an occasional car was parked at the curb, in distinct contrast to the crowded streets, bustling throngs and brightly-lighted sidewalks before the raids.

Complaints issued today charging conspiracy to violate the gambling laws, included a new defendant, Julius A. Hammer, who was one of the petitioners for an injunction. Hammer operated a chip game.

Arraignment of the eight defendants were set for 2 p. m. Monday before Justice Morrison.

ADJOURN GUN CLUB TRIAL TO MONDAY

Developing an intensity lacking in the preceding gun club prosecutions, the case of the Casa Dora gun club, on trial in Huntington Beach justice court on a charge of violating the county ordinance against waste of water, was recessed over Sunday last night after nearly two days of maneuvering in the selection of a jury.

Where the several gun club trials of recent weeks have required but half a day for picking a jury, a full day and a half was used for that purpose in the Casa Dora case, and a start was barely made with the evidence before adjournment last night.

The procedure thus far has been marked by sharp debate between counsel for the gun club and the prosecutors. District Attorney S. B. Kaufman and his deputy, Leo J. Friles. Both sides have closely contested every point as the examination of jurors went forward before Justice C. P. Pann.

The Orange County Farm bureau today announced that many farmers are expecting to attend the trial when it is resumed Monday, owing to the intensity of the mid-night closing law for liquor establishments, three were held on the whiskey charge and the remainder on the barroom charges.

Seven trials were held, which included three disqualifications by jury, one conviction by jury, one acquittal by jury and one not guilty verdict by the judge. One pleaded guilty before the judge.

Caspari then was arrested for violating the midnight closing ordinance and succeeded in having the ordinance nullified in superior court.

On June 29, Downing dismissed all the remaining barroom cases except the Hof Brau and the Barn. On July 7, the conviction of E. G. Minneman on the barroom charge was upheld by the superior court after an appeal had been made.

Caspari was tried before Judge John Landell last week and had the case dismissed. Mrs. Julia Sulzer, colored, was found guilty by a jury last week on the whiskey charge and is now serving a 150-day sentence.

The vote for conviction had been eight to four ever since the jurors received the case, it was said, changing last night to nine to three.

The jury decided that John J. Eggleston, gambler of Worcester, Mass., was guilty on one of three counts charging mail fraud. They were unable to agree on other counts.

NEW YORK, July 28.—(UP)—William J. Graham and James C. McKay, Nevada gamblers accused of milking a million dollars from 42 persons in an international swindle, had escaped conviction on fraud charges today because a jury deliberating their case failed to agree on a verdict.

The jury decided that John J. Eggleston, gambler of Worcester, Mass., was guilty on one of three counts charging mail fraud. They were unable to agree on other counts.

Dr. Hester Tripp Otewiler, 521 West Nineteenth street, was called to Hemet today by the news of the sudden death of her mother, Mrs. Alice M. Tripp, which occurred last night in Idylwild, where Mrs. Tripp was spending the summer. She had been in her usual health but death came quietly sometime during the night. Funeral services will be conducted in Hemet, where burial will be made in the family plot which preceded her in death by a few years.

LIQUOR CASES DISMISSED IN POLICE COURT

The lengthy prosecution of defendants for alleged violations of the liquor laws in the Santa Ana police court was at an end today, following the dismissal of a "hung jury" last night in the trial of A. M. Caspari, proprietor of the Hof Brau cafe.

The jury deliberated from 2 p. m. to 8 p. m. and stood 8 to 4 for conviction from the second ballot to the end, it was unofficially learned. Caspari was charged with conducting and maintaining a saloon, barroom and public drinking place.

When Judge J. G. Mitchell dismissed the jury, City Attorney Clyde Downing made a motion to dismiss charges against Caspari and Verne Speich and Charles Clark, proprietors of the Hof Brau cafe, who were scheduled to be retried on the same charge next Tuesday.

Each of the 22 defendants has been through the court to date, with the exception of Harry Evans, colored, charged with selling whiskey without a license and not in the original container. Evans was freed in May on a $300 bond as a cook for a construction gang in the desert. Since he was an employee of D. J. Wallace, colored, who pleaded guilty to the same charge and is now serving a 30-day jail sentence, it is not expected that he will be prosecuted.

When he returned to Santa Ana, it is probable that his bond will be exonerated and he will be dismissed.

The liquor trials started after police arrested the defendants on May 10, the same day that Chief Floyd Howard announced his candidacy for sheriff. One person was charged with violation of the mid-night closing law for liquor establishments, three were held on the whiskey charge and the remainder on the barroom charges.

Seven trials were held, which included three disqualifications by jury, one conviction by jury, one acquittal by jury and one not guilty verdict by the judge. One pleaded guilty before the judge.

CLAIM $2642 DUE OIL WELL WORKMEN

Morris Harris was named defendant today in a superior court suit brought by Joseph J. Green, department of labor representative, on behalf of Orzo Lee and 18 other workmen employed by Harris on an oil well at Fullerton between July 15, 1932, and September 23, that year. The suit alleges that $2642.42 is due the 19 employees as wages.

The first debate will be held next Thursday, August 2, in the Greek theater in the Anaheim city park, and the second on Saturday, August 4 in Birch park, Santa Ana.

The Rev. Russell C. Stroup, pastor of the Community church at Newport Beach and candidate on three tickets for Congress, will hold the affirmative of the question: "Resolved, that Upton Sinclair with his Epic plan is in complete harmony with President Roosevelt and his program for national recovery."

The negative of the question will be upheld by W. E. Robb, former pastor of the Involving Federated Church of Des Moines, Ia., and recently pastor of the Christian church at Arlington, Cal. He is manager of the King for Congress club of Riverside county.

The debating ability of both these men is well known and it is believed the debates will prove of unusual interest. Robb has been an ardent supporter of the Roosevelt program and served as manager of the NRA in Riverside county. Stroup also has supported the Roosevelt program and is regarded as a leader in progressive thought of this district.

Stroup has been interested in the Epic plan in a vital way since its inception and introduced Upton Sinclair when he spoke at Irvine park.

The series of debates was suggested by Robb in a letter to Stroup. Robb's letter follows: "First I want to commend you for offering your services to the people of this district in advocating ideas that you think should be adopted by the people of California in the coming election."

"Since you are a firm admirer of Mr. Sinclair and a strong believer in the Epic plan and the logical candidate to represent voters who believe in the plan, and since Mr. King whom I represent is a sincere believer in the Roosevelt policies and the New Deal, an open discussion of these matters between us would be of public interest and I believe would clarify these issues in the public mind."

"Three of the candidates running for Congress are attorneys and represent the old and dead past viewpoint. Yourself having spent many years in a humanitarian movement and in close touch with the ordinary man, and Mr. King as an editor who has written the stories of the births, marriages and deaths, of countless numbers of average people, and has the closest possible contact with the everyday man and his problems, you too, create a natural contest in which one of you, without a doubt, will be chosen to represent the people in the new Congress to convene in January."

"My dear Mr. Stroup, if you feel that this will not be injurious to your own interests and the interests that you represent will be glad if you will specify a time and place in one of the parks in Orange county where we may, in the near future, discuss with good will the issues which I trust will be enlightening to the voters."

"I am in receipt of your very friendly letter suggesting a debate between ourselves in Orange county on the subject of Sinclair's Epic plan and its relationship to the recovery program of President Roosevelt. I think, with you, that a frank discussion on this issue would be helpful to the voters who are now supporting Sinclair, those who are opposing him, and particularly to those who are undecided."

"My confidence in you and the candidate you represent assures me that the discussion would be conducted in the spirit of good sportsmanship. We are both interested in no destructive personalities but in constructive proposals."

"As to the mechanics of the meetings, I suggest as chairman some well known Republican, who is interested in progressive ideas and well known throughout the county. I would also suggest that the affirmative speaker be limited to 20 minutes with a 10 minute rebuttal and the negative speaker to 30 minutes. There should be a question period following in which the people would have the opportunity to ask questions of either of us through the chairman."

STROUP, ROBB STAGE DEBATE NEXT THURSDAY

Upton Sinclair's EPIC plan and its relationship to the Roosevelt recovery program will be the subject of two interesting debates to be held in Orange county in the near future.

The first debate will be held next Thursday, August 2, in the Greek theater in the Anaheim city park, and the second on Saturday, August 4 in Birch park, Santa Ana.

The Rev. Russell C. Stroup, pastor of the Community church at Newport Beach and candidate on three tickets for Congress, will hold the affirmative of the question: "Resolved, that Upton Sinclair with his Epic plan is in complete harmony with President Roosevelt and his program for national recovery."

The negative of the question will be upheld by W. E. Robb, former pastor of the Involving Federated Church of Des Moines, Ia., and recently pastor of the Christian church at Arlington, Cal. He is manager of the King for Congress club of Riverside county.

The debating ability of both these men is well known and it is believed the debates will prove of unusual interest. Robb has been an ardent supporter of the Roosevelt program and served as manager of the NRA in Riverside county. Stroup also has supported the Roosevelt program and is regarded as a leader in progressive thought of this district.

Stroup has been interested in the Epic plan in a vital way since its inception and introduced Upton Sinclair when he spoke at Irvine park.

The series of debates was suggested by Robb in a letter to Stroup. Robb's letter follows: "First I want to commend you for offering your services to the people of this district in advocating ideas that you think should be adopted by the people of California in the coming election."

"Since you are a firm admirer of Mr. Sinclair and a strong believer in the Epic plan and the logical candidate to represent voters who believe in the plan, and since Mr. King whom I represent is a sincere believer in the Roosevelt policies and the New Deal, an open discussion of these matters between us would be of public interest and I believe would clarify these issues in the public mind."

"Three of the candidates running for Congress are attorneys and represent the old and dead past viewpoint. Yourself having spent many years in a humanitarian movement and in close touch with the ordinary man, and Mr. King as an editor who has written the stories of the births, marriages and deaths, of countless numbers of average people, and has the closest possible contact with the everyday man and his problems, you too, create a natural contest in which one of you, without a doubt, will be chosen to represent the people in the new Congress to convene in January."

"My dear Mr. Stroup, if you feel that this will not be injurious to your own interests and the interests that you represent will be glad if you will specify a time and place in one of the parks in Orange county where we may, in the near future, discuss with good will the issues which I trust will be enlightening to the voters."

"I am in receipt of your very friendly letter suggesting a debate between ourselves in Orange county on the subject of Sinclair's Epic plan and its relationship to the recovery program of President Roosevelt. I think, with you, that a frank discussion on this issue would be helpful to the voters who are now supporting Sinclair, those who are opposing him, and particularly to those who are undecided."

"My confidence in you and the candidate you represent assures me that the discussion would be conducted in the spirit of good sportsmanship. We are both interested in no destructive personalities but in constructive proposals."

"As to the mechanics of the meetings, I suggest as chairman some well known Republican, who is interested in progressive ideas and well known throughout the county. I would also suggest that the affirmative speaker be limited to 20 minutes with a 10 minute rebuttal and the negative speaker to 30 minutes. There should be a question period following in which the people would have the opportunity to ask questions of either of us through the chairman."

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

-- News Behind The News --

WASHINGTON (Paul Mallon, whose signature usually appears over this dispatch, is on a brief vacation. During his absence the column will be composed of contributions from leading Washington correspondents.)

DOUBLE ACTION

A really huge operation in the battle against the forces of nature is being carried on by the government without being made generally manifest to the public. This is the cattle-buying program of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in connection with the drought. It is a double-edged performance and has the purpose of killing two birds with one stone. It is, at the same time, an emergency relief effort and an attack on the hideous anomaly of want in the midst of plenty.

The problem was not so much how to get surpluses into needy areas as how to do it without disclosing the existing system and doing injury to normal business and upsetting markets. Distress was so great in some quarters, however, that it had to be attempted and the job fell to the lot of AAA when Congress, toward the close of the session, appropriated around $5,000,000, for drought relief.

Next, AAA drought experts realized that the plight of cattle raisers, with millions of head of dying cattle in their hands, demanded immediate action. AAA men put their heads together with FERA and worked out a plan. AAA would buy the cattle, FERA would slaughter them and distribute the meat to the needy.

AAA decided to use the machinery of the Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Animal Industry to work the plan. The Bureau of Animal Industry has cattle inspectors all over the country. When an area has been designated by the drought experts as an emergency region, the cattle inspectors move in and start to buy cattle from farmers who want to sell.

Already, these inspectors have visited 101,759 farms in seventeen states. They have purchased 31 per cent of the cattle on those farms. Most of the purchases were made in the Dakotas, Minnesota and Texas. The 1,363,332 head of cattle bought that way, about 10 per cent had to be condemned as unfit for food purposes. The cost of these cattle is estimated at between seven and ten million dollars.

AAA's part of the job ends with the purchase of the cattle. As soon as the animals are bought, they become the property of FERA's Surplus Relief Corporation.

FERA, through its state and local relief organizations, ships the cattle from the farms to the nearest meat packing center. The principal markets to which cattle have been shipped are Chicago, Kansas City, East St. Louis, South St. Paul, Wichita, Omaha and Sioux City.

At these centers, the cattle are slaughtered and the meat canned, to be distributed among the needy next winter. The meat never comes into competition with meat that moves through the business channels, since it will be distributed free to people who otherwise would not buy any meat.

The packing firms, which slaughter and can the meat for the government, are paid a fee for their part of the work, but the meat remains government property.

HITCH

There is one point where the trick does not work so smoothly and the government finds itself competing with private business. That is in connection with the hides as part payment for their services.

But, unlike the meat, the hides are not kept off the market. They find their way to market almost immediately by the sudden oversupply. That serves only to show that the trick of carrying on such a large operation without competing with private business is not as easy as it looks.

TOUR

Cattle in drought areas which are not sent immediately to slaughter are sent by being transported to regions where there has been adequate rainfall and the pastures are still green. In this process, the animals take long railroad journeys and are unloaded in places a thousand or more miles from home. Trainloads of them from the plains of the Dakotas, Nebraska and Kansas are arriving daily in Virginia, Georgia, Maryland and other states where there is still feed for them.

The next problem which is being considered—shifting families from the localities where they have been rendered destitute and where there is no possibility, for some time to come, of their making a living—will not be so easy. There, government planners will come up against human inertia and the human will and are likely to encounter resistance. The dumb beasts have no say in the matter, but the people, if they behave according to precedent, are sure to assert their right to live where they please without interference, even if it involves them in certain misery. Mere suggestion of such a plan has already resulted in the receipt by the department of indignant protests.

KINGFISH

Reports from Louisiana say that, because of his high-handed methods in pushing punitive measures through the legislature, all of Senator Huey Long's enemies there have combined to crush him. If they are no more successful than they were in the Senate, Huey will not have to worry.

They all combined to get David D. Moore confirmed as collector of internal revenue for the District of Louisiana, and the nomination was even reported favorably, but, when Congress adjourned, the Moore nomination had failed of confirmation. Huey had accomplished this almost single-handed against the efforts not only of "combined" enemies but of former friends.

NEW YORK

By James McMullin

The shadow of a Federal Monetary Authority lurks behind Senator Thomas' proposal to nationalize the Federal Reserve Bank. Though the Goldborough bill got nowhere last session, the project for a "supreme court of finance"—fostered by Frank Vanderlip—is a lively ghost.

The informed predict that Uncle Sam will be exercising much tighter control over money and credit before another year rolls past. The only chance they see to head this off is the election of a thoroughly conservative Congress which could be trusted to view with disfavor any such sweeping change in the financial system.

The New York banks take to the idea of a Monetary Authority (or nationalizing the Federal Reserve) as a cat takes to swimming. But they know Senator Thomas is no puny adversary—especially as he is once more working closely with the Committee for the Nation—so they're pulling hard for a political flood that will wash away their worries.

CURRENCY

Keen New York observers interpret one phase of the silver policy as an indication that the government is laying the foundation for a monetary structure under full federal control.

They point out that week by week the number of silver certificates in circulation is increasing. So far this has meant no net increase in the total volume of currency outstanding, but the silver certificates are tending to replace Federal Reserve notes and National Bank notes of the small denomination and thereby reduce the latter from circulation.

This shift hasn't yet reached important proportions but it easily might in the next few months. Silver certificates are issued by the government; Federal Reserve and National Bank notes by the banks. The more federal currency is substituted for bank currency the easier it would be to bring about a government monopoly of the Federal Reserve privilege. That's one of the main objectives of Senator Thomas and his New York associates.

OUTLOOK

Business improvement in the last few weeks gives impetus to New York hopes for enduring gains this fall. Some experts believe that the soundest base in five years has been laid for an autumn rise—though they admit that price factors can still throw monkey-wrenches.

A number of New York authorities agree with NRA Economist Leon Henderson that payment of personal debts is an important factor. There's plenty of evidence that a large volume of income hitherto diverted to meet depression obligations will soon be freed for the purchase of consumers' goods—which will help greatly to build up demand. Competition of auto installment contracts this fall will also be good news to the stores.

The only jarring note is the drought situation. New York is beginning to take very seriously. The decline in farm demand for autos, farm machinery, mail order goods, etc., may largely cancel the pickup in industrial centers.

RAILS

Informed sources rate the weakest link in the recovery chain at present. Traffic is bound to drop because of the drought and this loss of income coincides with increases in wage and pension bills. Rates are secondary. One observer comments that what the roads can charge for hauling freight is trivial compared to what freight they will have to haul.

A number of roads which have stalled off reorganization so far may yet have to go through the wringer before they can get back to solid ground. Joseph B. Eastman's dream of direct public ownership of railroads doesn't look so remote as New York would like to have it.

PAY

Wall Street learns that some of its ex-employees are doing well for themselves in government jobs. The cases of men who used to make money working for bank affiliates or brokerage houses and are now drawing $5000 a year on the payroll of Public Works and other administrations make a lot of buzz.

SMARTER

The transcontinental airlines are quietly planning to fix it so you can travel from coast to coast between dinner and breakfast. This fall all airlines expect to shake new high speed planes out of their sleeves.

REALTORS ASK RETENTION OF JOSEPH SMITH

In a resolution passed by unanimous vote yesterday at their luncheon meeting at James cafe, the Santa Ana Realty board urged Governor Merriam to retain Joseph P. Smith of Santa Ana as state real estate commissioner "because of his very exceptional record in office."

Earl Hawks, member of the board, said that the resolution was presented because the Santa Ana real estate group felt that his many successful years as a real estate agent, and his record of integrity in the office entitled him to continuance in office.

W. B. Martin, vice president, presided at the meeting in the absence of Stanley Goode and presented Douglas Patterson, escrow officer of the Reliance Title company, as the speaker. Patterson discussed the co-operation necessary between the agent and brokers for the good of all parties concerned in a transaction.

Y. M. C. A. PROGRAM TO GET UNDER WAY NEXT MONDAY

The Y. M. C. A. program for August is being started next week with the hope of getting done in the next five weeks much of the service which was projected for the entire summer. It was announced today by Secretary R. C. Smedley, who released the schedule of events as planned for the coming weeks.

Beginning Monday morning at 9 o'clock, there will be a swimming class for boys and girls who are "beginners." Both boys and girls will be admitted to this class, provided they are under 13 years of age and cannot swim. The class will meet Monday, Wednesday and Thursday mornings.

At 9:30 o'clock on the same three mornings, there will be a class for boys and girls who class as "advanced" swimmers. Boys and girls 13 years of age or under will be eligible for this class, provided they can swim across the pool in acceptable fashion. They will be taught swimming and diving for style and speed.

Each afternoon except Friday the pool will be open to boys for a swim between 2 and 4:30 o'clock. On Friday afternoon boys will have from 1:30 to 3 o'clock and girls will have from 3 to 4:30 o'clock for swimming. During these afternoon hours, life guards will be on duty and careful supervision will be provided.

Women's classes will be scheduled as at present, with gymnasium and swimming on Tuesday and Friday mornings at 9:30 o'clock and swimming on Tuesday and Thursday evenings at 7:15 o'clock.

New members may enter any of the classes for women or children at any time. Thomas Coffey, swimming instructor, will be available from August 1st, but not long after the summer will be over. Those who put off starting their swimming instruction until later are likely to be disappointed, Smedley said.

Men's special classes are continued through the month, with general swimming instruction and games on Monday evenings, and with life-saving instruction on Wednesday evenings.

Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Adams of Los Angeles visited on Friday evening with the former's father, H. D. Adams.

Mrs. G. W. Short and daughters, the Misses Madelyn and Harriet, are spending the summer with their father, S. S. Vaughn, at his beach home at Alamitos Bay. Mr. Short spends the week-ends with his family there.

The Baker Board's frown on a unified air force is okay with the aircraft people. . . . What's the matter who runs the show so long as somebody buys planes? . . . The Stock Exchange is still equipped to handle 4,000,000 share days and makes no move to cut down on personnel. . . . Wall Street comments that it's no crime to hope.

Joe Steele, popular Santa Ana barber, will open for business Monday in his new location, 417 North Main street.

Steele has been operating a barber shop in Santa Ana for the last 13 years. He originally was located in the new shop, 417 North Main street, and seven years ago moved to his present location next to the old post office building on North Sycamore street.

GARDEN GROVE BOY, 14, HELD FOR THEFT

Two Garden Grove lads had a gay time in Santa Ana last night but their bubble burst today when one of the boys was arrested by sheriff's officers and taken to the detention home for burglary.

The 14-year-old youth admitted that he broke into the home of H. C. Custer of Garden Grove yesterday and stole nearly $5 in small change from a water glass. Unknowingly, he left tell-tale fingerprints on the glass.

With the money in his pocket, the boy invited a friend and came to Santa Ana. They borrowed a car, went to show, had a fine dinner and enjoyed themselves generally.

By HARRY GRAYSON

Henry Louis Gehrig, now rolling toward his 1450th consecutive game, makes all other baseball men appear to have been made of putty.

The best previous record was Everett Scott's 1367. Gehrig's may never be broken.

Nothing stops the Yankee first baseman. He has played with broken and chipped bones, had onsets and colds, and bounced right back after being knocked out by pitched balls.

The other day in Detroit Gehrig had such a cold between his shoulder blades that he scarcely could swing a bat, but prevailed upon Joe McCarthy to permit him to take one turn—his first as a leadoff man—and singled to launch a four-run rally.

TRIPLES FOLLOW KAYO
"Hungry Lou" performed for several weeks this season with a base of his big toe chipped, knocked unconscious for 10 minutes by a pitched ball in an exhibition game at Norfolk, he banged out three triples the next day at the Yankee Stadium.

Five minutes were required to bring Gehrig to when Earl Whitehill beamed him in 1933, but he finished the contest.

Gehrig was commencing to believe that he was to go on and on without another mishap of any kind when that happened, for he slipped through the 1931 and '32 campaigns without a scratch.

HANDICAPPED TO 379

Gehrig suffered most in preserving his phenomenal record for durability in 1930, when he chipped a bone in his left elbow in the first game of the grind, and played throughout the entire season with a sore arm. To make matters worse, he broke the little finger of his right hand in the last two weeks.

The throbbing whip and proud skinny handicapped the husky German to such an extent that he hit only 379. It was just as well for enemy pitchers that he wasn't in one piece.

Gehrig submitted to two operations that fall. The "mice" were removed from his precious throwing arm, and an attempt was made to straighten the little finger. The latter remains crooked.

Hungry Lou stuck in there throughout 1929 with bad tonsils, which he lost no time in losing with the sound of the closing gong.

YANKER FOR MERKLE

Gehrig hurt his right shoulder badly in bumping into the shade of the Boston cypress in chasing a foul in 1926, and had to be treated by a physician daily to remain in the thick of things in July, 1927.

He breezed through 1928, the Yankees' third straight pennant-

winning year without as much as a dab of iodine, however.

Gehrig has participated in every game played by the New York club since the late Miller Huggins assigned him to first base in June, 1925.

The start of my record came close to being held up late that season," beams Hungry Lou. "Hug was not yet convinced that I could hit left-handers, so started Fred Merkle against Whitehill in Detroit. But I got in when a right-hander finished for the Tigers."

TOO SOFT FOR IRISH?

Joe Muligan, a young right-hander plucked from the campus of Holy Cross by the Boston Red Sox, may within another season or two give the Celts something to cheer about in baseball.

Anything a pitcher with a tax like Muligan does these days ought to be news in a game in which the McGinnity's and Donovans have given "way" to the Gomezes and Oestermeillers.

Irish names are becoming as scarce among the stars of baseball as they are in boxing.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

MAKING PEOPLE LAUGH IS SERIOUS TASK TO SMALL

Charlie Small, who draws "Salesman Sam"

Charlie Small, whose slapstick comic, "Salesman Sam," has made untold thousands of people laugh, never even smiles, himself. . . . well, hardly ever. A lot of humorists are that way. . . . he's one of them. Gloomily he says: "I hope my son never will be a cartoonist." . . . They all say that. Small has been putting India ink on Bristol board ever since he was a youngster. Used to be a sports cartoonist on a N. Y. daily. . . . now he's just a slave to "Salesman Sam," the wild-eyed loony who runs berserk in a strip where even the lamp posts are plastered with wisecracks. He has a passion for the race track. . . . hobbies are. . . . first choice, betting that one horse can run faster than the others. . . . second choice, rooting for the Cleveland Indians. . . . who represent the city in which he lives.

WHY not laugh your way through your vacation days?

"Salesman Sam" will help you to do it. Phone the circulation department, 88, and have The Register mailed to you while you're away.

Huntington Beach at Santa Ana; Westminster at Long Beach; Olive at Torrence; Anaheim at Fullerton.

ed Long Beach Admirals, 3-0, in a National Night Ball league game at Long Beach last night.

The Stars picked up all their runs in that frame, and they clattered across the plate with two away. After Denney had grounded out, Francis Conrad singled infield and Ed Daley doubled sharply over first base, sending Conrad to third. George Preble fouled out but Rod Ballard beat out a high hopper to second, scoring Conrad, and Tommy Young rifled a triple to left-center that drove both Daley and Ballard home.

Bobby Dalton, starting pitcher for Long Beach, was lifted at this point in favor of Deane Downer who retired Sears on strikes for the final out.

Ira DeBusk started for Santa Ana, retiring with the count 6-0 in the fifth. Jim Coates got credit for the victory.

DeBusk got along well enough until the third when Long Beach loaded the bases. Dalton was safe on Daley's error and Callahan dropped a double into right.

Dalton tried to score but was cut off at the plate on Sears' perfect throw-in. Edmundson bounced an infield single to Preble, putting Callahan on third and Clemens was intentionally passed, filling the pathways. Sackett, a dangerous batsman, forced Edmundson at third on an easy chance to Young.

Singles by Peavy and Lake put Long Beach in position to score again in the fourth without effect. When DeBusk walked Callahan, first to face him in the fifth, Manager Bill Cole waived DeBusk out and Coates to the rubber. Long Beach went hitless the rest of the way, only one batsman getting on base.

SAYS DOUBLES CRUCIAL PLAY

BY JOE MCCARTHY
Manager New York Yankees (As told by Harry Grayson)

NEW YORK, July 28.—I am not saying that the Yankees will knock every other club over in the remaining weeks, but I do believe that the club which beats Col. Jacob Ruppert's New York team will win the American league pennant.

It may be that the Detroit Tigers have the necessary equipment, but at this time I doubt it.

Years ago, before the season started, every one of the eight managers said that he was going to cop that one flag. That old-fashioned conversational stuff no longer interests the fans, or has any effect on the opposition.

Nowadays the men who run the teams are more rational about those things, and those who support the game, it seems to me, are more reasonable. They know there is only one pennant in each circuit, and that there must be seven also runs.

Perhaps the New York club's principal advantage over Detroit, our principal rival at this stage of the campaign, lies in our reserves. That's a big pull over the long haul.

Mickey Cochrane lacks capable substitutes. If one of the Tiger regulars was injured, the outfit might be in a bad way. That would be especially true if the player happened to be Charley Gehring, Cochrane himself, or "Goose" Goslin.

Goslin is the only outstanding outfielder with the Tigers.

Cochrane has worked wonders all around. His infield ranks with the best in the league. He has organized his pitching on a winning basis. There is no reason why the young giant, Schoolboy Rowe, should not take his place among hurling luminaries.

Above all other factors is the hustle of the Detroit athletes. They seem to have killed off their old defeatism.

I recognize the seriousness of the Detroit opposition, as Cochrane has a band of young men to whom being in the chase is a novelty. They have yet to taste the financial sweets of a world series, and they are hot for it.

But in the hard run down the home stretch give me the veteran, the man with poise.

Cleveland continues to roar along. I deplore greatly the attacks on Walter Johnson as a manager. The Big Train has turned in fine job with the material on hand. He has no better a ball club than the standings indicate. Another first-rate outfielder would help.

The Red Sox and Senators have fared remarkably well in the face of much misfortune, and Rogers Hornsby is to be congratulated for his showing with the Browns.

I have an idea that the Senators will yet work themselves back into a contending position. Despite all handicaps, Joe Cronin has his outfit battling for all it is worth.

Cleveland, Boston, Washington or St. Louis may not stand out on the wire, but each is likely to have much to say about the race.

Berkeley Bell In Surprise Victory
SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 28.—(UP)—Berkeley Bell, Texas, raised himself from four years of comparative obscurity to first-rating today after his defeat of Bryan Grant, Atlanta, in the finals of the Seabright bowl tennis play. Bell won 5-7, 6-1, 6-3, 2-6, 6-4.

SEABRIGHT, July 28.—(UP)—The biggest upset of the American tennis season occurred today when Carolyn Babcock of Los Angeles defeated the American women's champion, Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Calif., in the finals of the Seabright invitational play. The scores were 6-4, 6-2.

WILLIAMSVILLE, N. Y., July 28.—(UP)—Craig Wood, long hitting pro from Deal, N. J., shot sensational sub-par golf today to gain a 6 up advantage over Densmore Shute of Philadelphia as they reached the halfway mark in their 36-hole semi-final match in the National P. G. A. golf tournament.

Wood shot a 31, five under par, on the second nine for an 18-hole aggregate of 65, seven under par. Shute had a 70, two under par. Wood had eight birdies.

Gene Kunes, of Jeffersonville, Pa., gained a 3 up edge over Byron Ruyana of White Plains, N. Y., the favorite, on the first nine.

YANKS HOME AGAIN NURSING RACE LEAD
NEW YORK, July 28.—(UP)—The Yankees came home in first place today, after one of the most "death-defying" road trips of their career.

Battered and wounded, their outfield stripped of three regulars—Ruth, Combs and Chapman—they went through the gamut of despair; until, with half the club laid out with injuries, they unexpectedly started winning.

In the closing series they got back to the top and hold it now by two percentage points.

Detroit and Cleveland more than held their own against the Eastern invaders, the Tigers winning 10 and losing 6, the Indians winning 11 out of 16. The West outplayed the East on the invasion capturing 37 and losing 27 for an average of .578.

Yesterday the New York Giants stretched their lead in the National league to three games, whipping the Phillies in the series opener, 6-3.

Dressen of Nashville To Pilot Reds?

CINCINNATI, July 28.—(UP)—Although reports from Nashville indicate Charlie Dressen, manager of the Nashville club, will succeed Bob O'Farrell as boss of the Cincinnati Reds, officials of the Cincinnati club refused to confirm the likelihood of immediate change.

Larry McPhail, general manager of the Reds, returned last night by airplane from Nashville where he conferred with Pay Murray, president of the Nashville club.

Meanwhile O'Farrell intended to confer with McPhail in an effort to hold his job, as he does not believe he has been given a fair trial.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 28.—(UP)—The Nashville Tennessean said today that Charlie Dressen, manager of the Nashville club, immediately will become manager of the Cincinnati Reds, in exchange for three or four players.

Dressen said last night the deal had not been consummated.

MRS. BUSHARD WINS TOURNEY AT WILLOWICK
Burning up the course on the homeward nine, Margaret Bushard of the California Country club won low gross honors in the annual women's mid-summer golf tournament at the Willowick club here Friday.

Mrs. Bushard took a 43 going out but peppered par on the way back, requiring only a 38 for an 18-hole aggregate of 81. The Los Angeles woman was in her best form.

Mrs. Kenneth Carter, sensational San Gabriel golfer who figured prominently in many of the big winter tournaments in Southern California, scored a gross 83, tying Mrs. C. A. Rife of Palos Verdes for second place. Mrs. Carter and Mrs. Rife shot 83's last year in tying for first.

Two Santa Ana Country club stars, Mrs. J. L. McFadden and Mrs. Homer Robinson, placed three-four. Mrs. McFadden took an 86, Mrs. Robinson an 89.

Forty-eight competed in the all-day event, and 11 different Southland clubs were represented.

Other winners in Class A were Mrs. C. A. Rife, low net, 83-8-75; Mrs. George Shidler, Palos Verdes, second low net, 90-13-77; and a three-way tie for third low net between Mrs. J. L. McFadden, 86-8-78; Mrs. Dot Dodson, Lakewood, 90-12-78; and Mrs. Helen Whitmore, Victoria, 91-13-78.

Class B—Low gross, Mrs. Edith Maxwell, Hacienda, 93; first low net, Mrs. Chas. Chapman, Willowick, 95-20-75; second low net, Mrs. Mary Adams, Willowick, 96-19-72; third low net, Mrs. Jack Potts, Hacienda, 100-22-78.

Class C—Low gross, Mrs. C. C. Gibbs, Willowick, 102; first low net, Mrs. E. E. Russell, Willowick, 102-25-77; second low net, Mrs. Beth Needham, Lakewood, 103-25-78; third low net, Mrs. Wade Warner, Willowick, 106-27-79.

Then led by 2 games to 1.

Perry held his own service in the fourth game to boost his lead to 3 to 1. He scored a crowd-pleasing home run.

Perry broke again in the fifth game and led 4 to 1. This was a sensational game in which the crowd was rebuked for having cheered when Wood double-faulted.

Perry swept the sixth game at love, Wood's touch apparently was hopelessly gone. Sidney rallied, however, to take the seventh game with two great backhand shots and broke service with two forehand placements to pull up to 3 to 5 behind. Perry turned on the heat in the ninth game to capture the match.

CLIMBING SERAPHS MANUSH AND WANER GAME BACK OF S. F. HOLD BATTING LEAD

NEW YORK, July 28.—(UP)—Heinie Manush of the Washington Senators continued to head the major league batting race, topping the American loop with a mark of .397, according to figures of games including Thursday released by Al Munro Elias.

Paul Waner of the Pittsburgh Pirates led the National league, topping Bill Terry of the New York Giants by four points with a mark of .363. Jimmy Foxx of the Philadelphia Athletics led the run hitters in both leagues with 32 while Mel Ott of the Giants continued to lead the National with 24.

Joe Dean, of the St. Louis Cardinals, led National league pitchers with 13 victories and 3 defeats for a mark of .856, while Vernon Gomez of the Yankees stayed at the top of the American with 16 won and 3 lost for .842.

Garcia Technical Knockout Winner
HOLLYWOOD, July 28.—(UP)—Ceferino Garcia, 142½, technically knocked out Mike Pavan, 145, San Diego, in 48 seconds of the first round, last night.

Four rights to the jaw in quick succession ended the fight.

Ward Beats Barth In Border Battle
SAN DIEGO, July 28.—(UP)—Jack Ward, 167, Los Angeles, out-punched Carmen Barth, 164, Cleveland, to take a 10-round main event decision from the Ohioan last night.

Ward scored frequently with rights and lefts. He was outboxed by Barth, a former Olympic champion, only during the first part of the fight.

OPENING OF NEW CATHOLIC EPISCOPAL CHURCH TO BE HELD AT LAGUNA TOMORROW

LAGUNA BEACH, July 28.—Crews of workmen, mostly electricians and decorators, today were busy getting the newly constructed "New Age" church edifice, officially designated as the Cathedral Shrine of St. Francis of Assisi, of what is known as the Catholic Episcopal church, formerly known as the American Catholic church, ready for the opening services set for next Sunday, July 29. The house of worship, built in Italian-Romanesque style, is located on Park avenue, adjoining property now occupied by the St. Mary's Episcopal church.

Appropriate ceremonies, set forth in the ritual of the church, will feature the opening services beginning at 8:30 a. m. with matins, intercessions and meditation, according to an announcement released by the Most Reverend P. Wise Clarkson, bishop of California of San Diego. At 11 a. m. there will be high mass, procession and sermon by Bishop Clarkson, officiating in his robes. A special service between the hours of 3 and 4 in the afternoon will be devoted to the Stations of the Cross and the Seven Rays. The day's program of opening services, enhanced by art treasures, predictions were voiced today that the temple undoubtedly will prove a mecca to hundreds of couples seeking a sanctuary for the marriage ceremony. In this connection, inquiries revealed, that the tenets of the creed do not prohibit the remarriage of divorced persons.

According to an announcement posted at the gate leading to the church entrance, the new church, though called Catholic Episcopal, is non-political, international, non-political, and an altar without any test barriers. It represents the historic succession from St. Peter of Antioch, where the followers of Christ were first called Christians. It is a House of Worship for all seeking Truth.

Its mission and functions are to work for the abolition of war, to teach the ancient wisdom, occult philosophy, modern science, the Kabala, and the great master truths, to promote inter-racial love and friendship, and to work for the elimination of all forms of oppression and prejudice, and to uphold freedom of thought.

Bishop Clarkson was a rector of the Episcopal church before joining the new faith. Besides preparing himself for the ministry, he has studied medicine and architecture. Because of the former accomplishment he was sent out as a medical missionary while a member of the Episcopal church. He served as a chaplain with the British forces at Gallipoli during the World war, carrying commissioned rank of captain. The command with which he was serving participated in some of the heaviest engagements during the war.

Those present were Mesdames L. L. Trickey, W. T. Kirven, E. C. Whipp, Wayne Reafsynder, D. S. Jordan, A. A. Schmitt, E. A. Wakeham, L. L. Doig, Wesley Lamb, Victor Echols, J. P. Hayhurst, J. L. Mitchell and Mr. A. E. Eldeson.

The membership goal was set at 150 and each present spoke briefly concerning plans for the committee during the year. Plans were discussed for the teachers reception, one of the first events of the year.

ART GROUP AT LAGUNA BEACH INCORPORATED

LAGUNA BEACH, July 28.—Proceedings looking toward making the Laguna Beach Festival of Arts association a permanent organization, featured a well attended meeting of business and professional men held yesterday afternoon at the chamber of commerce offices when in addition to adopting articles of incorporation there was an election of a board of directors and an executive committee. The newly elected executive committee will meet at 5 o'clock this afternoon for the purpose of electing officers of the association.

Two well known boosters for the undertaking, Andrew S. Hall and John Jehle declined to accept nomination to the executive committee because of press of other matters taking their entire time. It also was intimated that Dr. Lather P. Mallow would not be in position to serve, his time being taken up with duties as councilman and his business interests.

Following are the directors of the organization: Henry S. Mackay, Ajax Wolf, John R. Jabraus, Arthur J. Stead, Lloyd Sells, John Jehle, Roy Peacock, Gene Douglas, Richard M. Mariner, Roy Ropp, Dr. Vincent P. Carroll, N. E. West, P. D. Conover, H. C. Fletcher, C. Wright, C. M. Hathaway, Wayne Johnson, Dr. David R. Hoffman, W. C. Watkins, Stuart Avis, Charles Kaichen, Dr. Arlith H. Wightman, Frank L. Hovener, Captain George A. Portus, Clarence Hinkle, Mrs. Mabel Hinkle, Dr. Spencer Miller, John Gibson, Perry W. McCullough, Harold Reed, William J. Hodges, Galen Doss, Dr. George K. Brandriff, William Riddell, Mary Rohm, Dr. Luther P. Mallow, Dr. Earl J. Reppine, Betty Reppine and Mrs. Marion Forest.

The following were named to the executive committee, which body was granted to take over the active management of the association's affairs: Captain George A. Portus, Dr. George K. Brandriff, John Gibson, Roy Ropp, Perry McCullough, Gene Douglas and Charles Kaichen.

Roy Ropp, representing the Laguna Art association, reported that there was a willingness on the part of that body of artists to cooperate with the Festival of Arts association in making the undertaking a success. The artists, however, insisted upon the exclusive right to name a jury to pass upon paintings accepted for display in the art salon, scheduled to be one of the attractions of the big show.

Named to serve on this jury are Dr. George K. Brandriff, William M. Wendt, William A. Griffith, Clarence E. Hinkle, Thomas L. Hunt, John Hinchman, Ruth Peabody, Eleanor Colburn, William Riddell, Frank W. Cuprien, Tom Lewis, Wilson Coles, Karl Yens, Frederick Heckman, Grace Vollmer, Roy M. Ropp, W. Galen Doss and Virginia Osgood. It is proposed, it was explained, that the personnel of the jury be divided up in sections with individual assignments to those desiring to hang their pictures.

BOOK REVIEWS

By MARY BURKE KING

Finley Wren by Philip Wylie, published by Farrar & Rinehart. "Finley Wren" is the history of the character Finley Wren. The full title and subtitle is: Finley Wren. His notions and opinions together with a haphazard history of his career and amours in these moody years, as well as sundry rhymes, fables, distiches, and literary misadventures. A novel in a new manner.

The novel is a character novel. It presents a character who, in spite of disclaiming that he is out of the ordinary, is certainly not typical. The figure portrayed as this individual Finley Wren is widely different from other individuals. He is a genius, gifted with imagination, sympathy, virility, innate powers which crop out again and again surprising his friends. And that was part of Finley Wren's charm.

Philip Wylie purports to have met Finley Wren in a speakeasy. The two men spent the three succeeding days together. Starting it in the speakeasy Wren tells Wylie his story. Finley Wren takes Wylie with him to the Dwyers on a week-end party. Although there are many beautiful women at the Dwyers and diverting entertainment Wylie found that the study of Wren was the most interesting thing at hand for him to do.

There is much originality in the book. There is some excellent writing. But it is naturalistic and at times so disgusting that it diverges from the main point of the book.

The book is divided into ten sections, distinguished by the time which each section covers. All except the last one took place on the week end. The significance of the last should be particularly noted, for it is a contact with Wren which took place some months after the other events.

Wylie had thought that he had found Finley Wren at the peak of his powers, of his individuality. That after the events recorded he would submerge into the average. But not so. One evening he called Wylie and from the one telephone call the reader gathers that Wren would always remain the same, the same enthusiasm, the same untrammelled genius, would always have the same charm of surprise.

How Odd of God by Lewis Browne, published by The Macmillan Company. The book "How Odd of God," fully lives up to its claim to be an introduction to the Jews. Mr. Browne tells in his book of a village pastor from northern Wisconsin who visited the Jewish exhibit in the Hall of Religions at Chicago's "Century of Progress."

When he learned that his guide was a full-blooded Jew he confessed: "I have been preaching the Gospel for 30 years and I have often mentioned the Pharisees; but until now I never knew what a Pharisee looked like. When my congregation asked me whether there were any Pharisees left, I told them I had heard there were some in New York!"

Probably there are not many people who could be classed with the Wisconsin pastor, though at that he may have known more about the Jews than some people do. Lewis Browne's theses are always ably presented. This book has come out at a time when Jew and Gentile, all over the world, have been aroused to a new interest in the Jews by what has happened in Germany.

In the book the author tells how they have survived, he expounds on Jewish and Gentile seclusion and the curious result of the waning of seclusion, in which there is a lesson for persecutors everywhere. He has a chapter on what Jews are supposed to be and what they are and, in conclusion, he suggests means of bridging the age-old schism between the Jew and the Gentile.

Mr. Browne's description of the effect of events in Germany on the Jewish people is a disturbing piece of writing. It is powerful and tragic.

"We are afraid," he says of the Jews, "and with good reason. If such a thing could happen in Germany, why can it not happen elsewhere. After all, the Germans are not very different from other Gentiles....today we are drawing together again. Jews who had drifted so far from the field that they seemed altogether lost, are now of a sudden returning.... all of us, the returned prodigals no less than those who never wandered, are now proclaiming, even obtruding, our Jewishness....therein lies the deepest guilt of our persecutors. They harry us into living lives that are cramped and apprehensive. They will not let us choose our interests as other men may choose them. They will not let us do our daily tasks with whole hearts and single minds. Whether we be measurers of stars or gatherers of rags, our first thought must always be that we are Jews. And this is a great evil. The cost is a subtle rhythm in one's innermost being; but with it is a more insidious, a confusing roar. Wherever we turn, it blares in our ears, so that we are moved to shout in the hope of drowning it out. That is what we are doing today."

Modern Poets

By MISS BEULAH MAY

Here are two poems of my own on very different themes.

WHEN MOTHERS SING THEIR BABES TO SLEEP

O Mary was a mother with many things to do
With bread to make and coats to mend and all her house to keep.

But she never was too weary before the day was through
To sit and rock a little boy and sing him off to sleep.

O Mary was a mother and she watched her lad grow tall
She dreamed for him and prayed for him until her tears would start.

Though others came to worship him she loved him most of all
And when he had to go away she pondered in her heart.

O Mary is a mother and she has her lad again,
And Heaven is a happy place and not so far away.

She loves to watch the little homes, the friendly homes of men,
Where mothers sing their babes to sleep about the close of day.

THE CAPTAIN OF SAINT KITTS

Once a rover of the sea, captain of a barkentine
Bearing chests of camphor wood and parrots from Azores.

How he stamped his wooden leg swearing like a picaroon
When the decks were all awash and hell loose out-of-doors.

Strange, he scans an old gazette and smokes his pipe and shores.

Cargoes of green tea and spice, sandalwood from India,
Heavy tusks of elephants, amber in the hold.

Slipping past old pirate junks, coursing in the Yellow Sea
When the sudden typhoon raged, a panther black and cold.

Strange, that he should be ashore on a cane and old.

Trampling on the esplanade, gazing past the Spanish fort,
Stiff as any ramming rod though he has had his day.

Waiting for a phantom ship sunk along of Barbary,
For his snowy barkentine to anchor in the bay;

Strange the past should come again when a man is gray.

'HERE COMES THE NAVY' TO SHOW FRIDAY

"Here Comes the Navy," Warner Bros.' smashing drama of Uncle Sam's jack-tars afloat, ashore and in the air, opens a week's engagement at the West Coast theater starting next Friday. It was announced today by Manager Lester J. Fountain, with James Cagney and Pat O'Brien in the starring roles.

Based on Ben Markson's exciting story which combines romance, rollicking comedy, rapid-fire action and breath-taking thrills, the picture is said to be one of the most tremendous productions ever put out by Warner Bros.

Cagney and O'Brien, two sea-men, are the bitterest of enemies, Jimmy having joined the navy just for a chance to get even with O'Brien who has knocked him cold in a fistie encounter and stolen his girl, a part played by Dorothy Tree. To add fuel to their hatred, Jimmy falls in love with a beautiful girl, Gloria Stuart, who turns out to be his enemy's sister.

'MANDALAY' AND BRENDLE LAUGH FILM COMING

Kay Francis as a Russian night club hostess in Rangoon with Ricardo Cortez as the villain who rescues her from the Bolsheviks only to deliver her into bondage in the Malay resort, head the cast of "Mandalay" which opens a three day run at Walker's State tomorrow.

Many thrills are found in the scenes of her escape from the Bolsheviks along the Irrawadi river, which is climaxed by a strange and mysterious murder. Other well known film players in the cast are Warner Oland, Lyle Talbot, Ruth Donnelly, Hobart Cavanaugh and Lucien Littlefield.

The other feature on the double program is a hilarious comedy with El Brendle in the starring role, "Olson's Big Moment."

This story concerns itself with an apartment house janitor who becomes involved in a romance between a wealthy bachelor and a beautiful young girl who is not in love with him. The janitor's endeavors to patch up the romance force him into a series of escapades chock-full of laughs and adventure. The janitor is finally successful in bringing the romance to a happy conclusion.

A song and dance specialty comedy, "Use Your Imagination," is the other subject on the program.

"HANDY ANDY" WITH ROGERS.

Will Rogers plays as hard as he works in his latest picture, "Handy Andy," which opened at the West Coast theater yesterday. It was announced today by Manager Lester J. Fountain.

Because of the popularity of Rogers' films, and because "Handy Andy" has been heralded as even greater than "David Harum," Manager Fountain has arranged for daily matinees which start at 2 p. m. each of the seven days the picture is scheduled to show. Continuous shows, starting at 1 p. m., will be screened Sunday, tomorrow.

In the picture, his wife, Peggy Wood, wants him to play — and he does, with resulting hilarious situations which go to make his funniest picture. When Will sells out his drug store, life gets complicated. First he raises pigeons, then he escapes into the house. Then he tries golf, with screamingly funny results.

The climax comes when he goes with his wife to attend the New Orleans Mardi Gras. He refuses to attend the ball but later encounters a fellow druggist and his lovely girl friend, Conchita Montenegro. Mellowed by a few cocktails, he decides to attend the ball after all, and choose a leopard skin costume.

A few more cocktails lends him courage to try an adagio dance with the lithe Conchita. Then the fun begins. His rough and tumble dance starts a fight that ends in a riot and results in a surprise ending.

Selected short subjects on the program include a new cartoon, "The Toy Shoppe," a sport reel, "The Fox Hunt," a screen song, "Love Thy Neighbor," a musical novelty with Abe Lyman and his band in "Tin Hat Harmony," and World News events.

RUGGLES COMEDY ENDS RUN TONIGHT

Judging by the spontaneous chuckles which frequently burst into howls of laughter, "Friends of Mr. Sweeney," Charles Ruggles' latest starring comedy, has been a complete success during its showing here, according to Manager Lester J. Fountain.

The picture is said to be one of the most riotously funny pictures which has shown here for some time. The situation in which a meek mouse of a man turns into a ferocious lion, a devil with the women and the terror of the town, is unique enough to lead to a large number of laughable sequences.

Ann Dvorak, popular comedienne, plays opposite Ruggles. Others in the cast include Dorothy Burgess, Eugene Pallette, Dorothy Tree, Robert Barrat, Berton Churchill, Harry Beresford and William Davidson.

Short subjects include a new Shirley Temple comedy, "Pardon My Pups," a Chic Sale oddity, "Little Feller," a Vince Barnett comic thriller, "Air Maniacs," with Frank "Spook" Clark and Ron "Baldy" Wilson, stunt pilots, and Register World News events.

Tom Tyler Stars In Western Film

A story of the Western frontier which carries a delightful love story brings Tom Tyler to Walker's State theater screen next Friday and Saturday. It is "War of the Range," a story of conflict between frontier forces headed by Tyler's father on one side and Bull Hinkle on the other, with complications provided by Tyler's father's foreman, who is the silent partner of the leader of the opposing forces.

Short subjects on the bill for the week-end include a chapter of "The Perils of Pauline," a Mickey Mouse cartoon, "Puppy Love," a news reel and a comedy, "What to Do?"

"HANDY ANDY" ROGERS

AT BROADWAY SUNDAY

When a lass who loves a sailor is Alice Faye and the lad is Lew Ayres, it's good news to entertainment seekers who go to see the new picture, "She Learned About Sailors," which opens at the Broadway theater tomorrow for a four-day engagement.

New Joe Brown Film Is Booked

Joe E. Brown, popular screen comedian, plays the title role in "The Circus Clown," which will open soon at the West Coast theater, according to Manager Lester J. Fountain.

The role is a "natural" for Brown, who for years was connected with circuses as a professional acrobat. The picture was filmed with a circus, and many famous circus performers will be seen when the picture comes here.

YOU'LL CRY LAUGHING

It is absolutely, positively Will's wittiest — They wanted him to quit work and have some fun... and there was no stopping when he started stepping!

DON'T FORGET—DAILY MATINEES

NEW LUDICROUS MURDER FILM FARCE TO SHOW AT BROADWAY HERE SUNDAY ON THURSDAY

Built for laughs, the new picture, "She Learned About Sailors," will open at the Broadway theater tomorrow for a four day engagement. It was announced today by Manager Lester J. Fountain.

Fast moving, catchy and zippy without being sexy, the picture is a lively story of rollicking battleship jack-tars and of a girl who didn't want to fall in love but did and almost lost her man. The picture is tuned to the zestful pitch of carefree youth, contrasting romance with hilarious comedy, according to critics.

Atmosphere of the navy prevails, with the "girl in every port" theme bringing about a distinct series of opportunities for riotous comedy. What matrimony means to a sailor is graphically shown in the film play.

Alice Faye, beautiful blonde, plays the part of a smart girl who sings in a night club in an Asiatic Oriental seaport. Lew Ayres, champion heart-breaker of the navy, falls for the fair Faye. Frank Mitchell and Jack Durant, America's greatest knockout vaudeville and musical comedy funsters, portray Lew's buddies.

The latter pair takes upon itself the task of regulating and straightening out Lew's romance with Miss Faye, thereby causing no end of ludicrous complications. The film is said to be tinked with spicy and zestful song numbers that promise to be real hits.

Plan 5 Operatic Performances For Week In November

LOS ANGELES, July 28.—Five operatic performances of the first rank will be given during the week of November 2 under the local management of L. E. Behrmer, veteran impresario, and Gaetano Merola, director general. In conjunction with the San Francisco Grand Opera company, arrangements are being made by which the same artists, properties, scenery, ballet, chorus and orchestra will be used as in the northern city, thereby lessening the expense of importation of artists and equipment and insuring better performances owing to augmented rehearsals.

Chorus rehearsals are now under way for the presentation of "The Bartered Bride," to be sung in German, featuring Elizabeth Rethberg, Mario Chamlee, Marek Windheim, Louis D'Angelo and Alfredo Grandolfi; "La Tosca," sung in Italian, with Lotte Lehmann, Dino Borgioli, Grandolfi and D'Angelo; "Carmen," in French, with Ninon Vallin, Chamlee, Raymond Marlowe and Windheim. "Manon" will also be sung in French by Lehmann, Richard Cooks, Enzo Pinza, Windheim, Grandolfi and D'Angelo. "Coeur d'Or" and "Secret of Suzanne" will be sung in English as a double bill, with Nelson Eddy, baritone, and Doris Kenyon, soprano featured in the latter work.

Gaetano Merola, Alfred Hertz, Wilfrid Pelletier, Pietro Cimini and William Tyroler will be conductors, with the stage management under the hands of Armando Agnini and Andre Ferrier.

WESTERN THRILLER ENDS RUN TONIGHT

George O'Brien plays the last times in "Frontier Marshal" at Walker's State theater tonight. The fast-moving Western epic brings to the screen some of the exploits of Wyatt Earp, fearless and courageous peace officer of the old frontier days. The romance in the story centers about Irene Bentley, whose father is murdered, with the solution being worked out by her sweetheart.

Shorts on the program are "The Perils of Pauline," and Andy Clyde comedy, "Frozen Assets," and a Walt Disney Silly Symphony in color, "Old King Cole."

ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

EAT AND GROW SLIM

Dinner
Tomato Bouillon, 1 cup
Round steak saute with green peppers and corn
3 Tbsp. green string beans
Carrot and apple salad
1 slice bread with
1 tsp. butter
Black coffee or clear tea
Calory total, 555.

Make a thin tomato soup, using a water base. Season it highly, and when ready to serve put a scant teaspoonful of whipped cream into each cup before pouring in the hot soup.

Dice round steak, brown quickly in a little fat, add sliced green peppers, a little water, and some salt and pepper. Cover closely and simmer until the steak is tender, then add a small can of corn, boil up and serve.

Slice a ripe apple over crisp lettuce leaves, strewn the apple with a small carrot, grated, and dress with 2 Tbsp. of mineral oil mayonnaise.

If you wish to omit the bread, take 100 calories from the total.

Do you know why fat women rush to drug stores for reducing drugs? Because it takes a little trouble and a lot of will power to stay with a reducing diet. Yet there isn't a single reducing drug which does not tuck into the box a discreet little article on the "proper" diet to get best results from the drug. Not all diets are a hardship, particularly my SAFE AND SANE REDUCING DIET. You may have it free if you will enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

TODAY'S RECIPE
Braised Leg of Mutton

A large leg of young mutton
10 slices bacon
4 sliced carrots
3 medium sized onions
Herbs: parsley, chives, sprig of fresh mint, 2 fresh sage leaves
1 cup water
Salt and pepper
Browned flour for thickening.

Line the bottom of a deep covered kettle with bacon and on it put the sliced carrots, onions and herbs. Wash and wipe the leg of mutton, dust with garlic salt and place it on the vegetable bed. Pour over the cup of water and cover the leg with remaining bacon.

Bring the leg to a hard boil quickly, then reduce the heat and simmer ever so gently for 4 hours, basting the leg occasionally with the broth in the kettle. Transfer the leg to the serving dish, skim out the vegetables and thicken the rich gravy.

If you care to take the trouble, this leg of mutton might be boned and the cavity filled with stuffing, then rolled and tied. It slices to perfection then, and is so much better than spring lamb, you will never again pay the price for lamb.

Usually, there are quite a few odds'n' ends of mutton left from the hot dish. Cut these remnants in strips, and make curried mutton served with rice. It will be nice for dinner a couple of nights later. In making curried mutton I like to dice and fry 1 large onion and 2 apples in butter. When fried down, add 2 Tbsp. imported curry powder and blend in the butter mixture for 10 minutes. Add hot gravy and add cayenne and paprika to highlight the flavors.

Au revoir until Monday.

SWEET SIXTEEN
PATTERN 1927
BY ANNE ADAMS

You could scarcely call it a "dust ruffle" unless there should happen to be clouds of dust in the leafy lane this smart young lady is traversing—but it partakes of the chic of the "dust ruffle" one sees on newly imported French frocks. It is a "Frenchy" sort of little front any way you look at it—front or back; yoke, sleeves, or bow. But it is an easy thing to make—fully half the little girls who wear it this summer will undoubtedly make their own. It is adorable in dimity, swiss, voile, organdy or silk crepe.

Pattern 1927 is available in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16. Size 12 takes 3 1/2 yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

And while you are writing, why not include an order for a fascinating book, crammed from cover to cover with stunning illustrations and captivating descriptions of new fashions, fabrics and other things that make a woman chic. . . . THE SUMMER ISSUE OF THE ANNE ADAMS PATTERN BOOK. PRICE FIFTEEN CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER, TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

Address orders to The Register Pattern Department.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for July 29.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

Kings and commoners, when they want to do some particular thing and have more or less made up their minds to do it, frequently seek advice. The counselor who advises them against it, no matter how wise or just his advice may be, is likely to get himself disliked for his pains, no matter how much the king or the commoner may have urged him to be frank.

Much of the time, when we seek advice, we want to have our own judgment confirmed rather than upset, and we tend to value our counselors somewhat according to whether they give us pleasant and favorable, or discouraging words.

Here, in our lesson, King Ahab of Israel had set himself upon a certain course. He wanted to regain Ramoth in Gilead, then in possession of the king of Syria. He turned to Jehoshaphat, king of Judah, for help. Jehoshaphat was willing to give him assistance and to ally his people, his horses, and forces with those of Ahab, but he suggested that first of all it might be wise to inquire of the Lord.

I suppose that pagan peoples would have said, "consult an oracle." That was practically what it amounted to, for Ahab called in some hundreds of prophets who were ministers of pleasant words, rather than clear-sighted and honest advisers.

They sensed what Ahab wanted them to say, and they said it, telling him to go on up and fight for Ramoth, because the Lord would deliver it into his hands. Jehoshaphat apparently sensed something rather unsound about it. He did not seem to have very great confidence in this group of prophets, and he wanted to know whether there was not still another whose judgment they might seek.

Ahab told him that there was such a man, Micaiah by name, but that he hated him and did not want to get his word, because Micaiah did not prophesy good things concerning him, but evil.

Jehoshaphat, king of Judah, was urgent about the matter, however, and Ahab sent to have Micaiah brought. Micaiah seems first of all to have mocked the false prophets and to have spoken to Ahab in much the same words.

Ahab apparently sensed the fact that Micaiah was mocking him, and then Micaiah dared immediately to speak out the truth, telling him that his armies would be scattered and that his own life would be lost.

Instead of listening to him Ahab only turned to Jehoshaphat and said, "Did I not tell thee that he would prophesy no good concerning me, but evil?"

The two kings went up to battle, and it turned out as Micaiah had predicted. They suffered a most inglorious defeat. Jehoshaphat was killed in the battle, and Ahab, who had discarded his kingly robes, was killed by an arrow shot at a venture as he tried to escape.

Did Micaiah have divine insight into what was to happen? Possibly, but not necessarily. It does not always require more than the judgment of an honest and clear-sighted man to predict disaster when he sees the sort of men who are in control.

This story of truth-telling and tragedy has, manifestly, its lessons for our own time.

Come to Church

St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York

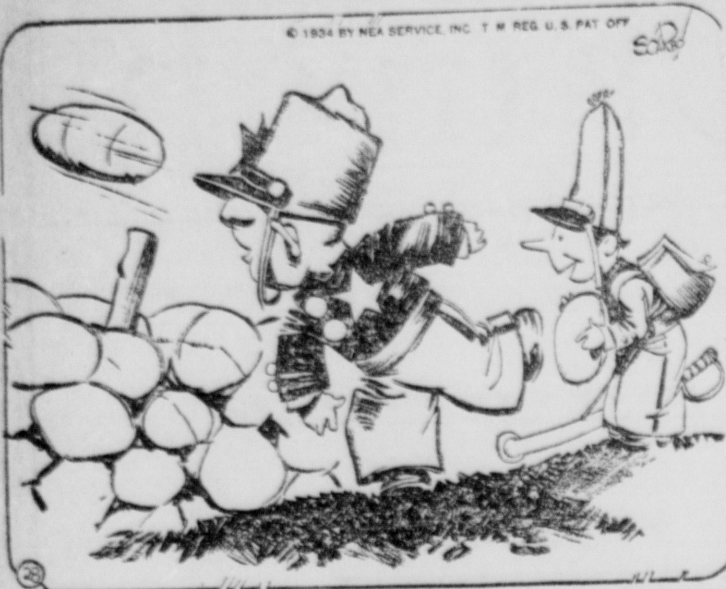

THERE are two kinds of success. One is material success in which temporary satisfaction faded to discontent with a desire for greater gains. But spiritual success—born of Faith and nurtured on Devotion—is everlasting, making your soul richer and your mind and heart more content. This is the success given to those who consider Church attendance one of Life's worthwhile interests. Do you?

St. Patrick's Cathedral, in New York, was constructed from 1858 to 1879, and is 6 centuries younger than most world famous cathedrals.

THE TINY MES

"Oh, my," said Doty. "Those gumbdrops will smack a Meany if he stops one after we have thrown it, and it's sailing through the air."

"Just think what real fun it would be, if we could be on hand to see all of the mean old Meany get a very sudden scare."

They dumped the gumbdrops from the cart. "Hey, don't spread them too far apart," a Cheerful Chap said. "When we start, we'll want to throw them fast."

"I'll shortly show you how it's done, and then we'll start to have more, 'cause not so long will come fun. I wish that we had these few last."

Just then wee Goldy smiled and said, "I guess I'll eat these things instead of throwing them. I tasted one and gee, but they are fine."

"You all can heave them into air, but I prefer to save my share. However, when you've thrown yours, don't come back and beg for mine."

A Cheerful Chap then seemed real sore. "However can we win this war, if we do foolish things like you suggest?" he loudly cried.

"If you are game to help us fight, just step right up. 'Twill be all right. But, if you're going to interfere, please stand way over there."

"Oh, I am sorry," Goldy said. "I'll throw mine, too, so go ahead."

LAWS SHOULD BE ADMINISTERED IN BEHALF OF ALL THE PEOPLE

There has been a great deal of discussion concerning the speed used in obtaining a divorce for Mrs. William G. McAdoo.

It appears that a record time was made—42 minutes—from filing to the decree. It was unseemly haste, it was averred, and according to the usual procedure, the judges do not permit anything like that to occur, but an outside judge was serving, and he did not know the rules that the judges applied. It also appears that other lawyers have tried to do this thing, but have been headed off by the judges, but in this case, the lawyer succeeded.

The case, as against the lawyer, is being turned over to the bar association by the court. There are two points of observation on this.

It would appear from the general news, as we have said above, that other lawyers have tried to do this and nothing has been done to bring them to time. But they didn't succeed.

Their lack of success, however, was not due to their desire, intention and effort, but to the judges themselves. This lawyer did succeed. Having worked just as the other lawyers did, he didn't fail because the judge permitted it.

We just can't quite get the philosophy of punishing one lawyer for succeeding in a certain labor, when not punishing other lawyers for trying to succeed. But we will let the bar association thresh that out.

More than this, we cannot help thinking that it does seem a little incongruous to turn this over to a bar association. All of society is interested in this.

If the marriage relation has become so cheap and inconsequential, that it can go through a court with an express rate of speed, it is the business of society as a whole.

This action of turning it over to the bar association considers it only an act of this lawyer. We are not greatly in favor of farming out governmental functions to organizations, whether they be bar associations or what not.

Laws should be administered on behalf of all the people, and not by one group for a group. If we proceeded in this manner, we would have the lawyers looking after lawyers, the doctors looking after doctors, the dentists, the dentists, the labor organizations, the laboring man, and if we kept on we might just as well have the criminals look after the criminals.

It is not sound political philosophy. This simply emphasizes it.

A MORMON ANNIVERSARY

On July 24, the Mormons of Utah and the surrounding states observed impressively and exultantly the anniversary of the arrival of Brigham Young and his followers to the shores of that great salt lake where they founded their empire. There are still nine survivors of that day in 1847 when the followers of the prophet laid the foundations of Salt Lake City.

In commemoration of that event, young Mormons let their beards grow, and a jubilation not unlike that which occurs in all other parts of the country on July 4th takes place. The story of the trials of this group of religious enthusiasts, as they were persecuted from place to place until they arrived in this desert country, is retold. Young and old are called upon to pay homage to a brave and consecrated ancestry.

The people of this country, once outraged by the polygamous tenet of the Mormon faith, have long since left behind them their animosities toward these religious pioneers. The fanaticism and the superstitions of the founders of the Mormon faith have been softened, if they have not actually disappeared altogether from the lives of present-day Mormons.

That these founders had many virtues is borne out by the sober habits of the Mormon people of today. One who visits Salt Lake City, Provo, or Ogden finds a different type of life from that which exists here on the coast.

Many of the Puritan traits of the founders still survive among their descendants. They still stand for those qualities of character which we always associate with good citizenship.

In a society as closely knit together as our American society is, it is difficult for any group to continue practices which are inconsistent with prevailing practices around them. Polygamy was put down by the strong arm of the federal government. But already, among the younger Mormons, there was a movement on at the time to do away with it.

There are no more loyal citizens in the country anywhere than those who live according to the Mormon faith. They have reason to be proud of the deeds of their ancestors. Their courage, their devotion to principle, and their sober lives are worthy of emulation.

WHEN THE COUNTRY WAS WITHOUT A PRESIDENT

In the memories of the late "Ike" Hoover, for many years chief usher of the White House, which are being printed in the Saturday Evening Post, there is an amazing account of the days when President Wilson lay a helpless invalid in the White House, incapable of discharging his constitutional duties as President of the United States.

Mrs. Wilson, Secretary Tumulty, and a few chosen intimates exercised the executive authority, despite the plain provisions of the constitution that when the president is incapable of discharging his duties, it shall devolve upon the vice-president to function in his place.

Mr. Hoover asserts that after the president's collapse on October 2, 1920, he was never himself again. That undoubtedly accounts for those painful wrenchings of friendships which took place during the last 20 months of the Wilson administration.

During that interval, the president removed Lansing from the headship of the state department. He also broke with Colonel House during that period, than whom the president had no more trusted intimate up to that time. It explains his antipathy to Eugene Debbs whom he refused to pardon, his strange obsessions and his erratic judgment.

Those who were closest to the president during those months, and those intimates who suffered most from these obsessions have remained silent concerning the incidents of that period. Now it comes out in the memories of a man who was a daily witness of what was going on in the White House during that time.

Surely, Woodrow Wilson was as much a casualty of the World war as was the Unknown Soldier. His physical and mental powers broke under the strain of the war and under the burdens which he tried to carry in the peace conference at Paris.

THE R. F. C. AS A WHOLE

In a cartoon today will be found the suggestion that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has made some $21,000,000.

Unquestionably the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has been very ably conducted. While originally there were certain special groups and men who received large amounts from the R. F. C., apparently with undue influence, yet the straight loans by the organization have been well looked after and taken care of.

This profit has accrued from interest. Of course it should be borne in mind that there probably has been no writing off, as yet, of losses that are bound to be sustained.

The R. F. C. has been used for emergency purposes. Loans have been made to public corporations for such emergencies. Work has been carried on with this money, some of it profitable work—a great deal of it simply for the purpose of getting money into the hands of those who needed it.

Some of this money will probably never be repaid, and the loss, when finally met, will run into millions. This not having yet been written off, does not appear as a loss. Hence the profit appears on the books.

The business end of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation committee has been run as a business should be run and from that angle of it the profit is made. This should be borne in mind by the voters in considering the R. F. C. in its entirety.

THE QUINTUPLETS BREAK THE RECORD

The Dionne quintuplets have broken the record. They are still living after 50 days, the record set by quintuplets born in Portugal in 1866. No such group has lived more than four days before. However, Dr. Dafoe, the family physician, insists that they are not yet out of the woods.

No doubt, the five children of this French habitant were fortunate in their number. Had they been triplets, there would not have been the nation-wide interest and concern for them.

They have been the recipients of medical care such as ordinarily given to those who are blessed with large wealth. The whole world is anxious that they continue to live, and from all quarters help has come to see that they have everything that is needed to continue life.

Few are born famous. "The heavens themselves," says Shakespeare, "blaze forth the birth of princes." But no prince was ever born into the world with greater publicity than these humble quintuplets in a Canadian cottage.

Many of this generation will continue to follow the career of these five girls for many years to come. It is to be hoped that they will grow up together. Incidentally, it may be hoped that there will not be another set, either in the Dionne family or any other.

Adding Seventeen Years To Life Expectancy

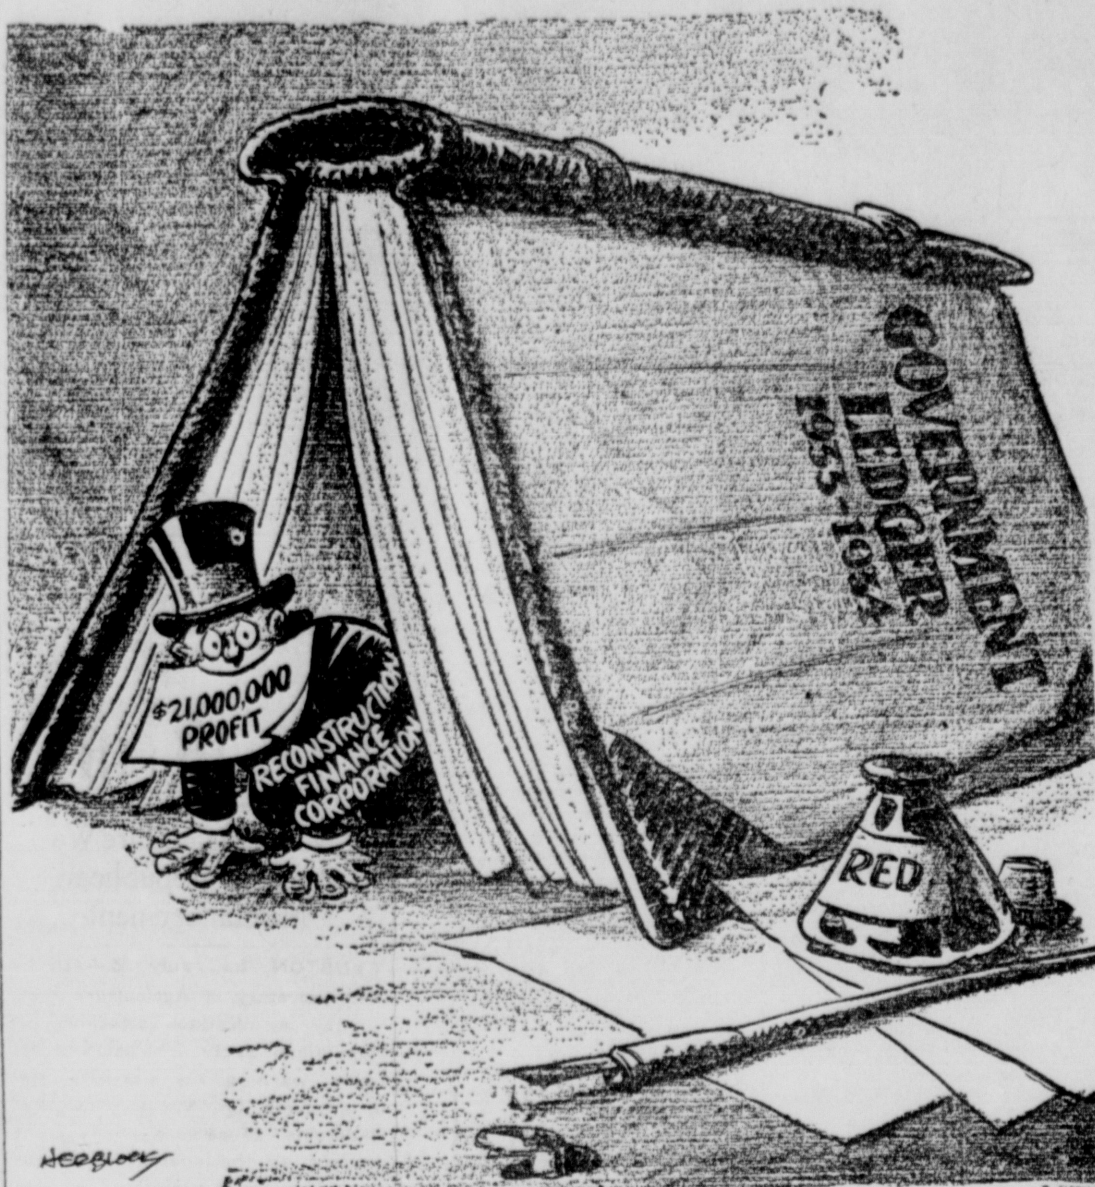

The Bostonian of today has a life expectancy of 17 years longer than he would have had 100 years ago. Some one has been comparing Boston's vital statistics of the 1930's with those of 1830. He found that in the former year, death rates of people in their twenties and thirties were treble the 1930 figure. The death rates for people between 20 and 50 have been reduced since 1830 far more than the death rate for infants. The only age group which fared better in the old days in Boston was that from 60 on, but there were fewer persons who reached that age and they had to be pretty hard to do so.

The facts indicate improvement in general health and prevention of illness during the past century. There is another way in which the present age, while not taking any honors, is not so bad as has been thought.

The death rate from accidents in 1830 in Boston was very nearly as high as in 1930, in spite of contemporary speed, automobiles and machinery. The old rate was 71.7 per 100,000; the 1930 rate was 74.4.

Apparently the tempo of modern life, which is supposed to be so hard on human health, has been successfully counteracted by sensible habits of diet, exercise and so on, and also by the more general practice of safety measures. It is another example of the good old days having progressed to better new days.

More Truth Than Poetry

IT'S A HARD WORLD

The angworm (see Darwin's works)
Performs a useful toil,
All day beneath the soil he lurks
To aerate the soil.
He does no living being harm,
He does not squeal or yelp,
And yet the farmer could not farm
Without the creature's help.
But women, who behold this worm,
Avoid him as they would a germ.

The garter-snake is innocent
Of sinister designs,
His placid summer days are spent
In eating bugs off vines.
Unpraised, unhonored and unsung,
He wanders in and out;
Without his eager darting tongue
No garden patch would sprout.
And yet, through all his useful days,
He never gets a word of praise.

Devoid of malice, spite or greed,
The clam lives out his life;
He asks no aid, he feels no need
Of controversial strife.
He seems completely satisfied
To hear the breaker's roar,
Or tumble in the limpid tide
That creeps along the shore.
But life is hard, and stern and bitter;

Thoughts On Modern Life

BY GLENN FRANK

AFTERMATH OF EMERGENCY MEASURES

What will be the permanent effect upon the American government and the American people of the medley of measures with which we have sought to deal with the current emergency?

The centralization of extraordinary powers in the executive during an emergency is a special problem calling for a special treatment, quite apart from any broad judgment on dictatorship and democracy as permanent procedures.

But, even to the minds of men who concur in the necessity of emergency grants of extraordinary powers, the exercise of these emergency powers raises fundamental questions that involve long-range values.

It is not a simple matter to confine the effect of emergency programs to emergency periods. In utter absence of any deliberate intent, emergency programs may, in a few swift months, remake for a generation to come the attitude of a people towards government.

The after effect of emergency programs may not be so sweeping and subversive as the ancient historian Polybius traced in the twilight of ancient Rome.

"And hence," wrote Polybius, "when by their foolish thirst for reputation they (the political leaders) have created among the masses an appetite for gifts and the habit of receiving them, democracy, in its turn, is abolished and changes into a rule of force and violence. For the people, having grown accustomed to feed at the expense of others are to depend for their livelihood on the property of others, as soon as they find a leader who is enterprising, but is excluded from the honors of office by his penury, institute the rule of violence."

The after effect of emergency programs may not, as I have said, be so sweeping, but a people can easily come out of an emergency, in which government has acted bravely and generously, with a frankly unhealthy reliance on government. Unhealthy, that is, unless the whole philosophy of private enterprise and political liberty is obsolete. But I do not think it is. On the contrary, its validity grows, I think, with the growing complexity of modern life.

FRIENDLINESS

DEAR CHILDREN: Many of the things that look so difficult to you are really very simple. You have them in your power if you could but realize it. For one thing, making friends.

I have seen children very unhappy because they had no friends. "I'm not popular," was their cry, and they uttered it like a protest. Somebody was to blame for this sad state of affairs. Or they begrudged those that had friends and said, "Of course, if I wanted to be like some people I know I could have friends, too, but I wouldn't stoop to such conduct."

That is the wrong way to go about the matter. You can't have friends by being fond of yourself like that. The only way to have friends is to be friendly, to like people and show them that you like them. You can't win friends by demanding attention. You have to bestow attention on other people. You have to be interested in their affairs and help them forward. In short, if you want friends you must be friendly.

That doesn't mean that you say Yes to all who come along. It does mean that you go along with your group in the way they go and do your best to make the others happy, considering yourself happy in serving them. If you want to be first always, if you hold out for your rights down to the last carfare, or soda, or seat, or turn at the bat, you are going to be left friendless and alone.

People turn their backs upon selfishness. I am not defending them. I am only telling you that unselfishness wins friends. It wins unselfishness in return. People are willing to serve those who do not demand service. They stubbornly refuse to have anything to do with those who want service for themselves but delight to help when they know they are not expected to do so.

This all sounds very selfish very self centered, but selfishness of the right sort, the sort that wants to find happiness in making others happy, becomes the highest kind of altruism. A friend is kind because he feels happy in being kind. That's the true selfishness and high altruism. And it makes the whole world friendly.

You won't win any friends by being superior. You drive people from you by being critical and
